Troopers Stymied After St. Clair County Sheriff Advised Search Warrant Wasn't Needed.

Superintendent Phil Brown of the Illinois State Police said today he will investigate circumstances of a fruitless gambling raid conducted yesterday by state police in co-operation with St. Clair county authorities.

The state officers, accepting the advice of St. Clair county Sheriff Leonard O. Reinhardt that a search warrant was not needed for a gambling raid, were prevented from entering the Ranch House Tavern, 6600 Missouri avenue, for an hour and a half. When they finally broken in they found no evidence of gambling.

The delay was caused when the tavern owner, James Kage, seeing the raiding party drive up, slammed the front door and barred it. Sheriff Reinhardt then decided that a search warrant was necessary. Lt. Elza Brantley, who was in charge of the raiders, told the Post-Dispatch.

Loud noises were heard coming from inside the tavern during the long wait, Brantley said. It sounded like furniture being moved, he related.

Superintendent Brown, who last month directed state police to conduct gambling raids in St. Clair county without consulting local authorities first, said he had not been informed of the raid. He expressed concern about the delay in gaining entry.

"When we go fishing, we like to catch fish," Brown observed.

'On Spur of Moment.'

Later in the day Brown said he had been informed the raid had been made by state police and local officials "on the spur of the moment." Ordinarily, he said, state officers would have placed an undercover man in the tavern and then would have obtained a search warrant in advance.

Lt. Brantley said sate police had received reports that gamblers associated with a dice game at Club Prevue, in Madison county, which was raided by State Police in November, had moved to St. Clair county. The headquarters of their operation, he said, was believed to be in a tavern near the Cahokia Downs race track.

"We have been observing the Ranch House for some time," he said. "We have seen known gamblers hanging around there and have noted a large number of automobiles parked outside from time to time."

Man in Place Identified.

One of about eight men in the tavern at the time of the raid was identified by state police as Roy Davis. Davis, police said, operated Club 22, a Venice gambling casino raided by state officers last February. The man behind the Venice operation was reported to be Frank (Buster) Wortman, East Side gang boss.

A decision to raid was made yesterday. The state officers were accompanied by Sheriff Reinhardt and Chief Deputy Sheriff Clifford Flood.

After failing to talk the owner of the Ranch House into opening up, Reinhardt left the group and went to Belleville to get a warrant. He returned without the warrant, but was accompanied by State's Attorney Richard T. Carter. Carter said no warrant was needed to break down the door.

Flood then broke a pane of glass in the door and forced it open. The officers searched the premises of the tavern without finding anything indicating a gambling operation.

When the officers started to enter a rear room, Brantley said, Kage barred their way. He

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (UP)—The United States announced today that it is studying a complaint by Red China that a Chinese co-student at the University of Missouri is being held unjustly in a Missouri mental hospital.

The Communist said in a note handed United States diplomats in Geneva that the student has branded the hospital "hell."

The State Department said the complaint was its first knowledge of the case. It also was the first specific complaint identifying a Chinese allegedly being prevented from returning to his homeland.

The student is Liu Yung-ming. The State Department said he was attending the University of Missouri in May 1949 when committed by court order to the State Hospital at Farmington, Mo. It said the proceedings were instituted by the foreign student adviser at the university.

Hospital physicians said he suffered from chronic schizophrenia.

The department said the United States immigration service obtained an order to deport Liu on Jan. 29, 1951, but could not deport him "due to the impossibility of obtaining travel documents which would assure his acceptance elsewhere."

It was unable to say whether the United States is now willing to send him to Red China.

The Chinese Communist complaint said Liu arrived in the United States in 1947 and sought permission to return to China in May 1949. Instead of being permitted to leave, the complaint said, Liu was declared a mental case and sent to the hospital.

The Communists said he wrote this passage in a letter to his wife after entering the hospital:

By EDWARD H. THORNTON
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 30—The Missouri Supreme Court was asked by the Bar Association of St. Louis today to adopt rules governing operation of the St. Louis magistrate courts to correct an "intolerable situation" now existing in those courts.

Recommendations on a set of rules prepared by a Bar Association committee were submitted to the magistrates last March, the Supreme Court was told, but the magistrates have shown no indication they intend to adopt the rules.

T. Hartley Pollock, association president, requested action by the higher court in a letter to Presiding Judge C. A. Leedy.

The association committee's report stressed the necessity of adoption of a rule requiring assignment of cases to trial divisions strictly by lot and providing for casting of that lot in plain view of persons in the courtroom.

Practice Questioned.

At present, the report said, assignment of cases is said by the magistrates to be by lot, but the committee questioned this by citing the fact that one attorney, during the first six months of this year, had a total of 168 cases assigned for trial on 34 days and 121 of the cases were assigned to one division of the magistrate court. The other 47 cases were assigned to four other divisions.

This, the committee reported, leads to one of two conclusions:

"Either the assignment judge made assignments on a basis other than chance, or, by a remarkable and lengthy series of coincidences, the number of the trial division repeatedly appeared 77.42 per cent of the time. The latter proposition defies credibility."

Critical Report Submitted.

Also submitted to the Supreme Court was an association committee report of last April which vigorously criticized administration of justice by the magistrate courts and constables' procedure.

Some magistrates were found to average no more than two hours a day in their courtrooms or chambers.

"It is most sincerely believed," Pollock wrote, "that the recommendations of the magistrate court committee, if implemented by your court, will result in the very necessary correction of an intolerable situation and will invariably work to the end of fairness and efficiency in the administration of justice in these courts."

The Bar Association committee in a report Dec. 16, which was approved and adopted unanimously by the executive committee of the association, pointed out that it had met with the magistrates Sept. 10, 1954, and was invited to draft a proposed set of rules for the magistrate court. The proposed rules were submitted last March 15 and the magistrates indicated they would consider them.

However, when the committee again met with the magistrates Oct. 28 the sole topic of discussion was the "desirability" of adopting the court rules, the report stated. The chairman of the Bar Association committee was told at the time that the magistrates, meeting en banc, would consider the proposed rules Nov. 18, the report said, adding:

Under the proposed rules, the assignment division of the magistrate court would open daily at 9:30 a.m., except Sundays and holidays, and remain open until 5 p.m., except Saturday when it would close at noon. Trial divisions of the court would be open from 9:45 a.m. until 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and until noon on Saturdays.

The chief clerk of the court would be required to keep alphabetical indices of all cases by the names of both plaintiffs and defendants and index all judgments by the defendants' names. He also would be required to keep books showing all receipts and disbursements.

WHITE HOUSE RESTATES GOAL OF LIBERATING CAPTIVE PEOPLE

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 30 (AP)—The White House, hitting back at Soviet criticism of President Eisenhower, said today the United States will continue to seek peaceful liberation of captive European peoples "until success is achieved."

The repetition of the American goal was set forth in a statement by Press Secretary James C. Hagerty after it had been approved by Mr. Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles.

The statement was in reply to criticism yesterday by Nikita S. Khrushchev, Russia's Communist party boss, accusing Mr. Eisenhower and Dulles of "crude interference" in eastern affairs through Christmas broadcasts to those areas.

Khrushchev also accused the President of having violated the spirit of the summit meeting held at Geneva last July.

In his statement, Hagerty in effect denied that.

"The peaceful liberation of the captive peoples," Hagerty said, "has been, is, and—until success is achieved—will continue to be a major goal of United States foreign policy."

Only yesterday Hagerty told reporters at Mr. Eisenhower's vacation headquarters here that neither the President nor he would have any comment on the Khrushchev attack.

Hagerty's statement reversing that position came after Mr. Eisenhower had spent three and a half hours working on his Jan. 5 State of the Union message and other government business. The session presumably dealt also with the statement Hagerty issued.

Hagerty said he talked by telephone with Dulles, who is in Washington, to get his approval of the statement.

The text of the statement:

"Mr. Khrushchev is reported to have said that the Christmas messages of President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles to the peoples of Eastern Europe in no way accord with the spirit of Geneva.

"It was made abundantly clear at Geneva to the Soviet rulers that the 'spirit of Geneva' could not and did not involve any relaxing of the peaceful purpose of the United States to achieve liberty and justice for the oppressed peoples of the world.

"In his opening statement at Geneva President Eisenhower said: 'There is the problem of respecting the right of peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live; and of restoring sovereign rights and self-government to those who have been deprived of them. The American people feel strongly that certain peoples of Eastern Europe, many with a long and proud record of national existence, have not yet been given the benefit of this pledge of our united nations wartime declaration, reinforced by other wartime agreements.'

"In his radio-television report to the American people immediately following the Geneva conference, President Eisenhower said: 'The Secretary of State and I specifically brought up, more than once, American convictions and American beliefs and American concern about such questions as the satellites of eastern Europe and the activities of international Communism. We made crystal clear what were American beliefs about such matters as these.'

"The peaceful liberation of the captive peoples has been, is and, until success is achieved, will continue to be a major goal

SHOOTING DOWN OF REBEL SUSPECT FOR CAMERAMAN STIRS STORM IN FRANCE

French Campaign Issue

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Picture showing French soldier apparently preparing to fire on fleeing Algerian nationalist is similar to one which has become an issue in the French election campaign.

ALGERIAN POLICE ACTION BUILT UP TO BITTER ELECTION ISSUE

Faure Government Admits Incident—Photographer Denies He Paid Bribe for Picture.

PARIS, Dec. 30 (AP)—A government admission that a gendarme shot down a rebel suspect in Algeria to make a picture for a photographer-made strife in the North African territory the top issue today in the French election campaign.

Premier Faure in turn accused the newspaper l'Express, ex-Premier Pierre Mendes-France's organ which disclosed the incident, of acting "for electoral ends" and of "losing sight of the elementary sense of national interest." The government accused the paper of damaging army morale.

The government at first denied the paper's charge, but an Interior Ministry statement finally said a representative of the American newsreel firm Fox Movietone News bribed the gendarme to shoot the suspected rebel in front of his camera.

Fox Movietone's Paris office issued a statement protesting against the bribery charge. It said "our representatives receive orders for scrupulous and impartial information only. We have no knowledge of their ever having failed in this duty."

Company's Version.

The newsreel company later gave its version of the incident at a news conference.

Georges Chassagne, Algerian correspondent for the newsreel company, denied that he bribed the gendarme to kill the Algerian for a newsreel shot.

Chassagne, a Frenchman who was born in Algiers and has lived there most of his life, flew to Paris to give his own story. In a declaration for newsreel and television cameramen in the offices of Fox Movietone, Chassagne said he took the pictures in question Aug. 22 during a clean-up operation at the village of Ain Abid.

Chassagne said he went with five other persons—movie cameramen and reporters—to witness an operation at Ain Abid, where "innocent victims, including women and children, had been massacred by rebels 48 hours before."

He said security forces were in the process of cleaning up a nomad camp and discovered rebels on whom were found personal belongings of some of the victims.

Chassagne said a gendarme and six or eight French soldiers were clearing out tents and lodgings in the village and that he took his pictures in the course of this operation.

Denies Paying a Bribe.

"I was carrying out my duties purely as a journalist," he said. "In any case I affirm that I never asked for any posing for pictures. I never saw the gendarme before. I have never seen him since and I certainly never bribed any gendarme."

(The United Press quoted Chassagne as saying that on the morning of the shooting "orders had been issued by the French to the surrounding population to gather on the village square.

("Troops then went out to mop up. All Algerians had been advised that those not gathering on the village square would be considered as terrorists.

("The gendarmes who were doing the mopping-up took absolutely no notice of us and I saw and filmed three separate shootings.

("One Algerian was shot as he came out of a tent after a number of summonses. Another was shot in a narrow street, and a third as he attempted to walk away.")

Confers With Faure Aid.

Chassagne said he knew nothing about government legal action against him. Jacques Duhamel, one of Faure's top aids, called on Chassagne at his office this afternoon. Afterward Chassagne said he understood the government was going to issue another statement "correcting the Interior Ministry's declaration."

The pictures, although widely used abroad as newsreels and as still photos in newspapers and magazines, had never been published in France until l'Express printed them yesterday.

The films showed a man in uniform aiming a rifle at the back of a walking man, and the target falling dead as the man in uniform worked his rifle bolt.

A special correspondent for the newspaper France - Soir wrote in that paper that he was present at the photographed shooting and denied that the gendarme had been bribed.

He said the scene was photo-

TIED UP BY TRAIN, EX-RAIL MAN HAS EXECUTIVE SEIZED

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 30 (AP)—A retired railroad man, disgruntled because a freight train blocked his way, had a railroad vice president arrested yesterday.

C. I. Ogden obtained a warrant charging the Chicago & Illinois Midland Railroad Co. violated a city ordinance by blocking an intersection for 25 minutes.

Two policemen went to the C.&I.M. headquarters and arrested Mervin E. Gustaveson, vice president. Gustaveson appeared before Police Magistrate William D. Conway, who released him in $200 bond and set a hearing for Jan. 3.

Conway said Ogden once worked for the C.&I.M. and had been retired for about seven years. He said Ogden complained that he waited at the intersection for 25 minutes because a freight train was blocking the way. The city code, Conway said, limits trains to eight minutes' standing at a crossing.

Police Chief Silver Suarez said that on Oct. 5, Mayor Nelson Haworth issued an order setting the limit at 10 minutes.

TIMES SQUARE IS PARTLY CLOSED OFF IN BOMB SCARE

Passer-by Hands Box Containing Mechanism to Policeman, Says It Was in Trash Basket.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (AP)—Police blocked off part of Times Square today after the finding of a box that appeared to contain a bomb. The box contained a cylinder, wires and a clock mechanism.

A passerby handed it to a policeman and said he had found it in a trash basket.

GOES INTO SEWER SHAFT AFTER DOG, RESCUES TWO

ST. NICHOLAS AT WADE, England, Dec. 30 (AP)—A mongrel named Bella fell into a hole 4 feet deep yesterday. This was a lucky thing for a boxer named Woo Woo, who had been sitting at the bottom for four days hoping somebody would turn up.

Bella's master, Ross Baldock, descended the abandoned sewer shaft with a rope ladder and was astonished to find not only Bella but Woo Woo. He rescued both dogs unharmed.

Woo Woo was restored to his mistress, Miss Triston Jones. She said he vanished on Christmas da.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH MURDERING HER TWO SONS

Affton Housewife Released From Sanatorium Over Objections of Her Husband.

Warrants charging Mrs. John B. Zavis, a former mental patient, with first-degree murder in the killing of her two young sons were issued today by Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis at Clayton.

Prosecuting Attorney Edward W. Garnholz of St. Louis county said he would attempt to have a pyschiatric examination soon of Mrs. Zavis, who was released from a sanatorium last February over objections of her husband and against advice of the medical staff.

Dr. Edwin Schmidt, medical director of Glenwood Sanatorium in Webster Groves, told the Post-Dispatch that the mother and a sister of Mrs. Zavis insisted on her release and agreed to assume responsibility for her.

Mrs. Zavis shot and killed her sons—John, 9 years old, and Kevin, 21 months—with a 25-caliber automatic pistol yesterday in their home, 5127 Lakewood avenue, Affton.

Delusions of Persecution.

Testimony at the inquest today showed Mrs. Zavis had been a patient at the sanatorium from Feb. 17 to 26 for schizophrenia and was found to have delusions of persecution.

For almost a month in early 1953 she was under treatment at the institution as a manic depressive and then was transferred to Winter Veterans Administration Hospital at Topeka, Kan., which specializes in psychiatric cases.

She was released from the veterans' hospital about two months after being admitted. Mrs. Zavis served in the Army Air Force as a private first class from July 8, 1944, to March 4, 1946, doing nurses' aid work.

Zavis told the Post-Dispatch he thought his wife was still mentally ill when she was released from Glenwood Sanatorium in February. Dr. Schmidt said Zavis expressed the same opinion in a letter to the institution but stated he would interpose no formal objection to her release if his mother-in-law and sister-in-law assumed the responsibility.

Although the medical staff

CHURCHILL HATED YALTA; FORTIFIED SELF WITH WHISKY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)—Documents made public last night by the State Department disclose that former British Prime Minister Churchill was not pleased with the selection of Yalta as the site for his 1945 conference with President Roosevelt and Soviet Premier Stalin.

There had been prolonged negotiations over the site among the Western Allies and the Russians. The late Harry L. Hopkins, special assistant to Roosevelt, wrote to the President shortly before the conference that he had talked with Churchill about the matter. Hopkins continued:

"He says that if we had spent 10 years on research, we could not have found a worse place in the world than Magneto (code name for Yalta) but that he feels that he can survive it by bringing an adequate supply of whisky. He claims it is good for typhus and deadly on lice which thrive in those parts."

BIG SNOW CREATES 'EMERGENCY' IN 2 ALASKAN CITIES

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Dec. 30 (AP)—Two Alaska cities were in a "state of emergency" today as snow continued to pile up in the territory's worst winter storm in 20 years.

From Cordova on Prince William sound to Fairbanks in central Alaska, roads and highways were blocked, rail travel restricted and airports closed.

With 40 inches on the ground and more snow falling, Mayor Ken Hinchey of Anchorage, Alaska's largest city, called on its 50,000 residents to shut down their businesses and remain in their homes.

In a 24-hour period ending at 5 p.m. yesterday, 17.2 inches of snow fell at Anchorage and since Monday 28 inches have fallen. The total fall this winter has been 64.3 inches, or 35.7 inches more than this time a year ago.

Emergency condition also existed at Cordova where rain followed days of heavy snow. Drifts stalled a passenger train at Healy and a freight train was tied up at Curry. The weather bureau said 23.6 inches of snow had fallen at Fairbanks since Dec. 1, the heaviest since 1936.

CONGRESS GROUP URGES AGAINST TAX CUT IN 1956

Suggests Payment on Debt Instead, Holds Out Hope for Slashes in Next 10 Years.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)—A Senate-House Economic subcommittee today held up a go-slow sign against any precipitate tax-cutting moves in the 1956 congressional session.

"A tax rate reduction next year in the face of a booming economy might well be inflationary," said a report signed by two Democrats and two Republicans on the tax policy subcommittee and made public last night.

The report said that wise tax policy calls for rates high enough in boom times to pay off some of the federal debt and soak up excess purchasing power. On the other hand, rates should be lowered in times of economic setback to pump more money into the economy, it said. The subcommittee noted Congress voted tax reductions in 1954 when there was a mild recession.

The report held out hope, however, that if things go well in the next 10 years, taxes may be cut "perhaps by as much as one-third" in that period.

81 Witnesses Heard.

The subcommittee conducted extensive hearings on the subject earlier this month, taking testimony from 81 economists, lawyers and other tax experts.

Its chairman is Representative Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, second-ranking Democrat on the House Ways and Means Committee which originates revenue bills. Other members are Senator Paul Douglas (Dem.), Illinois, who is chairman of the full committee; Representative Thomas B. Curtis of Missouri and Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona, both Republicans.

The tone of the report fits in with a new, cautious attitude on tax-cutting displayed by sev-

ARGUMENTS HELP CEMENT FAMILY, EDUCATOR CLAIMS

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 30 (AP)—Want to be happier and more successful? Then argue more, advises educator Dr. Leonard Riggleman.

"Family arguments are a good thing," said Riggleman, president of Morris Harvey College, Charleston, W. Va. "They can bring a family closer over a period of time."

Speaking yesterday at the Speech and Theater Conference, Riggleman added:

"Although arguments may tend to divide a family immediately, all members of the family will come to better understandings over a period of time and each member will have matured to better advantage for having argued his own point of view."

Arguing also makes a person more successful in business, Riggleman said because men's minds develop best through intellectual combat. Riggleman said it's good to argue even if you don't know what you're talking about, because "the lack of information or facts is no deterrent to a good argument."

STOCK MARKET RALLIES, LAST TRADING DAY OF 1955

Advances of $1 to more than $2 a share were frequent in leading issues at the close. Just before the final bell, buying speeded up and the ticker tape fell behind in reporting transactions.

Brokers had anticipated a strong market this week—the traditionally yearend rally. However, today's advance was the first sign of anything resembling a rally.

British Army Ends Budget Leak, Trucks Must Avoid Candy Shop

RIPON, England, Dec. 30 (AP)—The British army took firm action today to plug a leak in the defense budget known as "Mrs. Burrell's awning."

The solution was quite simple—on and after New Year's day, no British army truck will be driven on the same side of the street as Mrs. Burrell's candy shop—and that's an order.

The trouble began rather casually one day in 1946. An army truck tooling down Coltsgate hill swerved over the curb and ripped the awning off Mrs. Eva Burrell's store. The army acknowledged its guilt and in due course paid $75.80 for a new awning.

A year or so later another army truck rumbled down Coltsgate hill, swerved and knocked down the new awning. More paper work and the army paid again.

It was peaceful among the peppermint sticks and chocolate bars for quite a spell after that. But inevitably there came the day when—yep. The army paid for the third time.

In order not to tempt fate, Mrs. Burrell didn't even let down her third new awning—until it got mighty hot one day last August. The candy in the window was melting. Mrs. Burrell grimly unrolled her awning.

Crash!

The cost of awning has been going up. The fourth new awning—the army got around to paying for it just before Christmas—cost $100.80. That did it.

From New Year's day British army trucks will travel Coltsgate hill on the up direction only. Mrs. Burrell has ordered a new awning.

PRESIDENT SEES AID, MESSAGE ON STATE OF UNION NEARLY READY

Report to Congress Checked With Most Departments—Budget May Be Taken Up Next Week.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KEY WEST, Fla., Dec. 30—President Eisenhower had a conference this morning on the almost-completed draft of his State of the Union message. He planned to let the rest of the day take care of itself.

Mr. Eisenhower conferred with his chief speech writer, Kevin McCann, who flew down from Washington.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said McCann brought a "next-to-final" version of the message the President will send to the Democratic-controlled Congress next Thursday, two days after the new session convenes.

He told reporters the State of the Union message now has been checked with most Government departments. About all that remains, he said, are Mr. Eisenhower's personal additions and revisions.

Hagerty said the President probably would interrupt his vacation again next week to work on the message accompanying the budget for the fiscal year 1957, second major policy paper to go to Congress.

While here, Mr. Eisenhower also may have some conferences on various special messages, including one dealing with the controversial farm problem, Hagerty added.

He made it clear Mr. Eisenhower's activities for the rest of today, and for most of the time he is relaxing in the warm Florida sunshine, will depend on his own inclinations and the weather. He apparently now is free to do pretty much as he pleases, within broad general limits.

The weather thus far has been generally fair and balmy, with temperatures in the seventies, but threatening skies and a trace of rain apparently led the President to decide to stay indoors yesterday morning. He spent the time working on two oil paintings, one of which he was just starting.

In the afternoon, however, the skies cleared, and Mr. Eisenhower walked outside, without advance notice, and went across the street from his quarters to a baseball diamond for golf practice.

Mr. Eisenhower wore dark brown slacks and an "Eisenhower jacket." As he warmed up with a few swings, he took off the jacket, revealing a short-sleeved tan shirt.

He used five clubs during the half-hour golf session, 7, 9 and 2 irons and a wedge and chipper. One of the seven-iron shots went about 100 yards, and with this iron the President used almost a full swing, but no follow-through.

The first time Mr. Eisenhower went out on the baseball diamond, on Wednesday, he used only a three-quarter swing to avoid undue strain on the upper part of his body.

He still has not played a full game of golf, on advice of his doctors, and Hagerty said he did not think the President would use the public golf course during his visit.

After golf practice, Mr. Eisenhower took a long walk, inviting reporters along. In high spirits, he led the group on a two-mile tour of the naval base. The leisurely walk lasted about an hour but did not cover quite so much ground as Mr. Eisenhower's first tour of the base Wednesday afternoon, shortly after his arrival.

Near the end of his walk, the President visited for the first time his office quarters in the naval base administration building. Four rooms on the rear of the ground floor have been set aside for his use.

Signs Letters.

He was in the office a few minutes to sign about 20 letters, some personal and some official. As he came out, he started up a walk, then noticed a "66 passage" sign.

Turning to his naval aide, Comdr. Edward L. Beach, the President remarked with a smile: "You lead on. Don't get me shot. It says 'no passage'."

Beach replied: "The Admiral lives there. If he shoots you, he'll have to answer to me."

Accompanied by Beach, Hagerty, Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, Maj. Gen. Howard McC. Snyder, his personal physician, and reporters, Mr. Eisenhower walked down to the docks, where various naval craft, including submarines, destroyers and P-T boats, are berthed.

He talked for a while with Seaman J. E. Stringer, discussing the comparative game fish merits of red snapper and a variety which Stringer called "hog snapper," otherwise unknown in these parts. As he left, Mr. Eisenhower noticed one rescue boat which had been converted into a fishing craft, with sun chair in the bow.

"That's my idea of life in the Navy taking care of a boat like that," he remarked to Stringer.

Elsewhere along the walk, Mr. Eisenhower displayed interest in a Navy crane and the ruins of Fort Taylor, an old military installation on the base. He asked frequent questions of Comdr. Beach, then told reporters after the walk was over: "I hope we made some recruits for the Navy. If not, we'll just start all over again."

MAGAZINE CALLS BRITAIN THIRD IN JET FIGHTERS

LONDON, Dec. 30 (UP) — A semi-official Royal Air Force magazine said today that British jet fighters are a poor third behind their American and French counterparts.

An editorial in the Royal Air Force Flying Review said Britain has only three fighter plane types believed to be capable of flying faster than sound. The United States has nine and France has six, the magazine said.

The magazine said the Soviet Union has only one jet fighter that can exceed the speed of sound, as have Sweden and Argentina.

In a review of fighter planes now flying or scheduled to fly next year, the magazine compared actual and estimated speeds in level flight at 36,000 feet.

It said France's fastest jet, the Leduc 022, can do 1320 miles an hour as can four top United States Air Force planes. Britain's fastest is the English Electric P-1, said to be capable of 1036 miles an hour. The other two supersonic British fighters mentioned by the magazine are the Navy's Supermarine 844 and the Gnat 2 light fighter. Neither of the two has yet been flown.

300 NLRB FIELD JOBS DECLARED 'SENSITIVE'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP) — Boyd Leedom, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, said last night the board has declared about 300 field jobs "sensitive."

As a result, he said, the 300 employes will be given "a more thorough security examination."

Asked what the duties were of the employes just declared sensitive, Leedom told a reporter they were varied. He said an example of a man who should have full security clearance would be a field investigator who would have access to defense plants.

He said the number of NLRB employes now in the sensitive category is 500, including the 300 just added.

There are about 800 employes in the field—all under the supervision of NLRB counsel Theophil Kammholz.

MISSING NEBRASKA WOMAN FOUND DEAD BY HER SON

SANTA FE, N. M., Dec. 30 (AP) — The body of a woman found lying in an arroyo just north of Santa Fe was identified today as that of Mrs. Elizabeth Roberts, prominent 64-year-old Lincoln, Nebr., woman missing since Monday. The body was identified by Charles Roberts Jr. of Lincoln as that of his mother.

Roberts had sighted the body from the air. The son came here yesterday to aid in a search for his mother, who had been missing after leaving her husband a note telling him not to "spend money, time or energy" in seeking her.

Three Dionnes Go Home, Parents Are Not at Door to Greet Them

Quintuplets to Talk With Mother and Father Who Accused Them of Drifting From Family.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Dec. 30 (AP) — Three of the Dionne quintuplets arrived home by automobile today to talk things over with their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, who this week publicly accused the surviving quints of drifting away from the family, were not at the door to meet them.

A source close to the family said the parents were awake, however, and added: "Mrs. Dionne was very, very upset during the night."

In the car were Yvonne, Cecile and Annette, their brother, Oliva Jr., a 19-year-old airman, and two unidentified youths.

Purpose of the trip home from Montreal was to patch up family differences which in three days stirred up almost as many headlines as the near-miracle of the girls' birth 21 years ago.

Later, the quints' father met reporters outside his Callander home and said he hasn't had an opportunity to talk things over with them.

"The girls are very tired and they need some sleep," he said. "They traveled all night and the driving was miserable.

"I did have a little talk with Annette and we straightened out a few personal matters. We only talked about a couple of little things that only concerned Annette and me.

"We will probably have a long talk about things later in the day."

L. M. Edwards, trust company executive who advises the 21-year-old girls in handling the $800,000 fortune built up during their minority, said Marie, the fourth surviving quint, remained in Montreal because she is convalescing from a recent illness. The fifth sister, Emilie, died in August 1954.

"The girls are going to see their parents to prove that there is no question of them drifting away from their family," Edwards said.

The girls' father said Tuesday that for the first time in their lives they had failed to spend Christmas at home. He added they had not even telephoned. He charged the girls were "drifting away from their family" and blamed "outsiders" he would not identify for the alleged rift.

SAILS ATLANTIC ALONE IN 65 DAYS IN 18-FOOT BOAT

ST. CROIX, Virgin Islands, Dec. 30 (UP)—A 33-year-old West German physician sailed into port here yesterday after a lone, 65-day crossing of the Atlantic ocean in an 18-foot sailboat made from an airplane pontoon.

Dr. Hans Gunther Lindemann of Westphalia said his voyage from Oporto, Portugal, had been "uneventful" except for 17 days in which strong west winds delayed his progress. He said St. Croix, one of the easternmost of the Virgin islands in the Carribean, was the first land he had sighted since he left Las Palmas in the Canary islands 65 days ago.

Lindemann had subsisted on fish, canned goods and water stowed aboard his handmade craft which was described as "little more than a kayak with a 12-foot mast and sail."

Lindemann said he "wanted to see the world." He said he would remain in Saint Croix for a week and then sail on to Haiti via the Dominican Republic.

Uruguay President Home.

WOMAN CHARGED WITH $100,000 EMBEZZLEMENT

Freed on $25,000 Bond — Thefts May Total $1,000,000 — Noted for Her Charity.

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 30 (AP)—A spinster with a penchant for gift-giving was free on $25,000 bail today while auditors searched her firm's accounts for shortages that may total $1,000,000.

Minnie C. Mangum, 52 years old, who took courses by mail to improve her knowledge of accounting, was arrested yesterday after bank examiners had uncovered irregularities in the accounts of the Commonwealth Building and Loan Association. She was the $9000-a-year assistant secretary-treasurer of the firm and as such did the hiring and firing. She had been connected with the firm for 28 years.

The firm said Miss Mangum admitted stealing funds and that her account juggling operations had been going on for years.

What the precise extent of the operation was has not yet been determined. The warrant against her charged larceny of $100,000 in the last 12 months. But the state prosecutor said he had been informed there were shortages of $800,000 more over a five-year period and the audit was far from complete.

Known for Generosity.

Miss Mangum was known for her generosity to church and charity as well as a kindly soul with a lavish hand for a needy friend or relative.

Court records show that she deeded three Bayside lots valued at $15,000 to a relative on Dec. 22.

She is reported to have given $30,000 to a woman evangelist some time ago. She was an active worker in the Port Norfolk Baptist Church and gave nearly $9000 to the building fund. The church announced it would return any gifts Miss Mangum had made from the firm's funds.

Before her arrest she transferred eight homes, including her own modest bungalow, to the company. This $50,000 in real estate and other items amounting to about $200,000 have been recovered, the firm disclosed.

Controlled Account Records.

How did Miss Mangum manage to juggle the account balances? She had control of these records, a spokesman for the firm said, and disclosed she had worked out a complicated system of keeping them in balance.

In an interview a couple of years ago she said also she always tried to hire girl employes "right out of business school" so she could break them into her own system.

This morning, she came into police court for a preliminary hearing on the grand larceny charge. The state prosecutor asked for a continuance until Feb. 7 and the court agreed.

BRITISH EXPEDITION SHIP TRAPPED IN ANTARCTIC ICE

LONDON, Dec 30 (AP)—The British Antarctic expedition reported last night its ship Theron is trapped by heavy ice in the Deddell sea. The Theron, an 849-ton sealing vessel, carries 19 explorers, including Mount Everest climber Sir Edmund Hillary, and a crew of 19.

The ship was caught just inside the Antarctic circle not far from the spot where the Endurance, under British explorer Sir Ernest Shackleton, was crushed by ice in 1914.

A message telling of the Theron's plight was received in London by Rear Adm. Cecil R. L. Parry, expedition secretary. Parry told reporters the Weddell sea is always heavily ice packed at this season and there is no cause for alarm.

"They are awaiting a shift of the wind," he said.

JOBLESS PAY LAWS TO COVER 1,700,000 MORE WORKERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)—The Labor Department estimated today that an additional 1,700,000 workers will be covered by unemployment compensation laws beginning Jan. 1.

The additional coverage, resulting from changes in federal and state laws during the last two years, will extend benefits of unemployment insurance to a record 40,400,000 in 1956, according to Under Secretary of Labor Arthur Larson.

The federal law was changed in 1954 to require coverage by firms employing four or more persons beginning Jan. 1, 1956. The previous requirement involved employers of eight or more, although many state laws already covered business establishments with fewer employes.

During the current year, legislatures of 24 states changed their laws to meet the new federal requirement. All other states previously had provided for coverage of businesses with four or more employes.

GOVERNOR HITS U.S. 'MEDDLING' IN MISSISSIPPI

Says Pro-Segregation Citizens' Councils Have Nothing to Hide in Inquiry.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 30 (UP)—Gov. Hugh White said today that Mississippi's pro-segregation White Citizens' Councils have nothing to hide from Department of Justice investigators whom he called "a bunch of meddlesome jackasses."

A report that the Justice Department has the organization under observation to determine whether an investigation is called for did not cause any apparent alarm among segregation leaders.

Ellis Wright Sr., spokesman for the Jackson Council, largest of the more than 200 chapters in the state, said he "welcomed" the investigation. He was seconded in his statement by W. J. Simmons, state administrator for the councils.

Mississippi's outgoing Governor was more outspoken, however. He said the Justice Department "can't do a thing. They're just a bunch of meddlesome jackasses."

Wright said his group has "nothing to hide from the Government," and has "told the world openly our aims and what we stand for."

Both Wright and Simmons denied that any effort had been made by the Justice Department to obtain council records, membership lists or any other information.

Reports Hatred and Bigotry Is Growing in Mississippi.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)—Oregon's Congresswoman reported today that "hatred and bigotry, bitterness and despair are growing" in Mississippi.

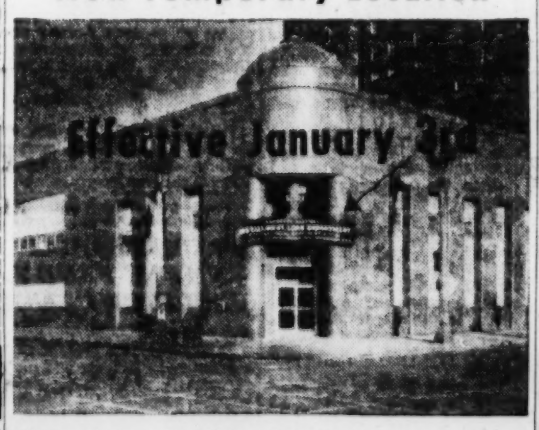

Representative Edith Green (Dem.), Oregon, said in a weekly report to her constituents that a recent visit to the state left her "prodounding discouraged."

Comparing Mississippi with Puerto Rico, which she recently visited with a House committee, Mrs. Green said she found poverty in both areas.

"But here (Mississippi) there was a difference—the colored people are without the cheerfulness and hope of the Puerto Ricans. Instead I found bitterness and a brooding tension."

1955 TRAFFIC DEATH TOLL IS PUT AT 38,500, 14-YEAR HIGH

Many Cities, States Take Emergency Action to Hold Down Fatalities Over Holiday Weekend.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30 (AP)—The National Safety Council today estimated the 1955 traffic death toll at 38,500—the highest in 14 years.

The estimate came as many states and cities took emergency action to hold down the toll over the next three days, a New Year holiday which safety officials fear will set another record for deaths on the highways.

The council based its estimate on a projection of reports of 34,690 Americans killed in traffic in the first 11 months of the year.

A later survey, taken yesterday by the Associated Press from incomplete state police records, showed at least 35,785 traffic deaths.

Most of the state records on which the Associated Press survey was based were complete through Wednesday or yesterday. Some were complete only for 11 months and in New York state, where official figures lag, they were complete through September.

Over-All Total.

The Safety Council figures that delayed reports, deaths through New Year's eve and deaths later from injuries suffered late this year will bring the over-all total for the year to 38,500. An actual count probably will be available in about a month.

The figure would top last year's Safety Council figure of 36,000 deaths and is 5000 more than the 33,417 United States soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen killed in the 37 months of the Korean war. It would be the greatest year-long toll since the record 39,969 in 1941.

The Safety Council listed St. Louis as lowest among the cities of 750,000 to 1,000,000 population with a figure of 2.7 deaths for every 10,000 registered vehicles. The figure was for the first 11 months of this year.

Traffic deaths totaled 3680 in November—10 per cent more than the same month in 1954.

Last weekend—termed "black Christmas" by safety experts—emphasized the mounting highway tolls and caused many states to order stringent enforcement efforts for the New Year weekend. A new record for any holiday in history, 629 Americans died outright in Christmas accidents. A.P. bureaus across the country reported today that 34 others died in the following two and one-half days of injuries suffered over Christmas.

420 Deaths Predicted.

The Safety Council predicts 420 will die in the three-day New Year weekend which would be a record for a New Year holiday period. The greatest previous New Year's toll was 407 over the four-day 1952-53 holiday.

Arizona, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin have ordered out the National Guard to help cope with the New Year's threat. In Illinois it was the first action of its kind in history, but Gov. William G. Stratton said it was necessary to avoid a repetition of the "terrific toll" in Illinois — 40 killed — over Christmas. The National Guardsmen will help state police patrol highways.

Texas, scene of Christmas's heaviest casualties, 53 traffic deaths, ordered highway patrolmen to make an arrest "in every moving traffic violation from now until Jan. 2."

Almost every state plans stepped-up law enforcement.

"We don't like to arrest people, but we'd rather they be in jail than in the morgue," said Arkansas state police Capt. Frank McGibbony.

Everywhere there are signs warning New Year's celebrators that "alcohol and gasoline don't mix." In Chicago, police offered a free ride home in a squad car to motorists who drink too much New Year's eve.

At Inquest in Tragedy

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MR. and MRS. JOHN B. ZAVIS at inquest today into the fatal shooting of their two young sons by Mrs. Zavis.

KEVIN ZAVIS

JOHN R. ZAVIS

felt that Mrs. Zavis should be kept for further treatment, the institution could have taken steps to prevent her release if she had shown "marked homicidal tendencies," Dr. Schmidt stated.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of homicide, recommending that Mrs. Zavis be held for prosecution. She declined to testify, saying in a low voice: "Everything has already been said."

At the inquest, Zavis tesified his wife had been very depressed Wednesday. He said her mind appeared to be "wandering."

County Patrolman Joseph Wohlschlaeger testified he questioned Mrs. Zavis about her reason for killing the two children and she told him: "That was the best way out—I probably loved them too much, and that was the only way."

Zavis told authorities that on several occasions his wife had threatened to kill herself and the children.

After her arrest, the 29-year-old housewife said she felt "people were looking down on me and the children" since her return from the sanatorium last February.

In her account of the killings, she said she took the pistol from a dresser drawer in a bedroom shortly after 3 p.m., went into the living room where John was sitting on a couch watching television and shot him in the left temple.

Carried Child to Couch.

Then she went to a bedroom where Kevin had been napping and fired a bullet into his chest. Mrs. Zavis carried Kevin into the living room and placed him on the couch, covering the body with a blanket. She put a jacket over John, who had toppled to the floor after being shot.

"I wanted them to be together," she explained.

Police said the children apparently died instantly. John was a fourth-grade pupil at St. George's Catholic School in Gardenville.

After the shooting, Mrs. Zavis sat on a chair in the kitchen for almost two hours, waiting for her husband to return from work at the U. S. Paint, Lacquer & Chemical Co., 2101 Singleton street, where he is foreman in the varnish department.

Zavis told the Post-Dispatch his wife had called him at the plant and told him to come home, but refused to explain why. She made a similar request when she injured her back in a fall on basement steps several months ago, he said.

"I pulled the car into the driveway around 5:10 p.m. and entered the house through the back door," Zavis related.

"At once I sensed something was wrong because the children were not there to greet me, as they always are. I usually bring them something from the bakery.

"My wife was sitting in the kitchen and said she had something to tell me."

Mrs. Zavis then informed her husband she had shot their children, saying "You know I had to do it—no one else would—and it was for the best."

Zavis rushed into the living room, saw the bodies and summoned police.

The pistol used to kill the children was bought by Mrs. Zavis, without her husband's knowledge, at a downtown store in September. When Zavis later discovered the pistol in the house, his wife said she wanted it because of fear of prowlers.

"That thing being around the home worried me sick at first," he explained. "But, after a while, the fact she knew it was on hand seemed to give her some peace of mind. She often awakened me at night because she thought she heard noises."

Mrs. Zavis wept at times as she freely gave officers an account of the killings, but showed no remorse. Her face appeared drawn and tired as she was led from county police headquarters to the jail. Her husband, still stunned by what transpired, attempted to comfort her.

Mr. and Mrs. Zavis sat together at the inquest, and he seemed solicitous of her, accompanying his wife to the witness stand. Zavis spoke clearly and firmly when testifying, but obviously was straining not to show his emotions. Mrs. Zavis looked dazed.

Zavis and his wife, the former Katherine Richards, have been married 10 years. Their home is a modest, four-room bungalow of white asbestos shingle with green trim.

EAST ST. LOUISAN ROBBED OF $1500 NEAR APARTMENT

Joseph Levitt, owner of the Mound City Meat Co. of St. Louis, was held up by two men today and robbed of more than $1500 at the rear of his apartment, 1115 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis.

Levitt told East St. Louis police he went out the rear door of the apartment to enter his automobile on a parking lot. He had inserted the key in the lock when the two robbers appeared. Both were armed with revolvers and wore stocking masks.

He was ordered to give up his billfold containing $25 and a brown paper bag containing about $3500 in cash and checks. Levitt said he was unable to determine the exact amount of cash but estimated it at about $1500.

Car Disappears.

After obeying an order to walk east on the parking lot, Levitt said he heard the sound of his car starting and saw it disappear down the driveway to Missouri avenue. It was found a short time later on a parking lot back of St. Mary's Hospital, about four blocks from the scene of the holdup.

Levitt said the money represented receipts from his business which he had taken home with the intention of depositing in a bank today. His firm, a wholesale meat business, is at 1558 South Thirty-ninth street, St. Louis.

Thomas Stone, a merchant, 3339 Belt avenue, reported he was strong-armed by two men last night in front of 5270 Enright avenue and robbed of his wallet containing $500.

Stone said he had just parked his automobile and was on his way to the Y.M.H.A., 724 Union boulevard, when he was attacked by two men, and knocked to the sidewalk. After taking his wallet, the men, Negroes, ran west in Enright. Stone declined medical attention.

Police believe the robbers were the same pair who held up the Skylark Liquor store, 1764 State street, East St. Louis, last night.

Leo Jerome, bartender, said one of the men held a pistol while the other rifled the cash register of about $100 and took a fifth of whisky. Neither man was masked, he said. They escaped in a stolen automobile which was found abandoned in front of Christain Welfare Hospital.

Filling Station Holdup.

James L. Moore, attendant at a filling station at 4515 South Broadway, was robbed of $28 early today by two men, one armed with a revolver and the other with a pearl-handled knife.

Moore said the man with the pistol entered first and directed him to lie on the floor. The robber then took Moore's money changer and some bills totaling $28. The second man made his appearance then and the two left together on foot.

Morris Bloom, operator of a second-hand clothing store at 4252 Easton avenue, was robbed of $20 by two men who entered the store late yesterday.

LEGLESS EX-G.I. DENIED RIGHT TO FACE ACCUSERS

VA Board at Hearing Says Evidence Shows He Aided Reds — No Witnesses Called.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP) hearings board told James KGutcher today it has evidence he aided Communist China and North Korea by his activities in this country during the Korean war.

It turned down Kutcher's plea that he be confronted with the witnesses against him. It cited a directive by President Eisenhower, issued during the Army-McCarthy hearings.

Kutcher, a 43-year-old veteran from Newark, N.J., attended the hearing in his fight to keep his $329-a-month payment from the VA for the loss of his legs. He suffered his injury under German mortar fire in World War II.

Kutcher walked into the hearing room with the aid of canes, and sat silently between ihs two lawyers as they argued with the three-man VA board. To Kutcher, loss of his benefits could cost him more than $100,000 during his lifetime.

Outlines Evidence.

Peyton H. Moss, chairman of the VA committee, told Kutcher "the evidence shows that you are and have been an active member of the Socialist Workers party since 1938." He termed this an organization which has been designated subversive and which seeks to overthrow the Government of the United States by unconstitutional means.

Furthermore, said Moss, the evidence shows that in July 1950 and in the summer of 1951 Kutcher attended a party-operated camp in Washington, N.J., at which he made derogatory statements about the United States government, praised the Red system of government and advocated that members attending the camp session cause strikes and try to get in key positions to control the United States government.

Moss said it thus "appears that you have violated" a law which calls for forfeitue of veterans benefits upon its violation.

Joseph L. Rauh Jr., attorney for Kutcher, challenged the VA's position. Rauh argued the VA camp had no authority to decide forfeiture before a man was found guilty of a crime in a court trial.

The charges come under a law which says "any person shown by evidence satisfactory to the administrator of veterans affairs to be guilty of mutiny, treason, sabotage, or rendering assistance to an enmy of the United States or of its allies shall forfeit all accrued or future (VA) benefits. . ."

Rauh argued that the case should be dismissed because no specific crime was alleged against Kutcher, and because the law under which the charges were brought does not show any distinction between aiding the enemy and treason—a crime carefully defined in the United States Constitution.

He said Kutcher was really being accused of saying things much less harmful to the United States Korean war effort than had been uttered by then presidential candidate Eisenhower, the late Senator Robert A Taft (Rep.), Ohio, and former New York Republican Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Rau said the moral of the VA's position is: "If you're a pensioner, don't exercise your right of free speech."

Disabled Veteran Says He Was Denied P.O.W. Pay.

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 30 (UP)—Joseph Hammond, a partly disabled Korean War veteran, said today he had been refused compensation by the Government for his 33 months as a prisoner of the Communists in North Korea.

Hammond said the Foreign Claims Settlement Commission refused to pay him the $2.50 a day rate for prisoner-of-war status because he "aided and abetted the enemy." He said he had $2507 coming to him.

Representative Thomas L. Ashley (Dem.), Ohio, said he will launch an investigation when he returns to Washington next week because, "from what I can gather, there has been flagrant abuse in Mr. Hammond's case of the time-honored right of the accused to face his accuser."

Hammond admitted taking part in some activities which might be classed as collaboration, "but it was only to make my captors think they had converted me to Communism."

He said he would be willing to be drafted back into the Army and face a court-martial in order to clear himself.

Teachers Hit Back.

YONKERS, N.Y., Dec. 30 (AP)—Yonkers teachers, denied a pay increase, have served notice that they are discontinuing all voluntary and extra-curricular activities. The teachers and board of education civil service workers were the only city employes refused a pay boost for 1956.

Heavy Overcoat Almost as Dead As Dodo Here, Survey Shows

Milder Winters, Heated Autos Listed Among Reasons — Trend Toward Lighter Suits Also Noted.

The heavy winter overcoat is rapidly becoming extinct in St. Louis, a survey of department and men's clothing stores revealed today.

Not one of five major stores questioned stocked the garment at all this year, and most have followed the same policy for several years. Like the dodo and the dinosaur, the heavy overcoat seems to have become unsuited to its environment, and about to take its place as a museum piece.

In more northerly places like Chicago, Minneapolis, and the New England states, there is still an overcoat business, retailers told the Post-Dispatch, although overcoat sales have declined there, too.

But milder winters and such modern conveniences as well-heated automobiles and busses have shifted local customers' tastes to the lighter tweed and gabardine topcoats, with removable zippered linings, they said.

Lighter Suits, too.

A. M. Schmitt, clothing merchandise manager at Boyd's, said his store had not purchased heavy overcoats for at least six years. The same trend toward lighter weight fabrics has been observed in men's suits, too, Schmitt added.

"There's a blue tropical worsted suit which we have on the floor—and sell—all year round," Schmitt said. "Nobody wants heavy weight clothing any more. America is becoming a tropical country. Both the climate and our way of life have changed. With one cold day and 40 warm ones, a heavy overcoat is a luxury which the average man can't afford and doesn't want."

Weatherman Harry M. Wahlgren, however, is inclined to doubt that this change in clothing styles—or the warm winters of the past couple of years—indicate any permanent change in climate.

"It doesn't mean a thing," he said. "A changing climate is a matter of thousands of years. If you go back to grandpa's time, it was just as warm. It's true that I used to wear long woolens, and I now wear BVDs. But I won't go back to woolens if it gets cold—I don't have any."

Other Stores Comment.

Other stores confirmed the fact that heavy overcoats are almost a thing of the past here. The last time Stix, Baer & Fuller Co. stocked one was four years ago, a men's clothing buyer there said, and the overcoat has been abandoned as "too heavy for St. Louis wear," although some cashmere coats are sold.

A Famous-Barr Co. buyer said the store had not stocked a traditional winter overcoat in five years, with tweeds and gabardines — many with removable linings—taking its place. The few requests received for the garment would not justify a store ordering a stock of several hundred, most of which would have to be carried over to the following year, he said.

"The heavy overcoat business has fallen off 85 per cent over the nation," Jack Ford, clothing buyer at Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney, said. "We haven't had any at all in two years. There is no demand for them—although we do sell some cashmeres and wool blends. With no snow to speak of, a man doesn't need a heavy overcoat, and he doesn't want the heft of it."

Wolff's Clothier's, Inc., a last stronghold of the overcoat, stocked a few of the garments last year but abandoned the item entirely this year, clothing buyer Joseph Reidel said.

3 YOUTHS TO BE TRIED AS ADULTS IN RAPE OF GIRL

Charges of Kidnaping and Attack Lodged After Decision by Judge at Clayton.

Three 16-year-old Ferguson boys who admitted abducting a 14-year-old University City girl and criminally assaulting her the night of Dec. 6 were charged with kidnaping and rape at Clayton today.

They are Acil McGee, 800 block Arline avenue; Joseph Hastings, 6100 block of Bermuda avenue, and George Lawson, 6100 block of Emerald avenue.

After receiving a probation officer's report, Circuit Judge Raymond E. LaDriere decided they should be tried as adults under the general statutes rather than the juvenile or "reformatory" provisions of the law.

The judge ordered dismissal o fthe juvenile charges under which the three have been held since their arrest Dec. 9, and said they should be charged as they were today. The prosecuting attorney's office immediately applied for warrants, and they were issued Magistrate Leslie T. Lewis.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney John S. Stevens said the complaint would be presented to the grand jury as soon as possible.

Maximum penalty for rape is death, for kidnaping 10 years.

The girl told of being forced to drink whisky, submit to three boys and then being put out of an automobile and left on the ground unconscious, in chilling weather.

She said she and another girl were walking home from basketball practice at All Saints Catholic School, 6403 Clemens avenue, at about 10:30 p.m., when two youths approached and asked if they knew a girl named Marilyn.

At that moment an automobile pulled up and parked at the curb nearby. The two boys grabbed the girls. One girl managed to break away, and the other was pushed into the automobile. A witness heard the girls scream and gave police a description of the car.

eral congressional leaders following disclosure of Administration plans to set up defense spending and other federal outlays in the next year.

Many members of Congress in both parties returning to Washington for the new session are predicting passage of an income tax cut bill, however.

Mills said his group hoped to find broad, general principles of tax policy which Congress might use in years to come.

The report made no specific suggestions.

Douglas Suggestions.

However, in a supplement, Douglas made specific recommendations, including a reduction in the income tax paid by those in the lower brackets.

The general report said:

"A tax rate reduction next year in the face of a booming economy might well be inflationary. Rather, tax policy aimed at stabilizing the nation's economy would call for applying the surplus to reducing the bank-held federal debt.

"If we succeed in moderating short-run fluctuations in economic activity, we can count on a steady growth over the next decade which will make possible within that decade substantial reductions in effective federal tax rates—perhaps by as much as one-third. Indeed, barring increases in Government spending programs, general reductions of tax rates will probably be necessary to assist in providing a level of total demand adequate for full utilization of all our resources."

Budget Figures.

The report said that on the basis of present information the Government will spend about 64 billion dollars next year. It added that the federal administrative budget probably will be balanced and the cash budget will have a surplus of about two billion dollars, mainly because of rising personal and corporate incomes.

The administrative, or conventional, budget does not count the billions of dollars that are collected for social security and other trust funds. The cash budget does show such items.

The surplus will offer a temptation to reduce taxes, it said, but such reduction may well serve to reinforce inflationary pressures:

The report started off: "While the basic purpose of taxation is to raise revenue to finance expenditures authorized by Congress, such taxes have an important economic impact; the higher the taxes the greater the impact."

It listed four suggestions which it called "basic standards in the light of which any and all tax recommendations should be evaluated if federal tax policy, a major economic force, is to conform to the needs for steady economic growth." They were:

1. Federal tax policy should recognize that the level of tax revenues in relation to the amount of government expenditures has an important bearing on the level of economic activity.

It explained that increasing taxes to maintain government spending during a recession "is a force toward deepening the recession." And reducing tax rates when the nation has a budget surplus because of inflationary expansion of income could make more inflation.

2. Taxes should have built-in flexibility so that as far as possible they can automatically stabilize economic fluctuations.

3. Federal tax policy should encourage the balanced growth of the economy, giving equal importance to consumer spending and investment. It should seek greater neutrality among taxpayers.

4. Federal tax policy should protect the competitive position of small and new businesses by providing adequate tax offsets to business risks and helping them acquire financial resources required for their growth and development.

In his supplemental views, Douglas said there are some loopholes which should be plugged and inequities which should be corrected.

With the extra revenue obtained from the corrections, Douglas suggested:

1. Reducing or eliminating certain excise taxes such as those on communications, transportation and admissions.

2. Tax the first $1000 of taxable income at a 15 per cent rate rather than 20 per cent, as at present.

3. Reduce somewhat the rates in the upper brackets of federal income and inheritance taxes.

SHOOTING DOWN OF SUSPECT STIRS STORM IN FRANCE

graphed by Chassagne and Jacques Alexandre of the Columbia Broadcasting System and "that at no moment did the movie men offer money to the gendarme or try to organize a staged scene with him."

The France-Soir account said the gendarme flushed the Algerian, who was unarmed, from a tent and shot him down after he had walked a few yards.

The government previously had not identified Chassagne but said the photographer had been charged with corrupting a civil servant and that the gendarme would be tried by a military court. After the France-Soir account appeared, the Interior Ministry said it had nothing further to say at this time.

The government admission further inflamed the bitter political rivalry between Faure and Mendes-France, chief opponents in the Jan. 2 elections of a new National Assembly.

L'Express had reprinted five pictures of the shooting from the newsreel film and with it a number of atrocity stories by reporter Jean Daniel. "The affair of the film is confirmed," the paper headlined today. It also printed a statement from Daniel charging French censorship in Algeria with hiding the facts of the campaign.

From Faure's side, Algerian Governor General Jacques Soustelle charged in an election speech at Lyon that the picture was made to support an "anti-French campaign" in the United States.

The newspaper Le Monde, often sympathetic to Mendes-France, said: "It is more than time that the government's authority be severely asserted and detestable methods of blind repression no longer left to the discretion of more or less responsible government employes or soldiers."

Le Figaro, which is more sympathetic to Faure, did not mention the incident in its early edition.

Tactics Criticized.

Mendes-France has criticized the tactics of the 200,000 French troops in Algeria but has made no specific charges of atrocities. He has been campaigning against what he calls Faure's do-nothing policy in Algeria and has predicted that a policy of force will lead to a situation worse than the French debacle in Indochina.

In Algeria, rebels yesterday attacked a bus on the highway in the Tizi Ouzou region. They kidnaped one of the passengers, a rural constable. His body was found 700 yards from the scene of the attack today with several bullets in his back.

While the two major factions wrangled over Algeria, anti-tax leader Pierre Poujade was getting a taste of his own medicine. His followers frequently break up speeches by politicians they oppose. Last night 500 Socialists in a crowd of 2000 at Narbonne howled down Poujade and penned him in a cafe for two hours. Police finally rescued him.

French Posts Alerted After Terrorist Attacks.

RABAT, French Morocco, Dec. 30 (AP)—French posts in northeast Morocco were on the alert today after a series of attacks by nationalist terrorists in the Riff mountain region.

One Moroccan soldier was killed and two were wounded in an attack yesterday on a post at Beni Oulid, 50 miles northeast of Fez. A number of other minor engagements were reported.

The action was the first reported in the Riff area near the Spanish Moroccan frontier in several weeks. Elsewhere the protectorate appeared calm.

Troops at Beni Oulid drove off the attackers with artillery in a two-hour battle. The rebel casualties were not known.

SENATOR DERIDES RED PARTY BOSS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (UP)—Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.), Montana, says he hopes Communist party boss Nikita Khruschev is "getting religion."

Mansfield referrred to Khrushchev's criticism of President Eisenhower's Christmas message beamed to Soviet satellites. In the message the President expressed hope for the eventual freedom of those nations.

Khrushchev retorted in a speech to the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) that "to pray for a change of regime in the peoples' democracies is a crude interference in the internal affairs of these countries."

Mansfield said Khrushchev was giving "a great deal of importance to a prayer" when he probably doesn't believe in prayer. He said he hopes this signifies Khrushchev "is on the way to gettting religion."

Mansfield said Khrushchev "had a lot of gall" to find fault with what the President said in comparison with what he and (Soviet Premier) Bulganin did in interfering in the internal affairs of India, Afghanistan and Pakistan."

Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, said Khrushchev misquoted him when he said "Senator Kefauver said the United States should give up outmoded forms of colonialism."

"I have said that the United States should disassociate itself from any form of western colonialism," Kefauver said in a statement.

"Mr. Khrushchev should look in his own backyard for an example of colonialism at work in the Twentieth Century, and quit talking about Nineteenth Century colonialism in the Western world."

Senator John J. Sparkman (Dem.), Alabama, said that Mr. Eisenhower in his Christmas message "did nothing except state what the whole world knows to be our feeling." He added:

"It is high time the Russians start fulfilling the promises they made at Tehran and Yalta to give those peoples free elections and governments of their own choosing."

Premier Bulganin, in his address to the Russian Parliament, called for a bar on atomic and rocket weapons which he said had been "recently developed into weapons of intercontinental power."

American officials were inclined to dismiss Bulganin's call for an arms bar as propaganda, but they expressed interest in his statement on rocket weapons.

ILLINOIS POLICE TO INQUIRE INTO FRUITLESS RAID

explained the room was part of his living quarters and could not be entered without a warrant.

"We went no farther because Carter told us we could not force our way into living quarters without a search warrant," Brantley reported. "He said he could not issue a warrant because none of us had any information there was gambling equipment in the room."

At Carter's direction the liquor license of the Ranch House was removed from the tavern. Carter said he would seek a hearing before Wetzel Harness, county excise commissioner, to determine whether the license should be revoked for Kage's refusal to co-operate with law enforcement officers.

Earlier in the day the state officers, with Reinhardt and Flood, had visited a tavern in the 800 block of Exchange avenue on receipt of a letter saying a handbook was being conducted there. They found no evidence of gambling in this raid either.

St. Clair County Judge William P. Fleming yesterday ordered Gordon Foster, nephew of gang boss Wortman, to stand trial on a charge of operating a handbook at Derby Inn, on the outskirts of Belleville.

Foster was arrested Nov. 18 when state police raided the tavern. He attacked the information charging him with being an operator on grounds he had no interest in the handbook and that the search warrant was faulty.

A similar motion by co-defendant Robert Earl Sheer was taken under advisement until Jan. 16 by Judge Fleming.

Three defendants in other gambling cases developed by state police were fined $100 each by Judge Fleming on charges of possessing slot machines. They were William Kueneke, operator of the Flamingo Club, near New Baden, and Matthew Kanaske and Floyd Chinal, arrested at Lollie's Club, near Trenton. The raids were made last Dec. 30.

BOY HIT BY AUTO KILLED; 2 OTHERS FATALLY HURT

Man in 3-Car Collision Last Friday Dies — St. Louisan Loses Life Near Hermann.

A boy was killed here last night when struck by an automobile, another person died of injuries suffered last Friday night and a third St. Louisan was killed in an auto accident near Hermann, Mo., about 65 miles west of St. Louis.

William Dunne, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Dunne, 5612 St. Louis avenue, died at DePaul Hospital about an hour after he was hit by a car in the 5500 block of St. Louis. The driver, Mrs. Katherine Link, 4100 block of Lauderdale drive, Normandy, told police the youth ran into the street and she did not have time to avoid the accident.

Andrew Riggins, 42, of 3179 North Thirteenth street, one of ten persons injured in a three-car collision last Friday night, died in St. Louis County Hospital. The accident occurred at Lemay Ferry road and Park Lawn avenue. His wife and daughter, Catherine, 10 years old, and his brother, William, and his wife, of Ellsinore, Mo., are still in the hospital in serious condition.

Mrs. Mary B. Royster, 73 years old, of 3315 Humphrey street, was killed near Hermann as she was returning to St. Louis after attending a funeral. An automobile driven by her daughter, Mrs. Thelma, Mennemeyer, with whom she lived, accidentally went backward down a steep embankment and Mrs. Royster suffered a broken neck. Mrs. Mennemeyer was not hurt.

comes to see me. I eagerly hope to get out of this hell and to the arms of my mother country as early as possible."

The Communists said that despite letters sent Liu by his wife and others there has been no recent response.

The Department said hospital authorities recalled no correspondence from Liu's wife. The expense of caring for Liu is being borne by the hospital, but authorities recently wrote Liu's father asking whether he could pay part of the cost.

The Department said it is checking the case and is consulting with the American Red Cross on how it should be disposed of.

Repeated Efforts By Hospital to Get Chinese Deported.

Dr. Emmett F. Hoctor, superintendent of the Missouri State Hospital at Farmington, said Liu Yung-Ming was admitted to the hospital after he was declared insane by two Columbia doctors, one a psychiatrist.

Hospital authorities and the University of Missouri foreign students adviser, Willoughby Johnson, who is now Chinese consul in Chicago, have tried "repeatedly" to get Liu deported, Dr. Hoctor said. "It seems that all we do is fill out voluminous papers, but don't get anywhere," he said.

Dr. Hoctor said the hospital staff and several Chinese students who have visited Liu before returning to their countries felt that he was unable to travel alone. The physician said Liu has made little or no progress since being admitted. He said that some of the students have served as contact with Liu's father. Dr. Hoctor said they have been trying to get Liu deported since the first year he entered the hospital.

2 AT WORKHOUSE HAVE JAUNDICE, ALL TO GET SHOTS

Immunizing shots of gamma globulin were being given today to the 53 staff members and 390 prisoners at city workhouse following discovery that two prisoners had infectious jaundice.

Six physicians and six nurses from the city's Health Department administered the shots as a precautionary measure. The two ailing prisoners were transferred to Isolation Hospital.

Dr. J. Earl Smith, city health commissioner, recommended gamma globulin injections after learning of the two cases of jaundice. The disease sometimes requires treatment of four to six weeks although it is not considered serious.

Four police officers were instructed today to get immunization shots after they assisted in taking a man found to be suffering from jaundice from the Stag Hotel, 5 North Ninth street, to City Hospital. The policemen are Cpl. Leonard Forsting and Patrolmen Jack Drazen, Thomas Baxter and Walter Sax.

$1,000,000 AIRPORT FIRE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30 (AP)—A fire, fed by large quantities of gasoline and oil, destroyed a two-motor Southwest Air Lines passenger plane and a Southwest hangar at San Francisco International Airport early today.

Damage was estimated at $1,000,000. The plane alone was valued at $500,000. Coast Guardsmen and firemen from San Francisco and three neighboring communities battled the spectacular blaze for more than an hour. Cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

MONSANTO CO. TO BUILD SOON ON COUNTY SITE

$5,000,000 Project at Lindbergh, Olive St. Road Was Postponed Earlier.

General headquarters office buildings for Monsanto Chemical Co., to cost in excess of $5,000,000, will be erected on a 250-acre tract at Lindbergh boulevard and Olive Street road, St. Louis county, a spokesman for the company said yesterday.

Plans for the project were first announced in December 1951 but were postponed in January 1953 until other facilities then under construction were completed and until officials of the company felt general business conditions were more predictable.

An administration building, three office buildings and a research laboratory for the inorganic chemical division will be built on the site. Construction contracts probably will be signed in the next few weeks, the spokesman said.

More than 1200 office workers, now in the main building at 1700 South Second street, in the KXOK Building at 800 North Twelfth boulevard and in the Central Terminal Building at 710 North Twelfth, will be moved to the new buildings.

Expansion programs for the company's two plants at 1700 South Second and at 8201 Idaho avenue will be continued, company officials said. They added that these two plants employ about 2200 persons and represent a much larger investment than the buildings to be erected in the county.

Officials said no manufacturing will be done in the county buildings. They said that erection of the new buildings should not be construed as a move away from St. Louis but rather as an expansion in the metropolitan St. Louis area.

Rapid growth of Monsanto, one of the five largest chemical companies in the world, has made necessary more space for offices, officials said.

Five of the company's seven operating divisions will be housed in the new buildings. They are inorganic chemical, consumer products, organic chemical, overseas, research and engineering. Eight staff divisions will be moved to the new location. These are accounting, advertising, law, medical, personnel relations, public relations, purchasing and traffic and treasury.

Oral agreement has been reached with the William H. & Nelson Cunliff Co., for construction of the research laboratory and with the Fruin-Colnon Contracting Co. for the other four buildings, company officials said.

WHITESBURG, Ky., Dec. 30 (AP)—Eli Lucas, 91 years old, announced the birth of his nineteenth child yesterday with the hope that "there will be many more children to bless our home." Thirteen were by his first wife, who died several years ago, and six by his second wife, whose age was not learned. Neighbors say she is "many years his junior."

32 POLIO CASES THIS YEAR, LOWEST IN 8 YEARS HERE

Only 32 cases of polio were reported in St. Louis this year, the lowest number since 1947, Dr. J. Earl Smith, city health commissioner, said today in his annual report. There were no deaths from polio, diphtheria, whooping cough or scarlet fever.

With Salk vaccine in widespread use, he said, "We can now look hopefully to the day when a case of polio will be as rare as a case of smallpox or diphtheria is today."

Dr. Smith noted that 25,000 pupils of the first and second grades had received polio shots by the end of May, with vaccine supplied by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, and an additional 15,000 between the ages of 1 and 15 this month, with vaccine furnished by the Federal Government. In addition, he estimated, private physicians inoculated about 30,000 in the latter age group.

The fact that there were three cases of diphtheria, compared with none last year, he said, "merely points up the continuing and everlasting duty of every parent to have their babies immunized during the first year of life, and booster shots during their pre-school and early school years."

1955 Not So Dry, Not So Hot--That's Unusual Weather Here

Earthquake With Minor Damage April 9 Added to Year's Variety — Mercury Never Reached 100 Degrees.

The weather in St. Louis in 1955 has been marked by a fairly large amount of rainfall and the colossal failure of the mercury to reach the 100-degree mark, both unusual meterological events here.

Looking back over the weather picture, which will draw to a close tomorrow, Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren pointed to the 32.96 inches of rainfall and the below normal number of days of 90-degree or above temperatures—only 57.

"It has been the coolest and wettest year we've had since 1951," Wahlgren said. "The average temperature for the year was 57.9 degrees and the hottest day was July 27 when the high was 97.

"In spite of some fairly warm days this month it is the coldest so far with an average temperature of 33.4 degree, and we expect tomorrow to be cold and clear, with the mercury ranging from 15 in the morning to the middle 30s in the afternoon.

"July, keeping some sort of tradition, was the warmest month with an average of 83.2." Low for the year was the 3 below zero temperature recorded Feb. 11.

"Farmers were blessed this year with the 32.96 inches of rain," Wahlgren said. "It's the most we've had since 1951, but still is considerably below the almost forgotten normal amount of 38.95 inches.

"A mere 7.1 inches of snow fell and not in the right place or at the right time for a white Christmas. Largest fall was 2.7 inches last March 25."

Strong winds May 26 caused considerable damage in the area and blew enough dust into the air to reduce visibility to 600 feet. A towboat pulling an excursion barge was sunk by the wind in the Mississippi river, stranding about 120 school children for a short time. The area was shaken by an earthquake April 9, which caused minor damage.

BIG-STORE SALES IN DOLLARS RISE 34 PCT. FOR WEEK

Department store sales in the St. Louis area were 34 per cent higher in dollar volume during Christmas week this year than the corresponding week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today. There was one additional day in the week this year, however.

The increase in St. Louis was the greatest of any major city in the Eighth Federal Reserve District, in which all department stores showed an estimated dollar volume increase of 27 per cent in the week. For the four weeks ended last Saturday St. Louis stores showed an increase of 15 per cent over the corresponding 1954 period, and for the period Jan. 1 to Dec. 24 the increase over last year was 9 per cent.

The longer Christmas week this year also accounted in part for a 21 per cent increase in dollar volume of department sales across the nation. Despite the extra day, however, department store sales were well ahead of 1954 buying, the Federal Reserve Bank said.

ONE DRUNKEN DRIVER SENT TO WORKHOUSE, ONE FINED

One man was sentenced to the city workhouse and another was fined today after Police Judge Robert G. Dowd found them guilty of driving when intoxicated. Drivers' licenses of both were suspended for 90 days.

John Patredis, a laborer living in the 5100 block of Delmar boulevard, was sentenced to 30 days in the workhouse for driving when intoxicated and fined $25 for careless driving. He was arrested Nov. 15 after his automobile struck a parked machine in the 3600 block of Lindell boulevard.

Monroe Brakefield, boilermaker living in the 2000 block of Rutger street, was fined $125 for driving when intoxicated and careless driving. He was arrested Dec. 17 after his machine collided with another at Twelfth street and Lafayette avenue. Both men admitted they had been drinking but denied being drunk. The police intoximeter indicated both men were intoxicated, officers testified.

SCIENCE GROUP MAY CONDEMN SEGREGATION

Members Must Be Free to Meet Without 'Unnatural Barriers,' Resolution Says.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 30 — The American Association for the Advancement of Science moved today toward a decision to hold no future meetings in cities that practice racial segregation.

A compromise resolution, stated in general terms but unmistakable in its effect, will be mailed to the 325 members of the association's council for a final decision.

Overwhelming adoption of resolution is expected, and the mail vote should be completed in about a month.

The resolution states that the association's objectives require that "all members may freely meet for scientific discussions, the exchange of ideas and the diffusion of established knowledge," both "in formal and informal gatherings."

'Unnatural Barriers.'

"These objectives cannot be fulfilled if free association of the members is hindered by unnatural barriers," it continued.

"Therefore, be it resolved that the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science be held under conditions which make possible the satisfaction of those ideals and requirements."

Of the 87 council members present at the meeting this morning, a disproportionate number were from southern states. This led to the strong expectation that the mail ballot would draw an overwhelmingly favorable vote.

An account of the closed meeting was given to reporters by George W. Beadle, California Institute of Technology biologist and president of the association, and Dael Wolfle, administrative secretary.

Beadle said a proposal that the association express general opposition to racial discrimination was dropped without debate.

Not Aimed at South.

Wolfle explained the decision to take a mail ballot as a move to oppose discriminatory condition "wherever and whenever they interfere with freedom of assembly and communication," rather than aiming censure at Atlanta or the South. Both said they intended to vote for the resolution.

Compromise wording of the resolution dropped specific reference to racial restrictions on use of hotels, restaurants and taxicabs, mentioned in various proposed drafts.

Beadle said a vote to table the resolution was defeated 51 to 30, and a vote to postpone its consideration for a year lost 50 to 37. The final vote, on submission of the mail ballot, carried 72 to 13.

In an address last night, the possibility of wiping out all the major deficiency diseases of the world at a cost of $1.25 a person a year was envisaged by Dr. Robert R. Williams, a New York chemist, formerly chemical director of the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Pellagra Being Controlled.

Pellagra already is being brought under control in the southern United States and in Yugoslavia through enrichment of corn meal, and enriched rice is eradicating beriberi in the Philippines, he pointed out. His own synthesis of vitamin B-1 helped make possible enrichment of bread.

Little is known about the exact cause of another deficiency disease, kwashiorkor, which is known among wheat eaters in Chile, corn eaters in Africa, rice eaters in Indonesia and millet eaters in India, he went on.

Kwashiorkor attacks young children, damaging the liver and the pancreas, and is ultimately fatal unless arrested or possibly cured by a high-protein diet, such as skim milk, he said. He noted that all the diets giving rise to the disease are of vegetable origin and low in protein.

Shortage of Fertile Land.

Dr. Williams expressed confidence that kwashiorkor could be eradicated from the world if everyone ate like peoples of the United States and Western Europe. This would be impossible, however, in India and other countries with shortages of fertile land, he said. He pointed out that a family requires one acre of land sown to rice for its support but seven acres to support it on meat, milk and other animal products.

Assuming that the disease is caused mostly by deficiencies of three amino acids—lysine, tryptophan and methionine—he suggested that the United Nations international children's emergency fund might help finance distribution of these additives when the cost can be brought down to $1 a child a year. Those amounts now cost $33, but he pointed out that the cost of vitamin B-1 had been cut from $10 to 8 cents a gram.

"It will be easier and cheaper than supplying milk to Asia's and Africa's millions," he said.

Raising the question whether such a program would not lead to future troubles of overpopulation, Dr. Williams suggested that the advanced nations have no alternative. He said:

"Hitler found that genocide would not work. No more will the injunction: 'Let them die of natural causes.' The dominant peoples in whose hands now reside the scientific knowledge and technology of the present-day earth are already outnumbered many fold by the dark-skinned races in need of our help. If we do not aid them, Communism will surely attempt to do so and will use these people as cannon fodder to destroy us."

Universe Flying Apart.

Faint radio signals picked up from outer space have provided new evidence that the universe is flying apart in all directions, two astronomers reported today.

Some other astronomers accepted the discovery also as corroborative evidence that the universe is five billion years old.

The observation was made with a "radio telescope," a cast-iron saucer, 50 feet in diameter, atop the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C.

A. Edward Lilley and Edward F. McClain of the laboratory, reported the radio wave measurements in a last-minute addition to the program. They finished analyzing their observations on Christmas day.

They detected the signal from a star system called Cygnus A, a gigantic collision of two Milky Ways 100 million light-years from here. A light-year is the distance light travels in one year at 186,000 miles a second.

Detected By British.

The collision turned energy of motion into energy of radiation, both light waves and radio waves. British radio astronomers first detected Cygnus A, and scientists at Palomar Observatory found its light with the 200-inch telescope.

The Palomar astronomers found that Cygnus A's light had a "red shift"—an increase in its wave-length—so great that they estimated the star system is speeding away from us at 10,500 miles a second.

Dr. Lilley and McClain now report Cygnus A's radio waves have lengthened in the same proportion from what they would be if the star system were standing still.

Their work marks the first time the "red shift" has been measured in the radio waves coming to us from space.

The amount of the shift has led many astronomers to put the age of the universe at five billion years, on the theory that the universe began with a mighty explosion of a central mass.

The identical shift of the radio signal thus supports this age figure.

ANTI-RACE BIAS MOTION REJECTED BY LAW SCHOOLS

Proposal to Expel Institutions Which Bar Negroes Fails at Annual Meeting.

CHICAGO, Dec. 30 (AP) — A proposal to expel any member school that bars qualified Negro students failed to pass today at the annual meeting of the Association of American Law Schools.

The showdown came on a resolution brought in by the committee on racial discrimination. With a two-thirds majority of schools represented necessary for adoption, the vote was: 52 for, 44 against, and 6 abstentions. Washington University and the University of Missouri both voted against the resolution.

The resolution contained this key passage: "If the executive committee finds that a member school has denied admission to an applicant whom the school would have regarded as qualified for admission but for race or color, the committee shall recommend to the next annual meeting that the school be excluded from the association."

Motion Approved.

The schools—membership is by schools, rather than individuals—then voted approval of a motion from the floor by K. M. Lewellyn of the University of Chicago that the executive committee "take care to further the objectives" of the association in carrying on its duties.

One of the objectives, adopted in 1951, is "equality of opportunity in legal education without discrimination or segregation on the ground of race or color."

The difference between that objective and the resolution which fell short of adoption today is that the resolution provided for ouster of member schools.

Henry Brandis of the University of North Carolina told the delegates that southerners will make "a decent effort to do what Mr. Cavers was trying to do, but not quite in the way he proposed."

David F. Cavers of Harvard was chairman of the committee which brought in the resolution which was defeated.

Report Called For.

The meeting adopted another motion from the floor instructing the racial discrimination committee to prepare a report on the experiences in recent years of schools which have adopted a "policy of equality."

Earlier, a proposal by the University of Pennsylvania law school was defeated so overwhelmingly that no count of the vote was announced. The Pennsylvania proposal would have made freedom from discrimination a requirement for membership in the association.

Still earlier, a point of order aimed at blocking any vote at all was rejected. This point, raised by George K. Gardner of Harvard, was that neither resolution had any relation to the association's purpose, which is "improvement of the legal profession."

DR. PHILLIP H. STARR QUITS FACULTY AT WASHINGTON U.

Dr. Phillip H. Starr, assistant professor of psychiatry and pediatrics and director of the Child Guidance Clinic at Washington University School of Medicine, has resigned his post, it was announced today.

He will become assistant professor of neurology and psychiatry at the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, Omaha, Jan. 1. He will also serve as a staff psychiatrist on children's service in the Nebraska Psychiatric Institute.

A 1944 graduate of the University of Toronto School of Medicine, Dr. Starr had also served since 1952 as consultant to the County Child Guidance Clinic at St. Louis County Hospital and as chief psychiatric consultant at St. Louis County Children's Hospital since 1950.

Howard L. Mingos Dies.

Flashes of Life

Now U Know.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—State Highway 187 runs a few feet less than four-tenths of a mile, but it is a part of Utah's highway network.

Officials decided it ought to have a marker. It reads "U-187, Utah's shortest designated highway." U-187 is the driveway leading into the state prison south of here.

The Texas Way.

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Caught ransacking a Dallas house last night, a former San Quentin convict fled to the garage, where he was caught. He complained to police that in California garages have a back door. He said if Texas garages were built that way he could have escaped.

"There ought to be a law to build back doors in them," he said. "Somebody could get trapped if there was a fire."

Sympathetic.

CHICAGO (AP)—A holdup man robbed Anthony A. Gorman, a cleaning shop owner, of $15 but returned it when he heard children's voices in an apartment at the rear of the establishment.

"Take it back," Gorman said the robber told him. "You have kids and need it."

Then, police reported, the gunman collected a total of $203 from four other shops in the neighborhood.

But Voice of America Stresses He Proposed Simultaneous Three-Point Program, Criticizes Soviet Distortion.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (UP)—The United States has officially welcomed Pope Pius's Christmas appeal for nuclear disarmament, it was disclosed today.

The United States stand was spelled out in a voice of America broadcast prepared two days ago and beamed overseas since. It was the first official United States reaction to the Pope's plea.

The Voice, which reflects State Department policy, emphasized that the Pope proposed a three-point program of barring nuclear tests, renouncing use of nuclear weapons, and creating an armaments control system. It said all three must be achieved together.

The broadcast accused the Communists of "distorting" the appeal by trying "to pull parts of the Pope's message out of the context and to make propaganda capital out of this."

The Communists have attempted to use the message to gain support for their position that atomic testing and use of atomic weapons should be barred at once without waiting until an adequate control and inspection system is established.

The Voice said the Pope was "profoundly disturbed by the dangers of nuclear war" and asked for consideration of the three essential steps together to prevent "such a calamity."

The broadcast said these three are "desirable goals" and "the achievement of all three in conjunction would be a great step toward real peace and real disarmament."

It continued:

"But just there is the problem: To achieve these goals together. Soviet leaders and Communist spokesmen elsewhere have talked a great deal about verbal pledges relating to the renunciation of nuclear weapons but unhappily have not shown an equal interest in the measures of control and inspection which would give force and certainty to such verbal pledges.

The Voice said free nations "strongly favor the renunciation of nuclear weapons in combination with effective controls"

In fact, the Voice said, the United States proposed such a step 10 years ago but Russia turned it down.

The Voice noted that the Pope himself warned against adopting only a bar on nuclear testing and weapons. It also reminded that the Pope referred favorably to President Eisenhower's mutual aerial inspection plan which Russia has cold-shouldered.

"It is noteworthy that the Soviets and Communists have not seen fit to comment on this aspect of the Pope's Christmas message," the Voice said.

FERGUSON TO BAR RUSH-HOUR PARKING ON FLORISSANT RD.

Parking on Florissant road in the business district of Ferguson will be barred during rush hours beginning Tuesday, Chief of Police E. R. Schmidt announced today.

The area affected includes a 12-block strip from Woodstock to January avenues. Parking restrictions will be in force from 6:30 to 8:30 a.m. on both sides of the street and from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. on the east side of the street.

Schmidt said the restrictions on parking were due to increased congestion in the business district. He added that violators' automobiles would be towed away in addition to fines to be levied.

WAKE UP, AMERICA!

IGNORANCE IS THE ALLY OF SLAVERY!

Prevent the Continued "Rape of Palestine!"

If any one of the Three Big Powers conscientiously wanted peace in the Middle East—there would be peace!

ISRAEL WANTS PEACE. Hundreds of thousands of Palestine Arabs live in peace in Israel—millions of non-Palestine Arabs want peace with Israel. Peace in the Middle East is being prevented by their "British-Arab-Foreign-Legion" overlords.

Peace is possible in the Middle East if the peoples of the Arab countries were permitted to vote for the rulers of their free choice in democratic elections, as in Israel, which will lead to a United States of the Middle East. (Britain fears that any war in this area will turn into an Arab revolutionary war against the British, like our own of 1776).

The English are a trustworthy and honorable people but they are the victims of their own misleaders.

NOT ALL OF THE NAZIS LIVED IN GERMANY. NAZIS EXIST AND LIVE TODAY IN MANY COUNTRIES, INCLUDING OUR OWN STATE DEPARTMENT!

The Nazis of the British Colonial Office, number one aggressors, seek to crush and enslave Israel by any one of three forces, viz: (1) physical; (2) economic; or (3) Armed Forces. Having failed by the use of pressures (1) or (2), they are now resorting to force (3) while pretending to act as mediator under cover of Chamberlain's "Umbrella of Appeasement."

In 1922 Britain's Colonial Office performed a Munich and amputated three-quarters of Palestine (45,000 square miles) which lies east of Palestine's Jordan River and called this British Military Base "Trans-Jordan."

In 1948 Trans-Jordan's British Army pushed its frontiers across the Jordan River into Israel's mid-section to the tune of adding another 3,000 square miles to Trans-Jordan, in defiance of the UN Palestine Resolutions. At that time Egypt, (aggressor No. 2), also pushed beyond its borders into Palestine in British jeeps and confiscated the Gaza Strip lying in the westerly part of Palestine to establish the Western pincer-end of Britain's nut-cracker movement.

Is it any wonder then, that Israel refuses to commit suicide by permitting the ends of these two pincers from being drawn closer together by surrendering the southern part of Israel, called the Negev area, to either Trans-Jordan, or any other aggressor.

The Hitlers who sought to enslave and destroy Israel in the past are of the same type who oppose Israel today, except that they give different reasons.

Do you recall all the false reasons Britain gave for refusing to permit Jews to flee from Germany before 1939 and enter Palestine?

Or why she wouldn't permit Jews to escape from the concentration camps and enter Palestine during World War II?

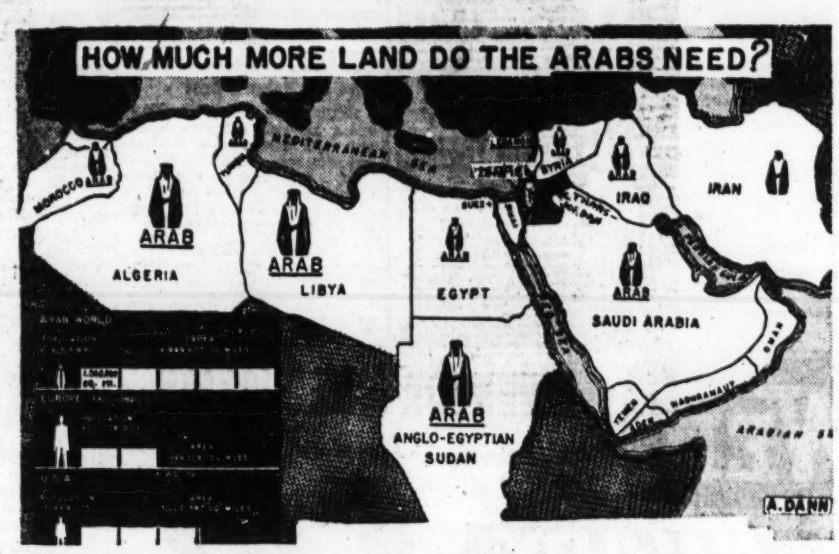

. . . or why Britain, while trustee under the Palestine mandate disarmed Jews of their defensive weapons a few days before the Arabs launched their program, like the one at the wailing wall in the 1930's. (Read the report of Senators Copeland, Hastings and Austin in the 1937 Congressional Record of their findings of British atrocities* in Palestine.)

Or why she caused boatloads of Jewish refugees to drown in the Mediterranean Sea?

. . . Like the two boats, named "Patria" and "Sturma."

Or why she added insult to injury by trying to imprison innocent Jews in German concentration camps after the war was over and prevented the "Exodus" from landing in Palestine?

Britain's reasons for attempting to create a Jewish refugee problem are in a measure similar to her scheme for creating and keeping alive an Arab refugee problem.

THE ENGLISH ARE A BRAVE AND VALIANT PEOPLE; BUT

The British Colonial Office Nazis should be tried like the other Nurenberg criminals for their past crimes and their continued raids into Israel. In the meantime they should be exposed before the court of world public opinion.

Ever since Britain's first scheme for the partition of Palestine in 1922, she arbitrarily assumes the right to re-partition, re-subdivide, and enslave the remainder of Palestine with the same false promises, but under different names—viz. Mandate, White Papers, Investigating Commissions, Partition Schemes, Trusteeship, Armistice Commissions, United Nations Observers Commissions, etc., etc., etc.

WHO GAVE HER THIS RIGHT?

History teaches that Britain has used partition schemes for hundreds of years in very country over which she assumed domain, INCLUDING OUR OWN. A few of the better known examples are:

North and South Ireland
India and Pakistan
North and South Africa
Egypt and Sudan
United States and Canada

(She tried to impose an East and West of the Mississippi River like Trans- and Cis-Jordan on George Washington, but he refused to buy it.)

The very name "Trans-Jordan" (or Egypt, in her name) belies her right to any more of the territory on the Cis-Jordan. (This side of Jordan) viz Israel.

Taking away more land from little Israel and adding to the vast millions of square miles of uninhabited Arab wasteland does not enrich the Arab countries, but makes Israel more poor, indeed. Like stealing pennies from the underprivileged to give to those who have millions.

How long will the Colonial Office Nazis be permitted to finance their "British - Arab - Legion" aggression against Israel with American "loans:" billions of American dollars which she never repaid and never expects to repay? Isn't this British taxation of Americans via mis-representation? Britain has no right to control our state department.

Britain acts the part of the underdog and pretends that she has been kicked out of the very countries she continues to control via force 1, 2, or 3, as previously described. This pretended weakness is British propaganda that works like a cancer, and is her most powerful secret weapon. (Exposure would detonate it).

The latest British propaganda line is the crocodile tears she is shedding over what she calls "Arab Refugees."

The Arabs are a friendly, God fearing people but their beautiful Koran and philosophy of brotherly love is being destroyed by their ambitious Muftis.

*For verification of British atrocities in Palestine see Palestine Senatorial Report published in Volume 91 in the Congressional Record December 17, 1945 on page 12352 thru 12367.

THE ARAB REFUGEE PROBLEM IS A PRODUCT 'MADE IN BRITAIN'

Hatred, like the largest fire, will burn itself out if it is not stirred up and fed fresh fuel, hence the flame fanning, false propaganda, about Arab refugees.

The Arab refugees could all live in luxury, if the Anglo-American Oil, exploiting imperialists would give them but 1c per gallon on the oil taken out by them from the Middle East.

Most of the so-called Arab Refugees are "British-Arabs" living within Palestine's original borders—with barbed wire fences and British machine guns preventing them from entering Egypt, or any Arab country.

Would there be an Arab Refugee problem:

1. IF . . . Britain had carried out the sacred trust she assumed under the League of Nations Mandate?
2. IF . . . This Perfidious Albion had not divided Palestine into the state of Trans-Jordan and Cis-Jordan?
3. IF . . . Britain had not issued "White Papers" preventing the Arabs from selling their land to a Jew?
4. IF . . . She had not as self-appointed mediator chosen over 15 investigating commissions with fixed orders to recommend further partitions of Palestine?
5. IF . . . She had not created the "British-Arab-Legion" called the Arab League to boycott Israel politically, economically, and socially?
6. IF . . . She had not armed the Arabs and urged them to fight against Israel and the United Nations Palestine Resolutions?
7. IF . . . Britain did not carry them to the outlying areas of Palestine in British vehicles to await a massacre of the Jewish people?
8. IF . . . Britain did not create hostilities and precipitate a war-like armistice, prevent the Arabs and Israeli from making peace, or if the Arabs had not attacked at the outset?
9. IF . . . Britain stopped meddling in the affairs of other countries, not her own, where she is not wanted, and where she has no right to dictate?
10. IF . . . She did not desire to control and enslave the entire Middle East and their oil? And if she removed her machine guns from the backs of the "Arab refugees?"

. . . In their fruitless efforts to conceal their insecurity and protect their selfish vested interests, the sunshine patriots and quisling assimilationists, who know not peace, are again accusing those like Patrick Henry, Thomas Paine, Terence MacSweeney, Ghandi, and the Dov Gruners, of fear and emotionalism, but those of stout heart and mind will by no act of theirs do violence to their heritage; with confidence in themselves and in their friends success crowns their courageous purpose as they repeat again and again:

For these are Bible times and, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit saith the Lord."

The British Machiavelies bribed and incited the Indians of America to raid and murder against the American settlers. She is likewise behind the "Arab" raids into Israel.

The English, like the Germans, are a praiseworthy people, but both have their war-like leaders.

Only an informed, enlightened World Public Opinion has the Atomic force to prevent the Colonial Office Nazis from enslaving and converting Israel into a Concentration Camp.

NIGHT PLANES DROP ARMS TO CYPRUS TERRORISTS

NICOSIA, Cyprus, Dec. 30 (UP) — Mysterious night-flying planes are parachuting arms and ammunition to anti-British terrorists on Cyprus, informed sources said today.

British security forces confirmed they were "investigating" reports that a clandestine arms airlift is helping provide the terrorist underground with guns, bombs and bullets. The informants said two loads of arms and ammunition were believed to have been dropped into the village of Lefkonico by a plane last November.

There was no information available on the identity of the planes or where they came from.

EAST GERMANS BEHEADED NINE PERSONS IN 1955

BERLIN, Dec. 30 (AP)—Nine persons were beheaded in Communist East Germany this year on conviction of being "enemies of the state."

The Nazi method of executing death sentences by beheading was revived by the East German Communists in 1950.

Communist courts conducted 120 secret political trials in 1955, imposed nine death sentences, 22 life terms and a total of 1818 years hard labor on 211 defendants.

The figures were compiled from the East zone press, from underground sources, and refugees.

The year's statistics do not include thousands of cases of "economic criminals" who were jailed for withholding crops from the state bins, selling food in the free market or smuggling.

INITIAL OUTLAY AUTHORIZED FOR 3 NEW SCHOOLS

Board Votes $13,500 for Plans — Over-All Cost Will Be About $576,850.

Funds for preparation of plans and specifications for three new eight-room elementary schools were appropriated yesterday by the Board of Education, meeting as a committee of the whole.

The buildings will be the first of 10 small primary schools to be built with money from the 1955 bond issue. Two will be located in the western part of the city and one in the north.

Figures presented to board members by Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey showed that the three schools would cost about $576,850. He said they would be completed in 1957, possibly by February that year, in time for the spring semester.

Hickey said the schools are intended to reduce the presently high pupil-teacher ratio in existing schools in the areas.

The North St. Louis school is to cost $192,650 and will be located in the area bounded by Sarah street, St. Louis, Prairie and Cottage avenues. It is to reduce the pupil load at Farragut and Bates schools. Specific sites have not been announced.

A second school will be in the region bounded by Page, Union boulevards, Clara and Vernon avenues. It is to cost $165,000 and supplement the Emerson, Dozier and Clark schools.

The third unit will be in the area bounded by Page, Shawmut place, Montclair and Easton avenues. It will take some pupils from Hempstead and Arlington schools. Cost is estimated at $219,000.

Hickey said plans for the three schools will be similar and the construction costs identical, $124,500 for each. The difference in total cost figures, he said, arises from variations in expense of buying and preparing the sites.

The board authorized expenditure of $13,500, or $4500 for each school, for plans and specifications. Charles H. Christel, a board member, said that since similar plans would be used for each project, a "substantial" amount of the $13,500 should not be needed.

V. Harry Rhodes, commissioner of school buildings, replied that the plans would not necessarily be identical. He added that money not spent would be returned for other purposes.

The board committee also appropriated $10,000 to finance an advertising promotion campaign to interest liberal arts college graduates in qualifying for teaching jobs. Some of the money, Hickey said, will be used to inform the public of school programs.

Board members approved a motion asking Hickey and other executive officers to study an auditing firm's proposal that the board maintain more efficient records by installing business machines.

The officers are to make recommendations to the board on the suggestion, made by the firm of Fox & Placht in the course of the annual independent audit of the board's finances.

Charles A. Naylor, president of Harris Teachers College, was given the new rank of director of college education, at an annual salary of $9900. R. M. Inbody, formerly director of secondary education, was advanced to the post of acting assistant superintendent in charge of secondary education, with a salary of $10,200.

Hickey said W. N. Sellman retired last week as assistant superintendent in charge of secondary and college education. Inbody has succeeded Sellman in an acting capacity, although the college responsibility has been transferred to Naylor, who is remaining as Harris president, Hickey said.

The board approved Hickey's recommendation that one room be opened at Marshall school, 4342 Aldine avenue, for additional facilities for teaching of slow-learning children.

More Yalta Documents Reveal U.S.-Russian Ties Were Breaking Before the Guns Stopped Booming

Secret Message From Stalin to Roosevelt Made Clear Intention to Put Poland Under Moscow's Thumb—Documents in New Book Issued by State Department.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP).

FRESH EVIDENCE came to light last night that the World War II partnership between Russia and the United States began to fall apart even before the guns stopped booming.

This was made clear with the publication of numerous previously secret notes and messages related to the controversial Yalta conference in early 1945.

Among these documents is a "secret and personal" message from the late Marshal Stalin of Russia to the late President Roosevelt indicating plainly that Stalin intended to have his own way about organizing a government for war-ravaged Poland which would be under Russia's thumb.

A dispute between Russia and the western powers—the United States and Britain — over the future of Poland was in fact probably the first major conflict of the long struggle that in the past 10 years has become to be known as the cold war.

Another message from Averell Harriman, then ambassador in Moscow, to Roosevelt, on April 2, 1945, reported growing "concern" over relations with Russia. Harriman said an "accumulation of minor incidents," beginning immediately after the Yalta conference ended, contributed to this concern. He cited Soviet resistance to a proposal for American "air teams" and a "naval team" to visit "Soviet-controlled territory for appraisal of bomb damage."

Concern Over China.

On another aspect of the foreign problems of that period, Patrick Hurley sent Roosevelt in February 1945 a top secret proposal that Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill meet Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek at New Delhi, India, to "clarify policies and strategies" and to boost morale in the China theater of war.

Hurley was ambassador to China at that time. The suggested conference never was held.

The vast bulk of the official papers in the volume were released last March in galley-proof form. It was understood at that time that all papers of substantial importance bearing on the Yalta conference were included. Officials said then that such omissions as were made involved material which could still be harmful to foreign relations or to publication of which foreign governments had objected.

Yesterday a State Department press officer said that the new documents had "turned up as a result of a final scraping of the barrel" at the Roosevelt library at Hyde Park. He said some new papers had also come from sources in the State Department and from other government agencies.

"None of these new documents changes the general picture," press officer Joe Reap said. "They help to round out the story and to fill routine gaps."

Book on Sale by U.S.

The documents all were edited by Bernard Noble, chief of the historical division of the State Department, and his staff. Noble spoke to the American Historical Society meeting here yesterday and announced that the Yalta volume had just been placed on sale by the Government printing office. Bound in reddish brown buckram it is priced at $5.50.

The message in which Stalin made clear that he intended to dominate the formation of a new Polish government—as he eventually succeeded in doing—was dated April 7, 1945. An American-British-Soviet commission had been set up in Moscow following the Yalta meeting and Stalin complained that it was not making any progress toward a solution of the Polish problem.

"Matters on the Polish question have really reached a dead end," Stalin said bluntly to the President. He blamed Harriman and British Ambassador Archibald Clark Kerr for the situation, contending that they had violated agreements about Poland reach at the Yalta meeting which the Russians called the Crimea conference.

Stalin's Argument.

In effect, Stalin argued that the number of Poles to be called in for consultation by the commission should be limited to five from Poland and three from the Polish government in exile in London. But he said that Clark Kerr and Harriman wanted to bring in "an unlimited number" from both places. He declared Russia would not agree to this and then went on to give his own interpretation of the Yalta agreement and make clear his position:

"The Soviet government proceeds from the fact that in accordance with the meaning of the decisions of the Crimea conference such Polish leaders should be invited for consultation who, firstly, recognize the decisions of th eCrimea conference, including the decision on the Curzon line, and, secondly, are really striving to establish friendly relations between Poland and the Soviet Union."

The Curzon line was a boundary under which certain territories that were Polish prior to World War II would be given to the Soviet Union. But the key point was Stalin's insistence on having a government that would establish "friendly relations" between Poland and Russia. Russia's idea of friendly relations clearly was relations dictated by Moscow.

Harriman's Anxiety.

The Harriman message to Roosevelt a few days earlier said that "aside from the major questions which are causing concern with the Soviet Union there has been an accumulation of minor incidents which started some six weeks ago."

He then cited the failure to get agreement for American inspection of bomb damage in Soviet controlled territory, including the Polish port of Gdynia, although "both proposals (air and naval teams) were agreed to at Yalta."

The Yalta papers previously released had covered in considerable detail the day to day discussion in the conference, including:

Stalin's demand for concessions in the Far East, Roosevelt's agreement, discussion of the possible postwar dismemberment of Germany, and Roosevelt's agreement to let Russia have two extra votes in the United Nations General Assembly.

One of the documents released yesterday was a memorandum made by Harriman on a conversation with I. M. Maiski, assistant Soviet commissar for foreign affairs, in January 1945. The Yalta conference opened on Feb. 4, 1945 and ended Feb. 11.

On Dismembering Germany.

Harriman said the Soviet attitude toward Germany as described by Maiski was that "Germany should be broken up although no agreement had been reached on the precise method."

"He did not go into detail," Harriman reported, "but indicated that the Rhineland, including the Ruhr, might be an independent state and there might be a Catholic republic including Bavaria and Wurttemberg."

Maiski also called for Germany to be "demilitarized" industrially with a possible cut in steel production to "25 per cent of German's previous production."

Expansion of agricultural production and light industries would be emphasized, the Russian suggested. Germany would be permitted an export trade in order to finance "required imports."

In connection with reparations—which later became a subject of major dispute between Russia and the West—Maiski was reported as saying that Russia would not ask reparations requiring strong heavy industries.

"Their demands," Harriman reported, "would be to strip Germany's heavy industries of their machinery and equipment and other products not involving heavy industry."

Discussed Slave Labor.

Maiski spoke of taking such reparations over a 10-year period. He also "classified German labor as part of reparations," according to Harriman.

In this connection Maiski spoke of using 2,000,000 or 3,000,000 Germans as labor reparations, including "lesser war criminals as well as those active in the Nazi party."

"He said," Harriman went on, "they had been talking principally about men but some women might be required. They should come to Russia or other countries to work for a definite period and they considered it should be the same period as the reparations payments, say 10 years."

By the United Press.

A document from Acting Secretary of State Joseph Grew to Secretary of State Cordell Hull at about the time of the Yalta meeting cast light on a Communist falsehood about its designs on China. Grew said a message from Ambassador Hurley in China reported Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov had insisted "that Russians are not supporting Chinese Communists, who are not Communists at all." The envoy said Molotov also stated that Russia wanted no concessions in China.

Another document showed that Britain and the United States were concerned well before Yalta about Russian efforts to gain an oil concession in Iran. A 1944 message from the United States embassy in London said a British official had warned that Russia's winning the concession would be "a major step in the inclusion of northern Iran permanently in the Russian orbit as a sphere of influence."

Spellman to See Chiang.

TAIPEI, Formosa, Dec. 30 (AP) — Cardinal Francis Spellman, archbishop of New York, arrived today from Okinawa for meetings, receptions and a talk and dinner with President Chiang Kai-shek. The cardinal will visit the cruiser St. Paul, flagship of the United States Seventh fleet, tomorrow.

Secret Report On Roosevelt Cabinet Feuds

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP).

HIGH level troubles in the Roosevelt Administration, involving Secretaries Hull and Morgenthau, were officially documented last night with the release of secret papers bearing on the Yalta conference of 1945.

The Cabinet split between Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau Jr. and the late Secretary of State Cordell Hull had been reported publicly soon after it developed in 1944. The issue at the core of the trouble was a proposal by Morgenthau to impose a tough peace on Germany.

There were also reports at the time of serious difficulties between Hull and his Undersecretary of State, Sumner Welles, over what Hull considered to be a usurpation of authority by Welles in handling Latin American affairs.

New information on both of these situations now becomes public with the release of a memorandum prepared by Harry Dexter White who was at that time, September 1944, an assistant to Morgenthau.

White himself later became a bitterly controversial figure. He was accused of Communist activities and of spying for Russia, both of which charges he denied in 1948 a few days before his death. Still later the Eisenhower Adminstration's Attorney General, Herbert Brownell, called him a Russian spy.

Meeting in Hull's Office.

The lengthy memorandum was prepared by White as a report for Morgenthau on a meeting in Hull's office on Sept. 20, 1944. White and Morgenthau were both present. So were Secretary of War Henry Stimson, H. Freeman Matthews of the State Department and John J. McCloy of the War Department.

The meeting was held at Morgenthau's request so that he could report on his participation in the Quebec conference between Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill, which had been held a short time before.

Morgenthau's presence at this conference and Hull's absence had started rumors flying, since it appeared that as Secretary of State Hull should have been present.

"The meeting began," White reported, "by Secretary Hull pointing to a letter which he had on his desk which he said was an intercept from a high South American official to his government describing a meeting at Welles's home of high Latin American officials in which American policy toward Latin America and toward the Argentine was discussed.

"Hull appeared to be quite angry at the fact that Welles 'seemed to be operating a second State Department' unofficially and that the President could stop him but didn't."

Since this was about a year after Welles had resigned as Under Secretary of State, Hull presumably meant that Welles was attempting to carry on foreign policy, as a private citizen.

About-Face by Churchill.

Morgenthau then reported on his role in the Quebec conference—which was to advocate adoption by Roosevelt and Churchill of his plans for postwar Germany. Hull and the State Department later opposed these plans on the ground that they did not provide for a workable Germany and United States policy developed in the direction of reconstituting Germany as an effective European nation.

In the meeting, however, Morgenthau produced a copy of his proposal initialed by Churchill and Roosevelt.

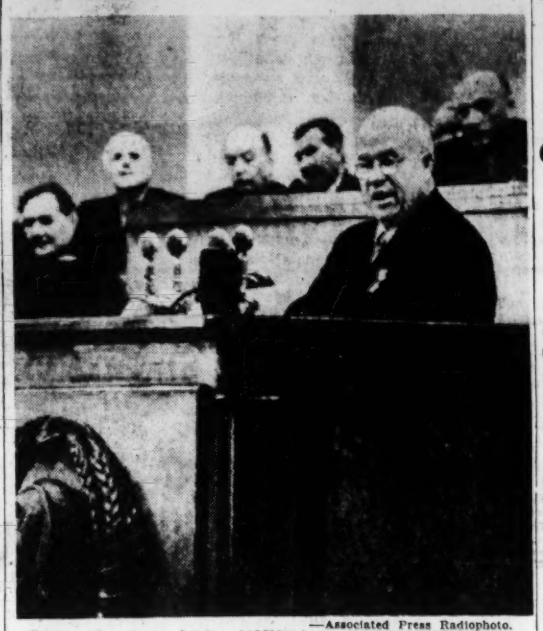

Hull "wanted to know how important decisions on Germany could be reached without participation of the Russians."

Morgenthau "made clear that Churchill had first opposed the Treasury plan of handling the Ruhr and the Saar (major industrial areas of Germany which Morgenthau wainted largely dismantled) and described how Churchill reversed himself the following day and how (British Foreign Minister) Eden had objected strenuously to Churchill's reversal."

Morgenthau, according to White, "repeated Churchill's remarks to Eden that 'if it is between the British and German people, I am for the British . . . and I don't want you running back to the war cabinet trying to unsell this proposal before I get there. I want to talk to them first about this."

Both the Hull-Morgenthau dispute and the Hull-Welles troubles came to showdowns and the President backed Hull.

CABINET CHANGES REPORTED IN COMMUNIST NORTH KOREA

TOKYO, Dec. 30 (AP)—Communist North Korea has reshuffled its cabinet, the Pyongyang government newspaper Minju Choson (Democratic Korea) says.

Vice Premier Chong Il Yong was relieved of his concurrent duty as metal industry minister, the newspaper said. He was replaced by Hang Yon Chang.

Lee Chong Ok, minister of light industry, was shifted to a different position and will be succeeded by Mun Man Uk. Lee Hyo Sun, minister of state, was shifted to a different position and will be succeeded by Jim Ik Son, North Korea's supreme court chief. Pak Il U, minister of communications, was succeeded by Jim Chang Hup. Whether Pak got a new job was not disclosed.

Inciting Hatred A Soviet Aim, Dulles Asserts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP).

SECRETARY OF STATE JOHN FOSTER DULLES says the Russians seem to be trying to stir up troubles between free world nations "by inciting hatred and by offering to help one side against the other."

"To be a merchant of international hatred," he added, "is, perhaps, one degree less bad than to be a merchant of death."

Dulles's comments were carried in the magazine Nation's Business, a publication of the United States Chamber of Commerce. It and statements from other members of the Eisenhower Cabinet were included in a section of the magazine under the title "Election Year Report."

The Secretary of State wrote: "The continuing attention of the Soviet Union to its military power puts us on notice that, if we want to avoid war, our deterrent policies must be sustained.

"If ever we relax, then the danger of war will quickly reappear, and Soviet tactics probably revert to those of brutal, direct action.

"For the time being, it seems that Soviet leaders will seek to pursue their ambitions by means other than the use or threat of open force.

"Apparently, their present design is systematically to exploit situations where free world countries seem divided by historic disputes.

"There are, for example, the controversy between Israel and the Arab states; the controversy between India and Portugal with reference to Portuguese areas in south Asia; the controversy between India and Pakistan with reference to Kashmir; and the controversy between Afghanistan and Pakistan with reference to Pushtoonistan.

"In such situations, the Soviet rulers seem to be adopting the policy of stirring up these controversies by inciting hatred and by offering to help one side against the other either with arms, economic aid or political support."

Brucker Says U.S. Will Keep Okinawa for 'Many Years'

Army Secretary, Back From Tour, Saw No Sign of Imminent Attack on Quemoy or Matsu.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP).

SECRETARY OF THE ARMY Wilber M. Brucker said today the United States "intends to retain for many, many years" control of the island of Okinawa.

Brucker, just back from a trip to the far Pacific, told newsmen American military power in that island which faces the Chinese Red mainland "must be continued on a strong level and strengthened as time goes on." He declined to go into detail.

Brucker said that in a visit to the island of Quemoy, and in talks elsewhere, he found no evidence to indicate the Communists were preparing an attack on the off-shore Nationalist-held islands "in the forseeable future." Brucker acknowledged that this assessment disagreed with repeated warnings of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalists that an attack is imminent.

(East German Premier Otto Grotewohl, who arrived in Berlin today after a visit in Red China, said that country was ready to "fight" for Formosa.)

The Reds have intensified their artillery attacks on Quemoy this week.

But Brucker said he is convinced that "there is no disposition on the part of the Chinese Communists to test the question of what we are going to do" if they attack Quemoy, Formosa or other Nationalist-held islands.

Chiang Tugging at Leash.

Brucker said he found Chiang "not backward about urging more assistance and he is in full cry about his willingness to undertake any mission." Brucker said the Nationalists are "tugging at the leash, they also feel they are fettered." His reference was to Chiang's often expressed hope of returning and freeing the mainland of Red domination.

Brucker said that on his visit to Quemoy he saw "more troops per square foot" than he had ever seen any place before.

Control of the air and the sea around Quemoy "is not with the Reds," Brucker said, adding that if "anybody took it they would take it at a terrific price."

Troops in Korea Ready.

As for Korea, Brucker said American forces manning the line between North and South are at a "razor edge" of readiness. He added:

"If anybody thinks this is just an Operations Stalemate over there, they have got another think coming. If the Communists start anything we are ready."

Referring to reports of President Syngman Rhee's impatience to advance northward and free all of Korea, Brucker said: "He (Rhee) mentioned nothing to me about any precipitate action, about going northward, nothing of a threat or the slightest veiled word that he would take any action without consulting with us."

A newsman asked whether the Communists had brought in any new weapons into North Korea in violation of the armistice agreement. Brucker replied, "very, very definitely." He did not elaborate.

Civil Rights and a Charter

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It will be an idle, foolhardy venture and waste of tax money to attempt the projection of a "jet-age" charter for St. Louis, while retaining therein "stone-age" silence on civil rights.

Yet the furor in the press, the Mayor's office, Board of Aldermen, civic do-good groups, et al., does just that.

Much has been heard and written about compelling improvements needed in our basic document. Shrill noises over dollar savings through abolishing local "state" offices politically administered, job-consolidation, etc., have been sounded. And sinister, political patronage greed has been pointed at and sanctimoniously condemned as the uncompromising road-block on this highway toward civic advance.

But from no single source has come one solitary peep over this soul saving matter of vindication in that charter, of civil rights for all citizens.

But five and a half years ago a Board of Freeholders, headed by our present Mayor, submitted a proposed charter which was silent in every respect on specific civil rights. One of its committees declined to include even a simple provision prohibiting discrimination in city buildings privately leased for occasional public promotions.

Other offered civil rights proposals were likewise eschewed. That charter was vigorously opposed and soundly defeated.

Later came the weak explanatory wail that the error lay, not in the proposed instrument, but rather in allowing its submission on the day of the general primaries of 1950. And, apparently, no lesson save that has been learned.

If the new charter-leadership is afraid to face this jet-age challenge for human dignity, it should withdraw and quickly. For to continue its efforts will only result in a long, drawn out fiasco certain of defeat at the polls.

There are enough voters among minority groups affected by public discriminations to vote down any charter which omits provisions for civil rights. Why expose our city to further frustrating influences in this vital area of imminent, eventual charter advance? D. M. GRANT.

Initiative for Aldermen

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The chairman of the Democratic City Committee recently asserted that the big reason for the "failure" of the Republican party in St. Louis is lack of patronage, which he regards as the lifeblood of any political organization.

Does Mr. Dwyer's view represent an inter-party consensus? If it does, then our metropolitan community might well dispense with the services of both political parties.

If we St. Louisans have to circulate initiative petitions in order to get our City Charter amended, then perhaps we might also choose to adopt an amendment providing for the nomination of our Aldermen by initiative petition, and for their election from a field of candidates so nominated. DONALD DATES.

Mothers Work Hardest Now

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In spite of all the labor-saving devices we have now, the mothers of my age group lived easier lives than we do.

Instead of running automatic washers, pushing vacuum sweepers and cooking, they could get help who lived in the house and did these things for them.

When my mother wanted groceries and meat, she took the receiver off the hook and put in her order, which was delivered that day. If she didn't have a phone, the boy from the grocery appeared after breakfast daily and took her order. And that was all there was to it.

Now she would have to get the car out, drive to a far-away supermarket, follow the arrows in a maze to find a place in the lot to park and then push a cart around aisle after aisle to load it before wheeling it out to the car to unload it. And then another haul from car to house after she got home.

In those days children didn't have to be driven to school, Sunday school or even dancing school, because there were no cars to run over them —they could walk. They didn't have to be taken to organized play groups —there was room for them to play at home. Mother is being turned into a robot chauffeur. So many people going so many places and only one person to drive them.

It was even easier to get into St. Louis by public transportation—they had good railroad suburban service where mother could find a seat if she happened to over-stay and get into the rush hour.

Deep Question

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Is it possible that the last atomic blasts in Russia were used to blow out that great inland Siberian sea Russia announced some months ago she would blow out? Would our weather be affected if this were done? F. L. WINDOM.

Toward a Bond Program

Gov. Donnelly is to be congratulated. His budget staff is taking steps to specify in advance how the $75,000,000 state bond issue should be spent if it is approved by the voters. The voters, we feel sure, will welcome anything that can thus be done to modify the blank-check character of the fund request.

There is not much doubt that Missouri can use $75,000,000 worth of new buildings. Already the requests of educational and eleemosynary institutions exceed the funds that would be available by $30,000,000. When the Department of Corrections has submitted its estimate of building needs at the penal institutions, the total requests will probably amount to $120,000,000.

So cuts will have to be made, probably in the requests of each state institution. The voters have a right to know before they vote the bonds up or down just how the funds would be distributed if approved. Since the General Assembly will have to appropriate the funds, absolute certainty on this point unfortunately cannot now be attained. But Gov. Donnelly can at least present beforehand his own program for expenditure of the money, and his doing so will make many voters much more willing to consider the bonds sympathetically.

Such an advance commitment appears to be implied in the announcement of Assistant Budget Director William B. McGregor that his office will soon begin a series of conferences with the state agencies concerned, to review their building programs and decide which should have priority. If the Governor will then incorporate these priorities in a comprehensive plan for distributing the $75,000,000, the people will have some idea of what they are voting on.

The University of Missouri alone has requested $31,475,000 for new buildings. One project is the completion of the library, which was not only recommended by the Board of Visitors in 1944 but proposed by a State Survey Commission as long ago as 1929.

Missouri is the only major university in the Middle West without adequate facilities for art and music; is it any wonder that a Fine Arts building ranks high on the list of priorities? Enrollment in the College of Engineering has more than doubled since World War II, and is expected to rise another 60 per cent in the next five years; hence the construction of new laboratories and classroom space is urgent. Other departments have important needs.

So it goes, also, with the state mental hospitals, prisons and other institutions. All have compelling needs, the satisfaction of which would take far more than the $75,000,000 that is to be available if the bond issue is adopted. A balanced, fair program for meeting the most urgent requirements at all institutions should be formulated well before the voters go to the polls on Jan. 24.

How to Get There

To save wear and tear on our friends who staff the reference room at the Central Public Library, we set down this information: To reach Ste. Genevieve, go south on Highways 61 and 67 to Festus and from there on Highway 25, a total of about 65 miles. To go to Prairie du Rocher, use Illinois Highway 3 from East St. Louis (or join it three miles north of Columbia, Ill., via the Jefferson Barracks Bridge). At Ruma turn west on State 155 and shortly thereafter find Prairie du Rocher nestling under the bluff. Why this travel data? See today's Mirror of Public Opinion.

Vive Les Dionnes!

Papa Dionne to the contrary notwithstanding, we go along with the girls. It is the old celebrated debate of What Is the Younger Generation Coming To vs. We Have to Live Our Own Lives, which the latter proposition wins almost invariably and quite justifiably. From the picture we get of the 18-room Dionne home at Callander, with boys almost never present and then only to sit sedately while someone played the piano, we wonder that the four surviving quints waited until they were 21 to kick over the traces.

The picture of fun in the apartment of Yvonne, Cecile, Annette and Marie at Montreal, on the other hand, is an attractive one. We applaud the rolling back of the rug for dancing; while cheers are indicated for the decision to kick off their shoes, the better to jitterbug.

Children grow up. Youth will have its fling. Time marches on. These observations have been around for a long time now, and yet there are always some of the older generation who affect to be surprised by them. The Dionne girls love their parents, which is as it should be; but they want to [illegible] a rug, which is also as it should be. And they do seem to be growing up to be right pretty girls, don't you think?

Just a Little Loan

The United Nations and the United States both receive many unusual requests for aid, and maybe they can find some way to respond to a proposal from El Salvador. A group representing several political parties in that tiny republic says it will appeal for help. Not for money, not technicians, not trade — but for voting machines, and only for a loan of these.

Little El Salvador lately has been minding its own business and has not been much in the news. The Central American nation has enough problems of its own, including an unstable political situation, an overdependence on coffee exports and a high illiteracy rate. But the government there has finally promised an election as a "true example" of democracy. The Salvadoran petitioners think voting machines would make the example truer.

North Americans undoubtedly are in favor of making democracy work in El Salvador. We would even suggest a St. Louis loan of voting machines, if only the area had enough to make democracy work better around here.

Why Egypt May Heed Tito

Premier Nasser and the official Egyptian press greeted Yugoslavia's Tito on his arrival in Cairo as a friend and fellow-neutralist. This is about what was to be expected. Governments generally try to turn such state visits into support of their own position. And to a degree it is true that Tito has sought to avoid absolute connection with the Western or the Russain bloc.

Yet he broke out of the Russian orbit and refused to return to it just because Bulganin and Khrushchev came to Belgrade and turned on their best wooing manners. If only as a matter of self-protection, he has worked fairly closely with the West. And it is doubtful that he has changed his basic policy because of futile American opposition to a term for Yugoslavia in the United Nations Security Council.

It will be far from damaging, however, if the Egyptians really regard Tito as an out-and-out neutralist. That actually would make easier the role of Arab-Israeli peacemaker urged on him by Secretary of State Dulles. Since he had decided to postpone his Cairo visit because of increasing Egyptian-Israeli hostility and changed his mind only after Mr. Dulles visited Belgrade, it would be easy for the Egyptians to regard him as a Western spokesman. If they really believe he is speaking strictly for himself, his chance of success may be enhanced.

A Decision for History

The Russians are still mighty sensitive on the subject of their Eastern European satellites. That is the official interpretation—and a plausible one—of Nikita Khrushchev's complaint against the Christmas message sent by President Eisenhower to the people of those lands.

The President expressed sympathy for the "trials" which the people of Eastern Europe are suffering, and stated his faith that "right in the end will prevail to bring you once again among the free nations of the world." This amounts to "crude interference" in the internal affairs of Eastern Europe, said Khrushchev; it incites passions and intensifies the armaments race.

How much validity there is to that complaint may be judged by the fact that Khrushchev went right on to boast that the future belongs to Leninist teachings and that "we shall sweep out of our way everything that blocks the construction of Communism."

Is it "crude interference" for the West to express the hope that Communist lands will some day become free, but not "crude interference" for the Kremlin to express the hope that free lands will some day become Communist? The one is, of course, no more reprehensible than the other. Khrushchev has no ground for objecting to the West's use of a propaganda line so consistently used by the Kremlin.

The real question, for both the Kremlin and the West, is whether the continuance of this stale and somewhat childish propaganda duel offers any substantial rewards for either side. It is something like "My pop kin lick your pop." Actually, whether or not "our ideas kin lick your ideas" will depend in each case upon deep historical forces that are affected very little by the reiteration of boastful predictions.

Khrushchev touched the heart of the matter when he acknowledged that history will make the decision between the two systems, and when he again declared that "in our struggle for Communism, we will never start an aggressive war." Neither will the West start an aggressive war to liberate Eastern Europe or otherwise expand the free world. But if this is so, why would it not be sensible for both sides also to renounce propaganda warfare and efforts to incite subversion or insurrection?

Cold reality suggests that Communist nations, democratic nations, socialist nations, capitalist nations, and mixed-middle-neutral nations are all going to have to live in the same world for a long time—or perish in a common catastrophe. We would all be wise to get used to living together—even though we may not like it.

More Power to the Farmer

Real understanding of the needs of rural electrification is shown in a project at the University of Missouri in which the utilization of electricity on farms will be studied. A grant from the Missouri Rural Electrification Association will finance the work. The purpose of the study will be to determine ways in which farmers can increase efficiency and lower production costs by the use of electricity.

Now that more than 90 per cent of the farms have electricity, it may seem to a superficial view that the task of rural electrification has been completed. Actually it has only been started. Putting electricity to increased and new uses, heavying-up power lines and increasing supplies of power in response to increasing demand, are as necessary as extending the lines to those farms that still lack them.

The study which Mack M. Jones, professor of agricultural engineering, will make over the coming three-year period should be of large and continuing benefit to the farming community of our state.

Not a Year to Waste

The intimation that Mayor Tucker may run again if necessary to get a new charter submitted to the voters can be taken as a threat or a promise, depending on the point of view.

Meanwhile, it is a long 15 months until the next mayoral election and citizens interested in the city's progress will hope that the time is not wasted. This period can and should be devoted to the study of all charter reform proposals by a Board of Freeholders. Early in 1957, the freeholders can and should submit the results of their study, in the form of a proposed new charter, to the voters for decision.

Such is the timetable of common sense. Whether or not Mayor Tucker runs for another term, it must be generally agreed that he has supplied leadership for two great strides forward in St. Louis progress. Under his administration, the earnings tax has been secured and stabilized as a vital part of the city's revenue system, and a $110,000,000 bond issue has been overwhelmingly approved at the polls.

Now the Mayor has every right to ask that a third major step be taken during his present term—a vote on a new and modern city charter. This does not mean that his own ideas of charter reform must be adopted, nor in fact that any charter at all must be adopted. It simply means that a board of freeholders chosen by the people should have a chance to draft a prospective charter, and that the people should have a chance to vote on it.

This is not much to ask of the Board of Aldermen. The aldermen are being asked, after all, only to acknowledge the voters' right to manage their own civic affairs. The aldermen can do that by passing at their next meeting the ordinance to call an election of freeholders March 6.

Fish, Wildlife, and Water

As state water laws are being rewritten to bring them more realistically in line with present-day needs, the requirements of fish and wildlife should certainly be given due weight. The National Wildlife Federation says game has historically been neglected in water laws. It urges Missouri, and the 10 other states which have water-law revision commissions at work, to remedy this defect.

The riparian doctrine which this country inherited from England, in which ownership of water goes with ownership of land, is plainly impractical in many parts of the United States, and is getting more impractical, and in more places, all the while. The philosophy that water should be put to its best uses was developed in the American West and is a workable basis for law.

While Missouri is improving its statutes, every beneficial use of water should be well considered. And as the uses of water which are essential are separated from those which are desirable, the call of fish and wildlife deserves to be placed in a high category.

POLITICAL YEAR COMING UP

New Year's a la Francaise

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Three towns in three states, all near St. Louis, still celebrate New Year's with the French touch; 'La Guiannee' is both ceremony and song; custom has endured in Prairie du Rocher since 1772 and goes back to France of sixteenth century.

John W. Allen, Southern Illinois University Historian and President, Illinois State Historical Society, and Ed Habesy in Ford Times

There are three towns left in this country where New Year's eve is celebrated with a French touch. Appropriately enough, all have French names—Vincennes, Ind.; Ste. Genevieve, Mo., and Prairie du Rocher, Ill.—and all are within three hours' drive of one another.

The celebration has any number of names. Among them are La Guiannee, La Guignole, La Gaie-Anne, and La Guillonnee. When staged in the best tradition it combines the revelry of an American New Year's with the door-to-door masquerade of Halloween.

If this double-barreled merriment is the orthodox practice of La Guiannee, then the people of Prairie du Rocher are closest to the spirit of their heritage. The custom has been unchanged there since the Mississippi river village was settled in 1722.

La Guiannee is the name of a song sung during the celebration. Exactly what this title means, and how it originated, is the subject of many scholarly debates, but this doesn't especially concern the group of French residents who dress in gaudy costumes for the event, nor the spectators who follow them from house to house to sing for a pork backbone while a violin accompanies them. Usually, they settle for a good stiff drink, anyway.

At each door the leader, keeping time with his walking stick, sings the first verse of the song, after which the chorus repeats it. In the second verse they ask for a pork backbone "to make a fricassee." In the third they ask to see the eldest daughter of the house, whereupon the host throws the door open and everybody troops in, singers and spectators included. Inside they form a circle and complete the song. At the end the host has a bottle of wine or whisky ready. This is passed around.

At Prairie du Rocher, the group has learned from experience to bring with them a strapping six-foot trucker named Wendell "Tiny" Sausz, who acts as a sort of sergeant-at-arms. His job is to ration the drinks to the singers at each house. Before this restraint was imposed, the participants used to get pretty badly out of tune by 1:00, when the celebration usually ends.

A father and son team, Charles and Percy Clerc, are the song leaders for La Guiannee. The function is handed down religiously from generation to generation. Charles Clerc, now 80 years old, has been singing the lead for nearly 20 years. Charles Bise, 90, retired as violin accompanist last year after taking part in the celebration for 70 years.

At Ste. Genevieve, German and French versions of the song are popular, but the singers no longer go out to the houses where the candles burn in the windows. Instead they gather in a local tavern or at the radio station. In Vincennes the custom has been modified in the same way. The general theme of the song is the same in all three places, although in Vincennes and Ste. Genevieve the words are closer to the classical French.

La Guiannee is seldom the same in any community, but it has probably retained its authenticity in Prairie du Rocher because the town of 500 is off the beaten track and relatively isolated. It is cradled at the foot of a bluff overlooking the Mississippi and lives from the profits of a limestone quarry, its only industry, and the harvest of corn and soybeans from the fertile farmlands. One of the things to see in the town is the Brickey House which was built by Abraham Hagerman Lee who won the Chicago Opera House in a lottery in 1867 and sold it for $200,000.

Aside from its historic and scenic interest, Prairie du Rocher is at its best on New Year's eve, when enthusiasm for La Guiannee overshadows everything else.

The celebration is thought to go back to the sixteenth century in France. Townspeople there used to dress in their worst clothes and go out to serenade the rich on New Year's in the hope of getting at least a glass of wine free. Some historians think the custom goes back 2000 years to the druids of Gaul. Variations of this custom are found today in Germany, England and Scotland, where they resemble the trick-or-treat aspect of Halloween. On this continent the only thing like it, except in the three towns mentioned here, occurs in the provinces of Canada where the Society of St. Vincent de Paul observes it to obtain money for the poor.

La Guiannee is one of those customs that have a hard time staying alive in our kind of civilization. Down in Prairie du Rocher, however, it seems pretty firmly rooted. Hearing the song and revelers going from place to place, you get a pleasant feeling of being in an ancient and unreal world.

Pleasant Hills Are Pleasant

From The Pleasant Hill (Mo.) Times

A particular greeting to the editor of the Pleasant Hill Messenger (Pleasant Hill, Ill., that is). We have an abiding fondness for the editors of Pleasant Hill newspapers, and are brimful of seasonal good will for the gentleman who heads up the fourth estate in that identically named city. We have at least a few things in common, with him, and presume that he on rare occasion gets our mail, as we have had his.

Perhaps he would join us in an investigation of the Pleasant Hill News, published in Concord, Calif., from whose editor we withhold our greetings until it is better explained why anyone would publish a Pleasant Hill newspaper in a town not named Pleasant Hill. If the California editor has first named the paper, and intends making the town rename itself to fit—more power to him. But if it was just a matter of having an old masthead on hand when he started up shop, why that is just carrying penny-pinching to an extreme and we do not think he should be invited to membership in the Pleasant Hill press association, should the Messenger and Times ever start one.

Creators of Gulliver and Alice

SWIFT AND CARROLL: A PSYCHOANALYTIC STUDY OF TWO LIVES, by Phyllis Greenacre, M.D. (International Universities Press, 306 pgs., $5.)

"This study," Dr. Greenacre writes, "springs from clinical psychoanalytic interests and is intended primarily for psychoanalysts and readers already well-oriented in psychoanalytic theory and principles." She attempts to explain the universal appeal of Jonathan Swift and Lewis Carroll by drawing parallels between the two writers' lives and characters and the themes and characters (especially Gulliver and Alice) of their works.

The book is divided into four parts dealing in turn with Swift, Carroll and certain comparisons between the two, concluding with a brief but absorbing essay entitled "Some Notes on Nonsense." In the latter essay the author distinguishes between satire, parody, caricature and nonsense and points out that these all appear in both writers' works but in different combinations and proportions. Swift's strength was in his rough satire; Carroll's charm was in his fascinating nonsense.

As a specialist in a new field, the psychoanalyst still finds it hard to bridge the gap between his profession and the public. It is commendable that much of this study does not impress the reader as coming from a psychoanalyst's pen. Yet, only those who understand her clinical methods will fully appreciate the book.

Had the author chosen, it is believed she might have turned "Swift and Carroll" into a biographical diptych comparable in warmth and interest to Lord David Cecil's "Two Quiet Lives," now a classic biography of Dorothy Osborne and Thomas Gray. One may, however, skip the few chapters of clinical speculation and gain much from the life stories. Lewis Carroll will especially appeal to modern tastes because he is closer to our time than Swift, and perhaps more popular.

Thus, in spite of her stated intention, Dr. Greenacre has succeeded in writing a lively account, well referenced and in nontechnical language, which will interest many adult readers.

CHARLES GUENTHER.

A Trail Blazer in Atlanta

ADVENTURES OF A SLUM FIGHTER, by Charles F. Palmer. (Tupper & Love, 272 pgs., $4.)

Millions of Americans today recognize that it is better business to subsidize housing than to subsidize slums. Public housing projects have demonstrated that as slums are wiped out, insurance rates, police expenditures and crime go down while property values go up.

But it was different in the 1930s. Advocates of public housing were regarded as dangerous radicals, there was widespread opposition to government "interference" in the real estate business, and federal aid to nonprofit housing corporations was a newfangled device yet to be tried out.

In those days Georgia's Gov. Eugene Talmadge was spouting: "Slums don't hurt nobody. In fact, slums are good for people. Makes 'em stronger. You gotta be strong to survive 'em."

Prejudice of this sort was only one of the obstacles confronting Charles F. Palmer, Atlanta real estate man, when he set out to organize the first public housing project in the United States. He had to make his way through jungles of red tape, fight landlords who derived fancy profits from slum properties, combat lobbying by apartment house owners, convince politicians and educate the general public.

It took years of struggle that might have broken the heart of a less determined man, but Palmer finally succeeded, blazing a trail which has been followed in St. Louis and many other cities. He tells the story not in graphs or statistics but in warm, human terms. The number of public housing units built in Atlanta by 1940 is not just a statistic: Sherman's troops burned down 3500 homes in 1864, so that erection of 4996 apartments 76 years later meant that "Uncle Sam caught up with himself" and rebuilt more than Sherman destroyed. A New Health Insurance Try

WASHINGTON.

HEALTH INSURANCE is expected to become a live issue in the session of Congress beginning next week—as it has become increasingly so with the public—and with more chance of effective legislative action than hitherto.

Prospects are brighter, in part, because of the initiative taken by Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. He contemplates much broader Federal encouragement for expansion of private voluntary group insurance plans than was recommended by his predecessor, Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, and submitted to the Republican Eighty-third Congress by President Eisenhower.

Folsom

Secretary Folsom long has interested himself in health insurance and has made extensive personal research into its development, originally for Eastman Kodak Co., with which he was connected for so many years.

Plan Special Message.

Since he assumed direction of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare he has pursued the subject in discussions with many persons, including in the last few weeks officials of private insurance companies and members of the social security committee of the AFL-CIO, with whom he talked during the recent New York convention.

He and department experts now are drafting a program for submission to Congress by the President in a special message. It will go beyond the program proposed to the Eighty-third Congress, which was for a $25,000,000 revolving fund for reinsurance and the expansion of private health insurance. The bill embodying that program was killed in the House by a coalition of those who thought the measure did not go far enough to be really helpful and those who are flatly opposed to any federal financial aid for health insurance. The vote cut across party lines.

Three Fields Explored.

Secretary Folsom's ideas envisage reinsurance by the Federal Government to permit private insurance companies to expand their coverage and to provide a variety of policies not contemplated by the previous bill. These would include insurance for catastrophic illness, illness of the aged who are retired and are not now covered, and illness in rural communities where group plans are not available.

Secretary Folsom finds great interest now in the whole field of health insurance and believes we are ready for wide expansion in plans.

"There are three areas particularly that we are concerned with," he said. "One is the catastrophic illness.

"In the past we have seemed to concentrate too much on the shorter illness, being able to take care of 100 per cent of the cost of an illness for a short time. Then the person had a serious illness and his protection stopped. I think it is more important probably to cover serious illnesses than minor illnesses. That is what we want to get into.

Attention to Aged.

"Some of these group plans that recently have been adopted are very encouraging. They have a plan in which you pay the first $50 or $100, and then the insurance company picks up 80 per cent of all costs beyond that, and you pay 20 per cent of the cost and the insurance company will cover you up to a miximum of $7500. That is one field.

"Another field is taking care of the aged. We find now that many of these programs are not made to protect people beyond a certain age. We find that a lot of old people get along all right with pensions, and so forth, but when they get sick the money runs out and they are not covered by insurance. It means they have to go on relief or assistance.

"We are hoping that more and more plans will cover people after retirement.

Would Pool Risk.

"Then the other field is the rural communities where they don't have the opportunity that people do in the cities for these group plans.

"We are working in all those areas, and we hope to come out with some sort of program for reinsurance or pooling of risk which would encourage insurance companies to come out with different type policies and to expand their coverage."

Secretary Folsom should be able to get wide and general acceptance of his views on health insurance because of his background in business, his experience in social security and health and welfare programs, and his experience also as a consultant, from time to time, for the Federal Government. His first contribution was as a pioneer in assisting in drafting the Social Security Act passed in 1935.

3-DAY NEW YEAR HOLIDAY FOR MANY

Festivities Begin Tomorrow —Church Programs—Parties at Night Spots.

A three-day holiday will begin tomorrow for many St. Louisans, since New Year's falls on Sunday and Monday is a legal holiday.

New Year's eve observances will range from festivities in hotels and night clubs to watch parties in churches. Most St. Louisans, however, were expected to welcome 1956 with quiet home gatherings.

Warmer weather was in prospect for tomorrow and Sunday, with no rain or snow expected.

Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell, having in mind the heavy Christmas weekend traffic toll in the St. Louis area, ordered increased diligence tomorrow night by all officers, to protect pedestrians who imbibe too much as well as preventing motorists in similar condition from trying to drive.

All three radar units will be used tomorrow night and early Sunday, and St. Louis county police also have been alerted to prevent speeding.

The Missouri Highway Patrol will have all available men on duty and will use 30 regular automobiles in addition to the usual patrol cars. Nineteen persons were killed in this area last weekend, and "it is up to individual drivers to prevent a recurrence of the Christmas holiday massacre," said Capt. John A. Berglund, head of the patrol's safety bureau.

Licensed dance establishments in the city will be permitted to stay open until 4 a.m., but sale of intoxicants must stop at 1:30 a.m. The State Department of Liquor Control has announced the law will be strictly enforced.

Public offices and virtually all business will be shut down Monday. Department and many other stores will close at 4:30 p.m. tomorrow so employes can get an early start on New Year's eve plans. Stores with normal evening hours Mondays will be open Tuesday night instead.

Prices at hotels and night spots range up to $12.20 a person, $1 more than last year. This figure includes dinner, noisemakers, favors, floor show and dancing.

Most available baby sitters, hundreds of them, have been booked in advance for tomorrow night. The Missouri State Employment Service, which listed 255, said families are paying $1 an hour.

DR. J. P. PETERS DIES, WON LOYALTY CASE

Dismissal From Government Post Was Held Illegal by Court.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 30 (AP)—Dr. John P. Peters, a Yale medical professor whose dismissal from a Government post on loyalty grounds was held illegal, died in a sanatorium yesterday. He was 68 years old.

Dr. Peters, an international authority on nutrition who served occasionally as consultant to the United States Surgeon general, had suffered a heart attack last November.

The United States Civil Service Commission loyalty review board found there was reasonable doubt as to Dr. Peters' loyalty in 1953. However, the United States Supreme Court later ruled 7-2 that the board overstepped its authority. The court said it could not order him reappointed to the post because his term had expired in the meantime.

Peters, protesting his dismissal, said that the loyalty review board used secret information against him and that the people who supplied the information were not under oath.

Peters had been at the Gaylord Farm Sanatorium in nearby Wallingford since his release from a New Haven hospital three weeks ago.

3 COLLEGES OFFER JOINT SCHOLARSHIP EXAMINATIONS

A new co-operative plan for competitive scholarship examinations was announced today by Fontbonne College, Maryville College, and Webster College, Catholic women's colleges of the St. Louis area.

Under the plan, one examination will be held for the three colleges, each of which will offer ten four-year scholarships. Each scholarship is valued at $200 annually. Students will fill out a form stating their preferences among sponsoring colleges and scholarships will be given on that basis.

The examination, open to any high school senior girl in the metropolitan area in the upper fourth of her class, will be held beginning at 9 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 22, at Xavier High School, 3733 West Pine boulevard.

GEORGE W. EWING'S FUNERAL

Funeral services for George W. Ewing, Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. supervisor, will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard.

Mr. Ewing, who was active in Boy Scout work since 1935, was 51 years old. He died of a heart ailment yesterday at his home, 38 Tealwood drive, Olivette. Survivors include his wife, Miriam; his mother, Mrs. Mary L. Ewing of Wichita, Kan., and a son, George.

The estate of E. Lansing Ray, editor and publisher of the Globe-Democrat, was valued at $3,763,399 in an inventory filed yesterday in probate court.

Principal asset was bonds, valued at $3,312,200, represented chiefly by nine United States Treasury bills.

Other assets listed were: Insurance, $289,169; cash, $88,954; stocks, some listed at par and others at market value, $30,794; chattels, $8916; real estate, $33,000, which includes an evaluation of $21,000 for his residence at 22 Westmoreland place and $12,000 for his summer home; memberships, $200, and miscellaneous, $165.

Five months before his death, Mr. Ray had sold his stock in the newspaper, which he directed since 1918, to Samuel I. Newhouse of New York, but continued to hold the titles of publisher, editor and chairman of the board.

The inventory included an an undivided interest in an escrow fund held by the St. Louis Union Trust Co. as depositary under an agreement with Newhouse, dated last March 22.

Under terms of his will filed last Sept. 10, Mr. Ray left the bulk of his estate in trusts to his daughter-in-law and three grandsons.

Specific bequests totaling $88,000 were listed as follows: Washington University School of Medicine, $50,000; St. Luke's Hospital, Barnes Hospital, Christ Church Cathedral, Central Presbyterian Church, Princeton University and St. Paul's School, Concord, N.H., $5000 each. Two household employes were left a total of $8000.

OPERA BY MOZART TO BE PRESENTED

'Cosi Fan Tutte' on Symphony Program Tomorrow and Sunday.

The beginning of Mozart's bicentennial year of 1956 will be celebrated tomorrow and Sunday with a presentation of the composer's famous comic opera, "Cosi fan tutte" ("Women Are Like That") at Kiel Auditorium Opera House.

The concerts, tomorrow at 8:40 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m., will be sung and played by six soloists of the Mozart Concert Opera Group and the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. Vladimir Golschmann will direct the performances.

The six young American singers comprising the Mozart Concert Opera Group are Phyllis Curtin, soprano, who will portray Fiordiligi; Jane Hobson, mezzo-soprano, as Dorabella; Helen George, soprano, as Despina; David Lloyd, tenor, as Ferrando; Mac Morgan, baritone, as Guglielmo, and Kenneth Smith, bass, as Don Alfonso.

"Cosi fan tutte," considered one of Mozart's gayest and most melodious works, will be sung in English in a modified concert version. The principals will act on one-half of the stage and the orchestra will occupy the other half.

The action takes place in Naples at the end of the eighteenth century. The story tells how Don Alfonso, a cynical bachelor, derides two young officers, Ferrando and Guglielmo, because of their trust in the faithfulness of their fiancees. How the officers test their sweethearts forms the body of the opera.

Symphony officials said tomorrow evening's concert will end in ample time for parents to reach New Year's Eve parties long before midnight. Prices for both concerts range from $1 to $3. Tickets are on sale at the symphony box office in the Kiel Auditorium lobby and the Aeolian Co. ticket offices, 1004 Olive street, and 7754 Forsyth boulevard in Clayton.

SCHOLARS DOUBTFUL ON BIBLE MANUSCRIPT

They Put Value of Touring Codex at $5000, Not $1,500,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)—Some of the nation's top biblical scholars have questioned the $1,500,000 price put on an ancient New Testament, known as the Yonan codex, which is now on a nation-wide tour to raise funds for its purchase from private ownership.

Experts of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis said a "fair estimate of the value of a manuscript like the Yonan codex is about $5000."

Sponsors of the fund-raising tour called this attitude "un-Christianlike." They said a resolution adopted by the society questioning the age and importance of the manuscript was "obviously the work of a limited number of disgruntled persons. . . ."

Action at Annual Meeting.

The biblical literature society, composed of 1230 Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish scholars, acted at its annual meeting in New York.

Asserting there are about 300 similar manuscripts in libraries, some of them older than the one on tour, the society said it wished to "go on record as opposing some of the publicity attending the efforts currently being made to raise by popular subscription $1,500,000 for purchase of the so-called Yonan codex."

The society's new president, Dr. J. Philip Hyatt of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., said the codex is "a valuable and authentic manuscript," but he contended that "exaggerated claims are being made about it."

Sponsors' Challenge.

The Aramaic Bible Foundation, which is sponsoring the exhibition tour to raise money to buy the manuscript, issued a statement here saying:

"It challenges the Society of Biblical Literature to designate which of the alleged 300 copies in existence is older. . . . Their true interest is not in that of the public as claimed but in the possible threat to their theological hierarchy which is bottomed on Greek and not Aramaic."

The foundation says the codex was originally brought to this country from Assyria by the Malek Yonan family. Preserved as a family heirloom, it is now owned by Norman M. Yonan.

Douglas Hatch of Washington, who said he represents the Yonan family as legal counsel, told a reporter that Yonan would give any proceeds from the sale of the codex to establish Aramaic chairs in institutions of learning.

Hatch said the $1,500,000 is the amount for which the codex is insured. He said no definite sale price has been set.

FREE THROWS
by Robert Morrison

Helter, Skelter and Swish.

THE scores in the sports section continue to tell the story of the heightening trend. . . . 111 points for Morehead, 100 for Clemson, 100 for William and Mary, 99 for Brigham Young. . . . And, too, 101 for Kentucky against St. Louis.

Everybody's scoring these days in basketball—some that never scored like this before. Where it will end nobody knows.

Before his boys finally broke out with the 101-point game against St. Louis, it really had Kentucky's Adolph Rupp worried. He was wondering earlier this season whether it had become merely a shooting game and whether all the effort of trying to teach and coach a pattern-play system was worth while.

Kentucky had its fast break working well at Times against St. Louis but it is definitely a play-making team and Rupp is quick to assert that he isn't going to junk his percentage play and let his boys go hog wild in popping away at the basket. Kentucky took only 67 shots against St. Louis; it hit on 39 and shooting like that never has been seen here in a college game.

"We're still 'running off tackle' like we always have done," Rupp said of the Wildcats' set offense which had encountered some trouble earlier this season. "Eddie Hickey and Hank Iba are still doing the same thing and in the long run it pays."

* * *

Must Be the Pro Influence.

BUT Rupp, like others, is amazed at some of the scores that are showing these days. Ths significance is borne home when you remember that an 85-point college game (in 40 minutes of play) is the equivalent of a 100-point professional score (in 48 minutes of play).

"Yes, sir," said Rupp, "one of the teams in the Louisville tournament the other night scored 99 points and took a beating. Now 100, 111 and 106 point games are becoming common.

"The only explanation I can offer is that the boys are watching the professional game on television and a lot of teams are employing the shooting techniques that they see in the pro contests.

"You know, we thought the widened lane this season would cut down the scoring but it hasn't. The kids just are getting to be shooters, that's all."

* * *

Jump Shot Favored.

ONE of the most useful weapons of the offense now is the jump shot, a most difficult one to defend against.

Perhaps one of the results of the widened lane is to reduce the number of hook shots in college ball, but even that may be a temporary reduction while the pivot men develop better techniques of wheeling and hooking at a greater angle and distance.

College scores have been inflated to some extent in recent years by the one-and-one foul shot rule, but there is no doubt that shooting efficiency from the field is increasing every season.

The statistics of St. Louis University's Billikens, for instance, provide a basis of comparison. In seven games this season the current group of Bills has averaged 35 field goals per game, five more than last year's average and 10 more than that of two seasons back. Compared with two years ago, the Bills have increased their field goals made by 40 per cent, with only a 23 per cent increase in number of shots.

* * *

No Problem at All.

THE quick-firing subject has produced an interesting commentary from Danny Lynch, St. Francis of Brooklyn coach, whose team is averageing about 90 points per game.

Lynch pointed up the rapid-fire offense topic when he talked about adapting his big man, 6-7 Sophomore Al Inniss, to the new 12-foot lanes.

"We though Inness might have trouble with those widened lanes," Dan told New York columnist Sid Friedlander. "But no trouble at all. By the time he gets down there we've already taken our shot!"

Niewoehner With Kutis

Clem Niewoehner, inside forward, who scored a smashing goal against the Simpkins club in a national Open Cup soccer game two weeks ago, has been signed by the Kutis club for Amateur Cup competition.

Niewoehner, a regular member of the Carondelet club, was on the injured list when his team lost its Amateur Cup match to Brehenys, a month ago. He is therefore eligible for further Amateur play with Kutis. His goal for Carondelet against Simpkins gave his team a first-half lead but was not sufficient for victory.

Kutis has also added Halfback Russ Murphy to its roster, Manager Nick Jost announced. Murphy, who has been in the Army for the past two years, is at an eastern camp now, being processed for discharge. Recently, playing for the Armed Forces squad, he was selected as an alternate for the East's United States Olympic squad.

Kutis will work out tonight in preparation for its national Amateur Cup game of Monday. It will face the winner of the Meramec-Spanish club game, of Sunday. The Kutis game, a local semifinal, will be played at Carondelet Park.

Burrow's 40 Paces Wildcats

By Robert Morrison

Picking up the pieces was the business at hand for the St. Louis University Billikens today after their basketball machine had been blasted by the Kentucky Wildcats.

The Bills will return to the Kiel Auditorium tomorrow night against Detroit in St. Louis's first Missouri Valley Conference action of the season.

What lies ahead for Eddie Hickey's team is somewhat hard to predict after Kentucky's record-making show in a 101-80 victory before a disappointed crowd of 9502 and a television audience here last night.

Burrow Back With Bang.

Bob Burrow, Kentucky's All-America candidate who had been hobbled by injured ankles in earlier games, came off the disabled list to fire 40 points at the somewhat defenseless Billikens.

And the Wildcats of Adolph Rupp, who this season had only once beaten anybody by more than 10 points, rolled up an astonishing margin of 21 against an opponent that seldom has lost to anybody by that count.

"That's what the big boy means to us," said Rupp after the victory. It was Kentucky's sixth in eight starts and St. Louis's second setback at home in seven games.

"I still feel our team is as good or better than last year's but we have no one to pick up for us when Burrow is out, as he was in our Dayton game," Rupp said.

Burrow's 40 points were the most that any player has scored against St. Louis on its home court, topping the 39 made by Robin Freeman in Ohio State's victory here earlier this season.

.582 Pct. in Field Goals.

There were other notable marks established by the Wildcats, as follows:

The Kentucky team's tremendous field goal hitting percentage of .582 was the highest any team has hit against St. Louis in the nine years of the Hickey coaching regime.

The 21-point margin tied the nine-season record for games here, equalling the 50-29 edge gained by the Oklahoma Aggies in 1950-51.

The Bills, who jumped to a 4-0 lead, were quickly tied and then set in arrears by the smooth Kentucky outfit which grabbed a 14-6 lead before Coach Hickey removed Al Serkin and moved Jim McLaughlin into the pivot on offense.

Two Baskets in 15 Seconds.

Four times, then, in that first half the Bills worked to narrow the Kentucky lead to three points, but that was the best they could do. Kentucky, showing bursts of speed but frequently running plays from a set offense, steadily rebuilt its lead to a 45-36 halftime advantage.

It took Kentucky only 15 seconds to get two quick baskets at the end of the half. Burrow topped off his 24-point first-half splurge with a lay-up following a long pass. Kentucky regained possession after a missed St. Louis shot, a Wildcat heaved a desperation throw that bounced far off the backboard, and Vern Hatton popped a one-hander in the last second.

Jack Keys, one of the officials, signaled the shot had been made before the halftime gun. Hickey protested and Timer Ray Obie said the shot had been made too late. But Ron Gibbs backed up Key's ruling and so the time-keeper's opinion didn't enter into consideration.

The incident was something of a setback to St. Louis, but as the game turned out, it didn't make much difference. The best the Bills could do in the second half was to cut down Kentucky's lead, once as large as 21 points, to 11 with 4:25 to go.

McLaughlin Gets 33.

McLaughlin, en route to a 33-point effort that was the best in the senior captain's career, and Grady Smith tried to engineer the rally, but then nine straight points returned Kentucky to a 93-73 lead within about two minutes. The tall Kentuckians finished with a rebounding edge of 55 to 44.

Before the game, apparently in an effort to forestall untoward behavior by spectators, Hickey spoke briefly to the crowd, welcoming Kentucky which, he said, "so courteously welcomed us a year ago at Lexington." He mentioned that St. Louis will be playing there next year in a continuation of the series, and asked fans to accord the visitors "the best in sportsmanship."

This was one time in the famous series that fans didn't have a chance to get uproarious. And the series now is squared, 3 and 3.

Whose Bulging Waistline? Not Mine!

LAWRENCE (YOGI) BERRA, left, and ROY CAMPANELLA, right, "most valuable" players in the American and National leagues, register amazement as they shrug off ED (WHITEY) FORD's caustic references to their bulging waistlines. They were among many players and officials who witnessed the first showing of the 1955 World Series movies at New York. Campanella of the Dodgers, and Ford and Berra of the Yankees all figured prominently in the film.

Southern Illinois stopped Western State of Colorado 77-64 to go into the consolation final.

'Little Fellows' Lead Tulsa and Murray State to Tourney Titles

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (AP)—The little fellow still casts a big shadow in college basketball, after all.

Largely because of two undersized players, Tulsa today was hailed as the new champion in Oklahoma City's all-college tournament and Murray State was in possession of Louisville's Kentucky invitational tournament title.

Junior Born, a 5-10 guard, registered 32 points in leading the Golden Hurricanes to an upset 65-58 victory last night over tenth ranked Oklahoma City in the all-college tournament final. He was named the tournament's most valuable player. Tulsa's victory shattered Oklahoma City's eight-game streak. It was Tulsa's first championship in 11 all-college tournament appearances.

Oklahoma A. & M., after watching a 24-point lead dwindle to six, snapped back to stop Seattle 63-52 for third place.

Dick Kinder, who stands only 5-11, tallied 25 points to lead Murray to a 74-69 victory over favored Western Kentucky as the Thoroughbreds captured the Kentucky invitation. Three free throws by Kinder in the closing minutes choked off the threat of the Hilltoppers who had rallied to narrow Murray's lead to 62-61.

Notre Dame, cashing in on the eagle-eyed shooting of center Lloyd Aubrey who hit for 35 points, led practically all the way to upset Alabama, 86-80, in the Sugar Bowl tournament. Aubrey is a graduate of St. Louis De Andreis High School.)

The Irish, the defending Sugar champions, will meet Utah for the crown. Utah moved into the final by edging Marquette, 89-84.

Miami Defeats Florida.

Six-footer Dick Miani threw in 35 points as Miami of Florida defeated Tulane 86-75 to move into the final of the Orange Bowl at Miami Beach. The Hurricanes were joined by West Virginia who turned back Columbia 70-60 despite a 34-point effort by 5-9 Chet Forte of the Lions. Rod Hundley led the West Virginians with 23 points.

Little Jimmy Boothe, all of 5-7, rimmed 19 points as the undefeated Xavier of Ohio Musketeers ran roughshod over favored Niagara 84-63 to gain the semi-final round in the Queens City invitational tournament at Buffalo. St. Bonaventure, led by 6-2 Jimmy Crough's 22 points, topped Georgetown 79-52 in the opening round. Canisius raced away from Lafayette 92-70 and Georgia Tech beat Westminster 65-56.

Cincinnati knocked Seton Hall of South Orange, N. J., from the unbeaten ranks with an 82-81 victory in the semi-final round of the Richmond invitational at Richmond but Army's Mark Binstein stole the headlines with a 50-point performance as the Cadets drubbed Rhode Island in a consolation game 99-74. Richmond joined Cincinnati in the final round, defeating William and Mary 72-60.

North Carolina Triumphs.

Fourth ranked North Carolina, paced by Lenny Rosenbluth's 35 points, stormed into the semi-final round of the Dixie Classic in Raleigh, N. C., routing Villanova 86-63. Defending Champion North Carolina State withstood a desperate rally to shade Oregon State 59-54. Duke won its seventh consecutive game breezing to a 71-54 win over Wyoming and Wake Forest edged Minnesota 87-83.

The holiday festival championship at New York's Madison Square Garden comes off tonight, with San Francisco seeking its thirty-sixth in a row against U.C.L.A.

Martinez Stops German Fighter

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 30 (AP)—Vince Martinez, welterweight of Paterson, N.J., clubbed down Peter Muller of Germany for a neat second-round knockout victory last night in the Milwaukee arena.

Martinez at 151¼ pounds, spotted Muller, at 155, the first round and nailed him with his first and only assault of the fight that ended at 2:51 of the second round.

A crowd of 5597 paid a gross of $18,882.10 to watch Martinez, rated No. 3 among the world's welterweights, hang up his twenty-seventh knockout and forty-seventh victory in 50 pro starts. Vince was a 3-1 favorite.

Muller was out cold as Referee Milt Goldstein of Milwaukee reached the ten count. Seconds pulled Muller to his feet and helped him to the corner where he asked his manager, Al Lang, of Valley Streams, N.Y., "What did you do that for?"

In the dresing room Lang said Muller was weakened because he met a contract clause which demanded he make 155 pounds.

Kirksville Teachers in Quincy Event Final

QUINCY, Ill., Dec. 30 (AP)—Kirksville Teachers of Missouri advanced to the final of the Quincy College basketball turnament with a last half rally that defeated Illinois Normal, 87-84.

Kirksville led 41-39 at halftime but Normal surged to a 66-50 margin with six and one-half minutes to go. Kirksville gradually whittled down the lead and went ahead to stay in the final three minutes.

Bill Ausmus guided the rally, hitting 11 of his total 27 points in the last 10 minutes. Alan Meyer topped Normal with 19.

Earl Buchholz And Neely in Tourney Final

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Dec. 30 (AP)—Form and results parted ways in the junior boys singles of the Orange Bowl junior tennis tournament yesterday with top-seeded Esteban Reyes of Mexico City, and third-seeded Maxwell Brown Jr. of Louisville, Ky., sent to the sidelines in quarterfinal matches.

Ned Neely of Atlanta and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis, Nos. 1 and 2 nationally, won as expected in the boys division to gain the final. Neely defeated Jerry Duble of Hamtramck, Mich., 6-2, 6-1, and Buchholz ousted Jimmy Shaffer of St. Petersburg, Fla., 6-3, 6-4.

Mike Green of Miami Beach, ranked second nationally and seeded second, won easily from Ed Sledge of Dallas, Tex., 6-1, 6-1. Sledge was seeded seventh.

Mimi Arnold of San Francisco, second seeded among junior girls, had no trouble with Joyce Pniewski of Hamtramck, 6-1, 6-2, in her semifinal match.

Murphy vs. O'Brien.

BOSTON, Dec. 30 (UP)—Brighton Bobby Murphy and Jackie O'Brien of Meriden, Conn., will meet in a 10-round bout for the vacant New England welterweight title here Jan. 12.

HEY! DUCK HUNTERS!

Temperatures have fallen somewhat in eastern Minnesota, but elsewhere in the North-Central States and adjacent Canada there has been a marked rise in temperature. Low readings this morning south of the border ranged from near 10 in western South Dakota to 17 below in northern Minnesota, while in the Canadian provinces the range was from 10 degrees below zero in southern Manitoba to 15 above in Alberta.

Snow accumulations vary from one to 26 inches in the North-Central States and from one to 29 inches in the Canadian provinces.

Indications are that generally fair weather will prevail in all north-central areas during the next 36 hours, and temperatures will show an upward trend.

New Haven, Enrollment 47 Boys, Reaches Normandy Tourney Final

Pirrie Is Maplewood Game Saver

By John J. Archibald

Maplewood's Jack Pirrie, benched in the middle of a touch-and-go semifinal with Normandy because of a strength-sapping ailment, put himself back into the game and gave what his coach, Howdy Sanders, described as "the greatest performance he had ever seen" as Maplewood turned back a brilliant host team, 62 to 59, in the Normandy tournament last night.

At 9:30 tonight, Maplewood will meet University City, an easy 61-47 victor over St. Charles, in the championship final of Normandy's Red Division.

New Haven, which has 27 of its 47 male students on either the varsity or freshman basketball teams, will meet Crystal City in the Green division final at 8 o'clock. New Haven was its sure-footed self as it downed DeSoto, 74 to 51, and fourth-seeded Crystal City upset the No. 1 ranked team, St. Francis Borgia of Washington, Mo., 80 to 62.

The Red final will match the winners of the first two Normandy tournaments ever held, neither of whom has won the title since. Maplewood took the trophy in the initial Normandy meet in 1933 and University City won the following year.

Lewis Hits for Vikings.

Getting to the final seemed doubtful to Maplewood followers for a while. Pirrie, around whom the Maplewood team is obviously built, reported not feeling well in the previous night's game with Mercy although he scored 22 points. He was weakened by dysentery and an upset stomach yesterday, but insisted on starting.

Pirrie managed three field goals and three free throws in seven attempts as the Leafs battled Normandy into the second quarter, but with the score tied at 23-all and nearly three minutes remaining in the period, Coach Sanders insisted on Pirrie resting.

Normandy, with Steve Lewis hitting repeatedly on running shots from outcourt, moved to a 29-27 lead at the halftime intermission. Coach Mike Riegert's Vikings widened the gap in the third quarter as Pirrie remained out of action.

Within two minutes of the second half Normandy was ahead by eight points, 35-27. That was when Pirrie threw off his jacket and put himself back in the game.

Without taking anything from Normandy's fine effort, it was an entirely different Maplewood team with the 6-5 star again operating in under the basket. Grabbing rebounds and teammates' misses, Pirrie used hooks and jump shots from close-in to score five field goals and a pair of free throws in the period and Maplewood took a 47-43 lead into the closing quarter.

Normandy again closed the gap, however, and with six minutes to go, Ken McDonald sank a long field goal that gave the Vikings a 51-49 lead. Soon after that McDonald, who had been guarding Pirrie, committed his fifth foul and left the game. A fielder by Rich Lauenstein made it 53-50 in Normandy's favor, but with the 6-foot-3 McDonald out, the handwriting was on the wall for the Vikings.

Satterwhite Sets 'Em Up.

Pirrie, often fed set-up shots by clever teammate Jack Satterwhite, added eight more points in the quarter to give him a game total of 29 and Maplewood nursed a six-point lead through the final minute of the game. A late pair of free throws by Normandy's Bob Meyers cut the margin to 62-59 as the battle ended.

Russ Garner was second high for Maplewood with 17 points. Lewis had 16 and McDonald 15 for Normandy.

University City's great superiority in height was too much of a handicap for St. Charles to overcome. Wilbur Marsh, 6-foot-5, had 31 points for University City. Kenny Clark led St. Charles with 16.

New Haven Balanced Team.

New Haven, which has captured the fancy of the tournament crowds with its speedy but careful style of play, let DeSoto make most of the mistakes as it pulled away to a 35-21 halftime lead. DeSoto cut the margin to 10 points in the third quarter, but Coach Ellsworth Hartzell's New Haven squad buried its foe, 21 to 8, in the last period to win going away.

No one player seems to stand out in the New Haven lineup, but a half-dozen boys of nearly similar height—about six feet—just do everything well. Leading scorers against DeSoto were Ken Quest with 19 points, and Skip Wolfe and Larry Diederich, each with 14.

St. Francis Borgia lost despite a 41-point show by center Ken Schuler. The trouble was that hardly anybody else could hit. Schuler scored a fantastic 29 points in the first half, but St. Francis trailed, 44-34. Schuler made 19 of his team's first 21 points.

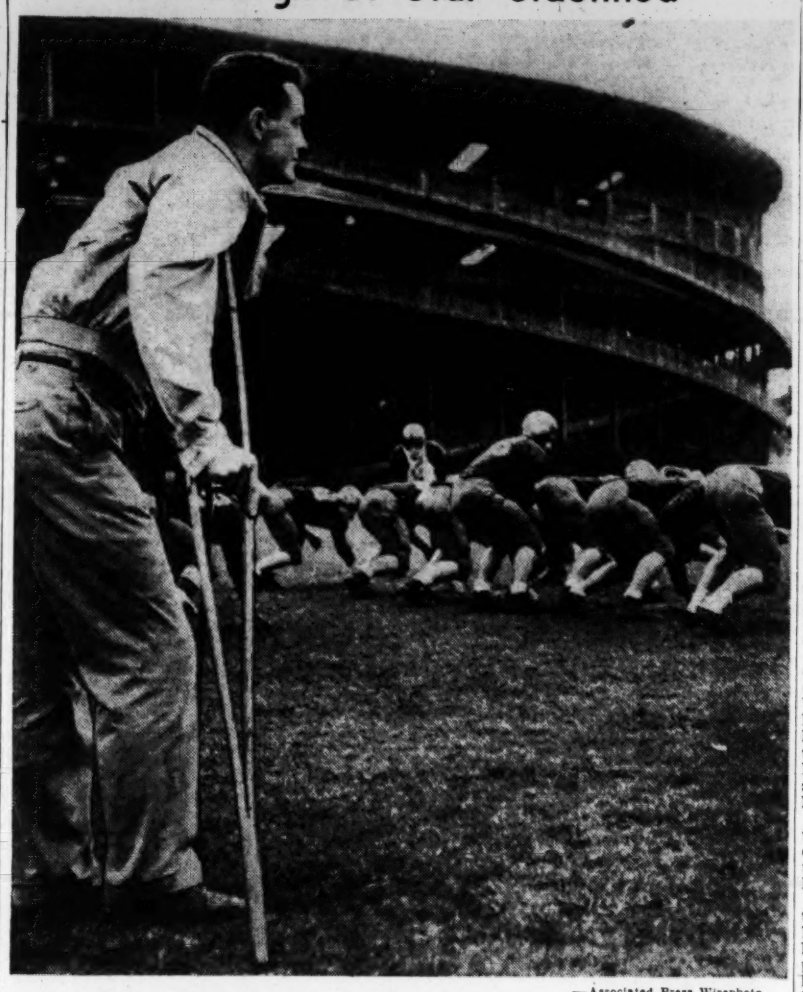

Crystal City's balanced attack was led by Dick Cook with 18, and Dan Larose Rich Byas each with 16.

Beaumont Gymnasts Win North Side Meet

Beaumont High School, scoring 182.44, took first place in the North Side Y.M.C.A. invitational gymnastic meet. Hadley Tech, 174.07, was second, followed by Cleveland, 170.68; North Side Y, 163.70; Schiller Turners, 155.76, and South Side Y, 68.22.

High individual awards went to Lee Thomure, Beaumont, first; Ed Indelicato, North Side Y, second, and Al Podogorny, Schiller Turners, third.

Fullback TOM JENKINS, his leg in a cast, leans dejectedly on crutches as he watches his Pittsburgh U. teammates in one of their final workouts before the Sugar Bowl game with Georgia Tech at New Orleans. The Sugar Bowl stands are in the background. Team doctors said it is very doubtful if Jenkins' injured knee will be sufficiently recovered to permit any action in the Jan. 2 game. He was hurt in the team's first practice at New Orleans, Monday.

Well-Balanced Valparaiso U. To Oppose Bears Here Tonight

Back to action after a holiday week in which they didn't get much done in a practice way, Washington University's Bears will seek victory No. 5 tonight against Valparaiso (Ind.) University at 8:15 at the Field House.

Blair Gullion's men, who have made an impressive start on the season, will be seeking to consolidate their gains with a victory over a team which has spent much of its time on the road, and not always unsuccessfully.

Valparaiso's 2-5 record doesn't represent much in a won-and-lost way but it has its points, including an 84-80 triumph over one of the top teams in the Missouri Valley Conference, Houston.

Bears Likely Favorites.

Valpo won that upset in the Birmingham Classic tournament. Earlier, against another top opponent, it was beaten by Marquette, 89-75, but that 14-point deficit didn't look so bad when compared with Marquette's later 24-point win over Duquesne, 83-59.

Since, however, the Crusaders have dropped four in a row, and the twice-beaten Bears, who lost by only a point to Illinois, should rate as favorites over the visitors.

Coach Gullion has been disappointed by progress of the Bears' practice this week. Minor injuries and illness and outside work of the players has disrupted things, he said.

Bob Casten, Bears' regular guard, has a sprained wrist but it could improve quickly enough for him to start. Top reserve Ed Cristal missed a couple of days' practice, Center Jim Paul had a cold that slowed him down, and reserve Don Garrett has missed practice because of work.

"Otherwise we're all right," said Gullion, with a touch of rueful humor. He hoped the Bears would come back well against Valpo, an apparently well-balanced team.

East Sider With Valpo.

Bob Jarm, Valpo's 6-5 center, was good enough in the Classic to make the all-tournament team. He scored 24 points against Houston. Tom Sittler, 5-9 guard, was another good scorer in that game.

Other starters for Valpo, which is coached by Ken Suesens, former Sheboygan Redskin mentor, are Ed Eckart, 6-5 forward from Collinsville, Ill., Bob Madrick, 6-2 forward, and Don Damrau, 5-11 guard.

Eckart was the team's top returning scorer this season, having averaged 10.7 points per game in a 13-12 campaign during which Valpo beat the Bears twice.

Martin Safe on Bid to Steal Home, Series Movies Indicate

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (UP)—Official movies of the 1955 World Series showed that Umpire Bill Summers's decisions on two attempted steals of home in the opening game will furnish material for many months of baseball arguments.

It won't make any difference in the outcome of the classic, but the consensus of writers and baseball people who viewed the first public showing of the films was that Billy Martin of the Yankees was safe in his futile sixth-inning attempt.

Opinion was more evenly divided on Jackie Robinson's successful steal in the eighth inning. Even though the movies were stopped at three different panels, it was difficult to determine definitely whether Robinson had beaten the pitch to the plate.

However, there was no mistaking Catcher Yogi Berra's anguished protests to Summers.

Neither of these plays had a key effect on the outcome of the game, which the Yankees won, 6-5.

Runs 40 Minutes.

The film, produced annually by former major-leaguer Lou Fonseca, representing the American and National League service bureaus, runs 40 minutes and is edited to show all the highlights of the seven-game series. Sandy Amoros's game-saving catch in the final game is shown twice from different camera angles.

To most of the 200 baseball men who viewed the film, it appeared that Martin had slid safely under the tag of Catcher Roy Campanella in an attempted steal of home. Summers called Martin out, touching off a loud complaint.

The two theft attempts are the only controversial plays of the series, but there are enough brilliant fielding plays, long hits and interludes of humor to please any baseball fan.

Many of the World Series stars who participated in the action were on hand to see the film. The group included Berra and Campanella, the leagues' most valuable players; Gil McDougald, Whitey Ford, Bob Grim and Gerry Coleman.

Yogi Takes Ribbing.

Many of them came in for some good-natured ribbing for their play in the series, particularly Berra for his heated protest to Summers on Robinson's steal. Commissioner Ford Frick and Dodger President Walter O'Malley also were present.

Fonseca said the film will be available after Jan. 2 for distribution to the armed services around the world and to civic, fraternal and boy scout organizations throughout the country.

Groups wishing to obtain the film may do so by contacting A. G. Spalding Co., 500 Fifth avenue, New York, in the east; and in the Midwest by writing Fonseca at 64 East Jackson boulevard, Chicago.

Ferris Demands Allen Back Up A.A.U. Charge

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (UP)—Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the National A.A.U., today challenged Coach Forrest C. (Phog) Allen of Kansas to name the track athletes he says "have become wealthy in A.A.U. meets in the East through expense money."

Allen made the charge yesterday at Kansas City, Mo., while discussing the A.A.U. handling of the Wes Santee case. Santee, suspended in October on the ground he accepted excessive expense money for three California track meets, was reinstated Nov. 20 but the A.A.U. since has reopened the case.

"He went out to California when he was invited and he got travel expenses," Allen said. "And that supposedly makes him a professional. Nuts. I know a half dozen or almost a dozen young men who have become wealthy in A.A.U. meets in the East through expense money."

"Why doesn't he name them?" Ferris said while denying Allen's charge that A.A.U. officials are "quadrennial oceanic hitchhikers" who "hitchhike overseas" every four years on taxpayers' money.

"We raise our own money to travel to the Olympics and if there wasn't an A.A.U., there wouldn't be any American participation in the games," Ferris said. "Phog was one of the hitchhikers in 1952 when he was our Olympic basketball coach at Helsinki."

Christy Walsh, Who Managed Business Of Athletes, Dies

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 30 (UP)—Christy Walsh Sr., famed sports writer and business manager of sports figures, died at his home last night of what was believed to be a heart attack. Walsh, in addition to being a writer, managed such sports characters as Babe Ruth and ran his own sports syndicate. He also set up his own All-America rating boards on various sports.

Warriors Pour It On.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 30 (AP)—The Philadelphia Warriors had lost two straight games and their lead in the Eastern Division of the National Basketball Association was in danger but you never would have guessed it from last night's action at Philadelphia's convention hall.

The Warriors thrashed the Syracuse Nationals 112-83 before a record home crowd of 11,236 and en route to their triumph hung up two team records and assured their coach, George Senesky, of the coaching berth for the Eastern team in the All-Star game at Rochester, Jan. 24.

The Warriors, leading Boston by two games, can not lose first place by the morning of Jan. 1, when the division leading coach is selected.

A total of 43 field goals for the Warriors surpassed their own floor record of 42 while their 29-point victory margin also was a new mark for the Philadelphia club. Paul Arizin paced the Warriors with 20 points.

Senators Sign Hurler.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)—Harold Griggs, right-handed pitcher from Hickory, N.C., signed a 1956 contract with the Washington Senators yesterday. Last season Griggs pitched for Washington's southern association farm club at Chattanooga. He won 15 games and lost 9, striking out 180 batters in 209 innings pitched.

Hawks' Coach Blasts Officials After Defeat

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Dec. 30—Coach William (Red) Holzman of the St. Louis Hawks is wondering today just how hard a kick he'll get in the pocketbook as punishment for his verbal outburst following last night's National Basketball Association game here.

Incensed at what he considered inefficient work on the part of referees Stan Stutz and Bill Smith, Holzman stormed onto the floor and gave the two a bitter tongue lashing. The referees later told reporters that Holzman would be fined for the outburst but they would not say in what amount.

Holzman's complaint didn't alter the outcome of the game in which the Hawks were defeated by the Minneapolis Lakers, 74-71, and knocked temporarily out of first place in the Western Division.

However, if the Hawks win tonight's game against the Fort Wayne Pistons (at Lansing, Mich.), they will go back into a tie for the lead.

Holzman has a special interest in this development because of the coach for the Western division team in the league's annual all-star game hinges upon the standings of the clubs as of Jan. 1. If Hawks and Pistons are tied some compromise method of selection will be used.

Fort Wayne, which had been tied with St. Louis for the lead, defeated Rochester, 83-75, in the second half of the doubleheader, to regain first place.

Bob Pettit of the Hawks took the league individual scoring lead away from Clyde Lovellette of Minneapolis with a 20-point performance that gave him 603 for 24 games. Lovellette scored 17 and has 601 in 27 games.

The score was tied 14 times in the tight game before Vern Mikkelsen's fielder cut the last knot with 1:02 to play. St. Louis scored two more fielders than Minneapolis but the Lakers hit 28 of 30 free throws. Slater Martin hit eight straight.

St. Louis's Chuck Share was second-high man of the game with 19 points, seven on free throws.

Any St. Louis Students to Help Beat Yale and Princeton? Coach Of Harvard Here Looking for 'Em

By Neal Russo

If white-haired Coach Lloyd Jordan had room for more gray thatches, he admits he would be getting them soon. Next season, in fact, for the Ivy League teams begin playing all other members then and the Crimson coach is losing most of his linemen.

Stopping here en route to the Rose Bowl game and the coaches' meetings in Los Angeles, Jordan yesterday told the Harvard Club that he wouldn't mind at all if some of the good students St. Louis sends to Harvard "can run 100 yards in 10 seconds, weigh about 190 pounds and can help beat Yale and Princeton." The luncheon was at the Lennox Hotel.

Acknowledging that Harvard in recent years had pointed mostly for the Big Three rivalry with Yale and Princeton, Jordan pointed out that things will be much rougher starting next fall when every game will count in the Ivy standings.

Moaning about having to bring up four freshman linemen to first string next September, Jordan said, "I want good football players because it's important that a great institution have representative football teams."

Counting on Holdover Backs.

To help improve on the 3-4-1 record of 1955 that included a big 7-6 upset over Princeton and a 21-7 triumph over Columbia, the veteran coach is counting heavily on his many backfield holdovers.

"We had a very fine first team, but no depth," he said. "Our sophomore class was a dud. If we were fortunate to score early, then we could rest our first squad."

Harking back to his first two seasons at Harvard (1950-51), Jordan recalled that the Crimson's showing was so bad that few persons bothered to talk to him after games. One of the few was a crippled member of the Harvard Class of '88, on two canes who regularly cheered him up.

As for the Ivy League itself, Jordan said that on a given day any of the circuit's top three teams could more than hold its own against any team in the country.

Perhaps not so coincidentally, the film highlights of four 1955 Harvard games all showed the Crimson scoring. Jordan commented in detail as the movies were shown.

'Badge of Coach.'

Jimmy Conzelman, another white-haired man who coached Washington U. and the Chicago Cardinals, referred to Jordan's head covering as "the badge of a coach."

Jordan reminded Conzelman of a pep talk his coach gave him before Jimmy's Great Lakes team played Pitt: "If you don't get out there and beat them, I'm sending all of you out to sea."

Jordan, from the "groundhog day" town of Punxsutawney, Pa., has been coaching more than 30 years since he captained Pop Warner's last eleven at Pitt (1923). He starred at end. Before moving to Harvard, he coached at Colgate and Amherst.

Mizell, 'Half-Million-Dollar Asset,' Signs Cardinal Contract

The signed contract of Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell is in the hands of the Cardinals, and General Manager Frank Lane says he feels that this is the equivalent of 15 to 18 more victories than the team scored last season.

Mizell, who has been in the Army the past two years, has been pitching in the Cuban Winter League. He was signed by Lane at Havana, yesterday.

Lane cabled the Cardinal office he feels the return of the 6-3 Mizell might be just what the shaky pitching staff needs.

"The consideration of winning 13 games previously (1953) entitled Vinegar to an increase," Lane said. "If appearances physically, and his Winter League achievements are any criterion, he should win 15 to 18 games in 1956."

Lane said "a half million dollars is a low estimate of the value of his contract and I know Mr. Busch (Cardinal president August Busch) would not even discuss any figure whatsoever for Vinegar's contract."

Mizell ran his season strikeout total in Cuba to 136 last Sunday, setting a new record for the league. He averaged seven strikeouts per game for the Cardinals in 1952 and '53.

Kansas Knocks Mizzou Out of Big Seven Meet

By a Sports Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 30—Kansas's tournament jinx over Missouri held again last night as the Jayhawks scored a 73-56 basketball victory when someone put the lid on the basket as far as Tiger marksmen were concerned.

The game wasn't the walkaway until the final six minutes as Missouri twice whittled 11-point Kansas leads to four, 47-51 with eight minutes to go. That included a three minute period midway in the last half when both teams turned their attention to rugged play instead of the business at hand of scoring points. From the 15:33 mark when Missouri's John Stephens made a free-throw to 12:27 when Missouri's Jon Paden made another, not a point was scored.

The loss sends Missouri against Colorado, which lost to Iowa State, 55-52, for third place in the Big Seven tournament tonight, with Kansas playing Iowa State for the championship Missouri held last year. That keeps perfect the 10-year tournament record of a champion not repeating, and the game's outcome marked the fifth tournament in which Missouri failed to turn in a victory over Kansas.

Statistics tell the story of the game. Missouri hit only 26.1 per cent of its 88 shots and collected on only 10 of 27 free throws. Meanwhile, Kansas hit from the field at a 32.4 average with 71 shots, and sank 27 of 37 free throws.

Gene Elstun was the scoring leader with 22 points to 21 of his teammate, Dallas Dobbs, while Norman Stewart and Bill Ross led the Missourians with 14 each.

Beaumont and Sumner Quints In Title Game

By Harold Tuthill

Mighty Beaumont, last of the unbeaten teams in the Public High League, will take its 9-0 record onto the floor of the Hadley Tech gym tonight against Sumner in what could be the sternest test so far for the Bluejacket basketball squad.

With the championship of the first annual league tournament at stake, starting at 9:30, both teams will go all out just as they figure to engage in a nip-and-tuck contest when they meet again in league competition next Friday.

The finalists snapped undefeated strings in a semifinal round where "60" was a magic number not only in the championship but also in the consolation flight. The winning team in all four cases yesterday scored 60 or more points and the similarity of the scores was remarkable.

Hadley Streak Shattered.

Beaumont upended Hadley Tech, 65-47, to break Hadley's 12-game winning streak and Sumner defeated Cleveland, 65-51, to halt the advance of the Dutchmen at seven victories. In the consolation round, Southwest beat Soldan, 63-48, and Laboure defeated McBride, 60-46.

So Southwest will play Laboure at 6:30 in the consolation final and Cleveland will oppose Hadley Tech at 8 in the third place game tonight.

Sumner, now 8-1 for the season, was unable to shake Cleveland for the first three quarters when the Bulldogs led by a mere 39-33, but 26 points in the last quarter all but wrecked the hopes of the Dutchmen. Sumner was exceptionally sharp as it hit 55 per cent of its shots, 26 out of 47 attempted.

Leading the parade again for Sumner was Tom Weathersby who scored 26 points, but his effort was topped by Cleveland's George Burkel who tallied 30 in spite of some tight guarding.

Beaumont Stops Hammer.

Hadley also made a fight of it for about three quarters but the Hornets sagged badly after 6-7 Les Hemmer fouled out in the third quarter with 38 seconds left in the period. The score at the time was 43-35, a difference of eight points as compared to the 18-point spread of the final count.

Beaumont put an iron ring around the high-scoring Hemmer and held him to a field goal in the first quarter and two free throws in the second quarter while Big Les accumulated four fouls. He scored four more points before fouling out. The best Hadley shooter was Bill Harper, who had 18 points.

Replacing Podres Will Be Big Job, Walter Alston Says

OXFORD, O., Dec. 30 (AP)—Replacing Johnny Podres on the Brooklyn pitching staff if he is called into military service will be a big order, Manager Smokey Alston said today, but, he added, he is optimistic.

Podres, who was the pitching sensation of the last world series in leading the Dodgers to victory over the New York Yankees, was re-classified 1-A the other day. He had been listed as unfit because of a back ailment.

The 23-year-old lefthander won the third and seventh games of the world series last fall.

"It will be a big order in filling his place, but we have several pitchers who might come through," Alston said from his home in nearby Darrtown.

East St. Louis, Johnston City Meet in Final

Torrid shooting featured yesterday's semifinal play in the eleventh annual East St. Louis holiday prep basketball tournament at Ainad Temple, and the bulls-eye accuracy is expected to continue in the final games tonight.

The host, East St. Louis Flyers, finalists for a seventh time in their own meet and spoiling to rack up a fifth crown, oppose the Johnston City Indians in the blue-ribbon game at 9:00 o'clock. A preliminary, for consolation honors, sends dethroned champion Dupo against the surprising Assumption Pioneers of East St. Louis at 7:30.

East St. Louis qualified for the final with a 72-62 decision over previously unbeaten Cumberland, which had its string of successes snapped at seven games. Johnston City bested St. Teresa of Decatur in another record-smashing game, 88 to 83. The 171 total points by the two teams set a new standard and the Decatur quint accounted for a new high in points scored by a losing team.

In the consolation semifinals, Dupo free-wheeled to an 85-72 win over Highland, and Assumption drubbed Pittsfield, 71-47.

The East St. Louis victory, No. 7 against one loss for the Flyers, saw the Dehner contingent present a balanced attack headed by Richie Brooks's 22 points. Ronnie Henson had 16, while Stevie Blackwell and Don Choate counted 14 apiece. Their efforts more than offset the brilliant work of Cumberland's 5-5 guard, Jimmy Ewart, who flipped in 30 points by firing from a distance.

Russ DeBose tallied 35 points for Johnston City, which shot at a .515 clip from the field; Glenn Graff had 35 for Dupo against Highland, which had Jay Ward in 34-point form; and Mike (Woody) Magac topped the Assumption barrage with 23.

Johnston City, making its second appearance in the East St. Louis tourney, was an 81-42 victim of the Flyers in 1950 championship game. Pete Truran's Tribesmen take a 6-4 record into tonight's finale.

Top-Seeded Cameras And Soells Upset in Salvation Army Meet

The Bob Soell men and the Jefferson Camera girls, both top-seeded in their divisions, were eliminated last night in the Salvation Army basketball tournament.

The Soells were upset, 78-70, by the Rileys in a quarterfinal contest and the Cameras bowed to Kutis, 54-37, in a semifinal game. Carl Kramer scored 23 points for the Rileys, Wayne Young 25 for the Soells and the Dotty VanDerharr 27 for Kutis.

Fix Mix, seeded No. 2, trimmed the Scotts, 54-39, and Manchester defeated Third Baptist, 65-34, in two first-round men's games. Bob Winkelmann led the Fix Mix team with 17 points. Gerald Hawkins made 20 for Manchester.

C.Y.C. Basketball.

Our Lady of Lourdes and St. Engelbert will meet at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the final of Father O'Flynn's Parochial Girls basketball tournament at Blessed Sacrament gym. Our Lady of Lourdes won over St. Philip Neri, 29-9, and St. Engelbert defeated Corpus Christi, 32-11, in the semifinals of the C.Y.C. event. The losers' consolation game will begin at 7:30.

Illinois Averages .614 On Field Goal Shots; Routs Drake, 102-66

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 30 (UP)—Illinois, shooting a red hot .614 per cent of its field goal attempts in the second half, ran over Drake last night, 102-66. It was Illinois' sixth win against one defeat and the third time it soared over the 100 mark this year.

The Illini, after leading by 39-31 at halftime, connected on 27 baskets out of 44 shots in the second half to run away with the game. Their final shooting percentage for the game was .423 after a cool first half in which they hit only .254 of their shots.

Six-foot, six-inch forward Harvey Schmidt hit on nine baskets and two free throws for 20 points, guard Paul Judson had 16 and reserve center Hiles Stout 14.

Gonzales Gains 8th Victory Over Trabert

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 30 (AP)—Pancho Gonzales copped his eighth victory in 11 matches with Tony Trabert last night in the feature singles attraction of the touring Jack Kramer tennis troupe. Only 1700 fans turned out for the matches.

Gonzales had a real struggle in winning the first set, 9-7. He had little trouble taking the second of the best of three match, 6-3.

In a one-set match, Pancho Segura defeated Rex Hartwig of Australia 8-3. It was his tenth consecutive victory in 11 matches. One had to be called with the score tied.

In the doubles windup, Trabert and Hartwig continued their mastery over Gonzales and Segura by winning 8-10, 6-3, 6-2. It gave them an 8-3 margin in the tour.

'55 PROSPERITY CITED BY WEEKS AND MITCHELL

Cabinet Members Tell of Benefits to Business, Labor — 1956 Outlook Called Bright.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30 (AP)—Two Eisenhower cabinet members stressed the prosperity theme today as 1955 drew toward its end.

Secretary of Commerce Weeks said "the business situation is one of general prosperity" and added:

"The chances are bright that 1956 will be another record year . . . if both people and government act wisely we can have another good year."

Farmers Exception.

The Commerce Department chief supplied a mass of figures which listed gains for virtually all elements of the population except farmers. He said farm income declined in 1955 "as prices received were lower and production costs were little changed from 1954."

Secretary of Labor Mitchell saluted 1955 as "the most satisfactory year for the American worker on record."

Both he and Weeks noted high employment in 1955 Mitchell said there was an average of 63,000,000 persons employed during the year, and both said an unprecendented volume of goods and services was produced. Mitchell added:

"This great surging forward of the nation's economic power was accompanied by stability in the cost of living with the result that the American worker's genuine ability to buy, the actual purchasing power within his pay envelope, increased."

4200 Strikes.

In a separate labor department report, it was estimated that 4200 strikes caused 28,000,000 man days of idleness in 1955. The lost time total was nearly 24 per cent above 1954, but still was the third best year since World War II ended in 1945.

Secretary Week's statement said that the economic outlook "is clearly excellent for the first six months of 1956," but raised the possibility that in the last half of the coming year the boom might subside somewhat. He said:

"As for the last half, not enough firm facts are at hand now for me to anticipate the pace of business activity.

"It would not be surprising if, later on, some parts of the economy experienced breathing spells, as they adjust from the current extraordinary rate to a more normal rate."

However, he added that such a pause in the boom would probably be only a period during which the economy would be generating "new force for another climb."

Weeks said that as 1955 ends and 1956 opens "confidence is widespread and the spending rate is high."

Consumer Income Rising.

With consumer income rising, business investing heavily to increase and improve its output, he said, "ample opportunity rises for further advances in consumer living standards and expansion of markets for business."

He said in his summary of 1955:

The nation's total production of goods and services rose by 27 billion dollars to a total estimated at about 387 billions. After making allowances for price changes it appeared that actual production increased about 6 per cent in 1955, and was about 4 per cent higher than in 1953, the previous record year.

Rapid expansion in the production of the automobile industry and in construction paced the general economic advance.

Personal income shot up by 15 billion dollars to a total estimated at about 303 billion dollars, a new record. Spending income—income remaining after payment of taxes—reached 269 billion dollars, 6 per cent more than in 1954.

Virtually all of the economic expansion was by and for the private economy. Total Government purchases of goods and services were lower by about one billion dollars in 1955 than in the year before. Federal purchases, chiefly national security expenditures, dropped by about three billion dollars, while state and local government spending rose by about two billion dollars.

SUFFERS FATAL ATTACK AND FALLS AGAINST AUTO

Walter L. Cowhey, 4319 South Grand boulevard, an accountant, suffered a fatal heart attack last night and fell against a moving automobile as he stood in a safety zone at Eighteenth and Olive streets. He was 69 years old.

Police believed at first that he was killed by the auto, driven by Mrs. Lillian McClelland, but further examination showed that his injuries were minor. An autopsy today showed the cause of death was a coronary thrombosis.

PAIR MARRIED 64 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund E. Lecure celebrated their sixty-fourth wedding anniversary yesterday with a luncheon for their family and friends at their home, 4262 McPherson avenue.

Lecure is a retired government worker. He is 86 years old and his wife 82. They have four children, six grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren.

U.S. URGES U.N. OPEN SESSIONS WITH PRAYER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Dec. 30 (UP)—The United States called on the United Nations today to invoke the aid of God "openly and audibly" at every session of the General Assembly to insure achievement of "God's peace."

United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. released the text of a letter sent to each of the other 75 members of the United Nations proposing that formal prayers by priests of any religions represented in the U.N. replace the customary minute of silent prayer or meditation at the opening and closing of each Assembly.

The minute of silence was made a U.N. practice in 1949 when original attempts to institute a prayer period ran into political opposition because of the diversity of faiths.

Officially, 12 delegates have replied to Lodge's proposal, some with enthusiasm and some noncommital. Privately, delegates of various faiths said they felt the plan is impractical and unworkable.

COURT WON'T REOPEN UTILITY TAX CASE

Decision Figures in Fight Between Railroads, 11 Missouri Counties.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 30 (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court declined today to reopen a case holding that a utility does not have to pay special fire district taxes.

Chief Justice C. A. Leedy Jr. said that case was closed and the court would have no jurisdiction to grant the rehearing desired by prosecuting attorneys of 11 counties in their fight with railroads over special road district taxes.

Leedy told John Hosmer, Webster county prosecutor, the court could not accept his motion to reopen the fire district case decided last September. He advised Hosmer to seek a change in the law from the next Legislature.

"It's a legislative omission," Leedy said. "What they need is legislative relief."

Hosmer and the spokesmen of 10 other counties agreed yesterday they should try to reopen the September case and also should ask Gov. Phil M. Donnelly to include a tax law change in any special legislative session call. The other counties are: Jackson, Boone, Bates, Callaway, Monroe, Stoddard, Audrain, Osage, Barry and Pettis.

With the Supreme Court route closed, the counties could still ask the Governor to authorize legislative study of the problem. But the only way they could get the issue of road district utility taxes before the Supreme Court would be to file suits in their counties to collect the taxes some railroads have refused to pay.

Hosmer started the move for joint action after the Webster county collector told him last Friday the tax check from the St. Louis-San Francisco Railroad did not include payment of special road levies.

The attorneys hope Donnelly will also include a tax law change in any special session call so the difficulty will not arise again.

If the proposed $75,000,000 bond issue passes Jan. 24, Donnelly has said he would call a special session so legislators could allocate the money for needed buildings at state institutions.

The attorneys think the present tax law can be changed easily so counties and their subdivisions, like special road districts, would have a clear legal right to levy taxes against utilities.

Last September, one division of the Supreme Court held that Kansas City Power and Light Co. did not have to pay the tax levied by a Jackson county special fire district.

On that theory, at least four railroads—the Frisco, Wabash, Cotton Belt and Missouri Pacific—refused to pay some of the special levies assessed in the counties. It cut deeply into their revenues.

For instance, Stoddard county was $11,000 short of the amount it expected and Webster county got $3600 less than it had counted on.

Apparently Bates county would be the big loser if the Supreme Court decision stands. The amount involved there is estimated at $18,000.

HENNINGS ASKS THAT COURT POST GO TO A MISSOURIAN

President Eisenhower and Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., have been asked to name a Missourian to fill the vacancy on the United States Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. of Missouri, he announced yesterday.

In letters to the President and Brownell, Hennings recommended no particular individual for the post but pointed out that over the past five years Missouri has provided the court with 40 to 53 per cent of its cases. Despite this fact, only one Missourian was on the bench at the time—Judge John Caskie Collet, who died last Dec. 5, Hennings wrote.

Gold Freed in Belgium.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 30 (AP)—The sale of gold was freed from all restrictions throughout Belgium and the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg today. An order published in the Luxembourg official gazette re-established full freedom for the sale, import and export of gold in either coins or ingots. A similar decree was published in Belgium's official gazette.

LATE YEAR-END STOCK RALLY; MARKED GAINS

Dow-Jones Industrial Stock Index Reaches New Peak.

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (AP)—The stock market closed higher today with a final rush of trading that swamped the ticker.

For a brief time, the ticker was unable to keep pace with the progress on the floor of the exchange and ended the year late.

Prices were up one to around three points at the outside in key areas while losses got to about a point.

(The United Press said industrial shares ran up to an all-time record high in their Dow-Jones average in the last stock market session of 1955 today. The average decisively pierced the former high set on Dec. 8. The gains held with demand developing late in the day for several blue chips such as duPont which rose nearly 3 points. All groups participated.)

Trading was much more active than recent sessions at an esimated 2,500,000 shares, but it still was a little below the daily average so far this year. Yesterday's total was 2,190,000 shares with the market lower.

The rally at no time was a run-away affair. There were sales for cash and immediate delievry right to the end of the day.

The better acting divisions included the steels, coppers, oils, and railroads while also higher were the rubbers, radio-televisions, building materials, and the utilities. The motors were higher in a subdued manner.

Higher stocks included New York Central, Texas Co., American Telephone, Du Pont, Norwich Pharmacal, U.S. Steel, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, North American Aviation, and Zenith Radio.

In most past years, stock has swung into a spirited rally in the week between Christmas and the New Year as the pressure of tax selling lifted.

This year, there was high anticipation of the rally because the market had been unable to break through its old high established Sept. 23 and reached again in the early part of December. This inability to make a decisive penetration of the previous highs was regarded as an adverse development. Hence the anxiousness in Wall Street over whether a year end rally would develop in strength.

The market was irregularly lower Tuesday and it continued to slip Wednesday and Thursday.

U.S. TREASURY ISSUES IN SLIGHT RISE AT NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (AP)—Convertible and utility issues moved up in late trading today to boost the bond market higher. Trading was relatively light.

United States treasury securities continued to advance in the over-the-counter market. Gains in both intermediate and long-range bonds ran up to 2-32.

1955 AUTO OUTPUT SHORT 59,138 OF 8 MILLION TOTAL

DETROIT, Dec. 30 (AP)—The automobile industry fell shorts its much coveted 8,000,000 passenger units production goal for 1955 by 59,138 units, or about one and a half normal production days, Ward's Automotive Reports said.

The agency estimated this week's output at 104,982 cars and 13,815 trucks or 30.1 per cent below last week's trimmed down Christmas pace of 150,881 cars and 19,103 trucks. The week's production declined 16.6 per cent from 1954's final week count of 124,250 cars and 18,134 trucks.

Canadian production for the year was put at 377,358 cars and 74,953 trucks for a 452,311 total. The total for both countries came to 8,318,220 cars and 1,322,752 trucks for a grand total of 9,640,972 units.

Last year's grand total was 6,889,181 units. Of this, the United States produced 5,509,399 cars and 1,024,899 trucks for a 6,534,298 total and Canada turned out 288,373 cars and 66,510 trucks for a 354,883 total.

Major washout on Highway 101 which came to light as flood waters of the Eel river receded near Eureka, Calif. Long section of highway hangs out in space where roadbed was washed away. INDIVIDUALIST

Amanda Rossale Spuler puffing on treasured clay pipe at her home in Buckskin hills of southern Ohio. Devoted to "stone" pipes for most of her 81 years, Miss Spuler laments the fact that much of the comfort of life is missing now that the pipes are unobtainable. The general store at her town of Bainbridge has tried in vain to find replacements for her last pipe, which is hauled out only rarely these days. Cob pipes just don't taste right, she complains.

The house, 60 feet long and weighing more than 60 tons, was balanced on a low-slung, single-bed truck for the trip.

First Butchering Of the Season

By Leonard Hall

WE decided last week—Matt and I—that a bit of fresh pork for the holidays would not be amiss. So on a morning which was very cold, but sunny and windless, we made everything ready for the first butchering of the season. Out on the south side of the machine shed behind the house, where the sun strikes warm, we assembled the big black kettles to heat our water and then set up the scalding barrel and got our fires going. One of the hay wagons with a low flat bed was wheeled into place to serve as a work table, and a simple scaffold erected for hanging our hog after it had been scalded and scraped clean. Sharp knives and a whetstone were laid out handy and a bucket of wood ashes from the fireplace set beside the scalding barrel. A handful or two of ashes in the water are a big help in insuring a good, clean job of scraping.

The first important step in making the butchering go smoothly is to have the water in the scalding barrel at the right temperature. If it is too cool, the hair won't slip; if too hot, the skin is parboiled and the hair "sets." Matt's recipe for testing the water is an old-fashioned one which seems to work perfectly; it should be hot enough so you can just run your hand through it three times without being scalded. What happens if you parboil yourself while making the test is a question; but at any rate, when we dunked our porker down tail first, swished him in and out and laid him on the table, we got what is called a "good scald." So it wasn't long until the carcass was thoroughly scraped, all hair removed, and hanging head down from the scaffold.

THE ONLY TOOLS really needed for butchering are a couple of butcher knives of good quality, honed to a razor edge. There are regular scrapers on the market and we have a pair of them which are always laid out ready to use, but somehow they never seem to work as well as the sharp knives. Once the carcass is hung and sluiced down thoroughly, first with hot water and then with cold, it is ready to open up. In our butchering there is admittedly a small amount of waste, since we don't save the blood for blood sausage such as the German farmers like to make, nor clean the "innards" to make casings for smoked sausage as we used to do in the old days. Yet these and the bristles are about the only parts which aren't used. Lungs, kidneys, heart and melts make fine food for Mike, Tiger and old Veronica; while the liver is carefully set aside for pate, a kind of liver paste which is delicious served for hors d'oeuvres. Since on this occasion we were butchering just one pig to be divided between Matt's family and ours, we split the carcass by sawing it down the backbone and then hung the two halves separately to chill. Nor did this take long in the 20-degree temperature and by mid-afternoon we were ready for the cutting up process. We'd purposely selected a rather lean bacon-type pig of about 190 pounds for our butchering. This is an ideal size for the small family, turning out little lard and cuts of meat which are extremely convenient.

THERE IS REALLY nothing complicated about cutting up the carcass. First the feet are removed and set aside and then the ham and shoulder cuts are blocked off roughly. We like a fairly long ham and so we saw through the backbone just at the rise of the pelvic joint. The shoulder is blocked off in the same way, with the backbone being cut through at the third rib. These cuts are then set aside to be trimmed. Next the leaf lard which lines the ribs is peeled out and the tenderloin removed, this being a delicacy too good to be left in with the pork roasts or chops. Then the loin is removed from the bacon strip by sawing straight through the ribs and the spareribs and cut out. We generally cut the loin into pork roasts, making four roasts to the side which is a convenient size for freezing. Then the bacon strip is squared up and except for cutting up the lean trimmings for sausage and trimming out the fat for lard, the job is about complete. In processing the head, the jowls can be removed for smoking and the remainder, after being completely cleaned, can be cooked for such products as head cheese. Sausage meat and lard are taken to the locker plant for processing, since they are to be frozen anyway. That is, all except a good package which comes home to be seasoned with salt, black and red pepper, rubbed sage and a pinch of fines herbes. If there's a finer breakfast than fresh sausage, fried apples, a dash of pan gravy and hot biscuits, I think one would have to climb Mount Olympus to find it.

IT SEEMS TO US that there are a good many farmers today—and these include many who operate typical family-sized farms—who have gotten away from the idea of "production for use" as well as for sale. Actually, it isn't hard to see how this has come about. The day of low standard subsistence farming is long over, except for a few backward and sub-marginal areas. Modern farms operate with less labor and much more intensively in this age of machinery and technology, so that farming is a business, as much as a living. In order to justify its existence, the farm must be geared to produce its share of food and fiber for a nation which has become overwhelmingly urban. Moreover, in order to own the tools for modern farming and to provide his family with the comforts of modern living, the farmer must produce considerable cash income—for these things cost money.

We've always believed, however, that the farm family which completely abandons "production for use" is missing a lot of good living. It is, moreover, putting in a great deal of work producing things to sell wholesale and then buying some of them back at retail. This is uneconomical and self-defeating. Most of these things for home use, of course, come in the food category. And to our way of thinking, there's little reason why any good farm family shouldn't enjoy its own pork and beef, fine fruits and vegetables, eggs, poultry and milk products. The advantage in dollars may not be very great, though enough to be worth while. The real gain comes in the quality and quantity of superlative foods added to the family diet. This should be one of the automatic rewards of farming.

Try and Stop Me

AN Iowa farm boy got his very first look at the Atlantic ocean when he was drafted and assigned to a New Jersey camp. He barely had gotten into uniform when he found himself a sentry on the beach, instructed to hold his ground. The officer of the day found him there some hours later, up to his hips in the swirling waters of the incoming tide. "Idiot!" barked the O.D. "Are you trying to get drowned?" "No, sir," spluttered the soaked recruit. "I'm holding my ground like you told me. But this here crick's done rizz."

Biggest Little Stories of the Year

As a Sample, Sgt. Friday Actually Gave a Ticket to Davy Crockett

By H. D. Quigg

NEW YORK, Dec. 30 (UP) THE biggest little stories of the year (packaged and labeled for placement in the broad sweep of history):

Nature: In January, in Owen Sound, Ont., a lady phoned Constable W. C. Crawford that a skunk was in her cellar. He told her: "Make a trail of breadcrumbs from the cellar to the yard and then wait for the skunk to follow it out." She did. Soon he got another call. Same lady. "Now I've got two skunks in my cellar," she said.

Drama: In March, in Ventura, Calif., a villain lay in ambush, a hero walked toward death. Frenk Stretch, 11, couldn't stand it. He leveled his BB gun. He fired. The villain disappeared. So did the hero. So did the TV tube.

Conscience: In April, in Chicago, the Internal Revenue Bureau got, anonymously, $400. The sender said it would apply on a $1000 overdue tax bill. He added: "If I still can't sleep, I will send you the balance."

WILD Frontier: In June, in Mount Clemens, Mich., police got a call to rescue from a tree "a boy in a Davy Crockett hat." They found an indignant racoon.

Outrageous Fortune: Same month, in Philadelphia, Mrs. Walter Bradhering wasn't home when they called to tell her she had won a trip to Spain. She was in Spain, on vacation.

THE VILLAIN DISAPPEARED. SO DID THE HERO. SO DID THE TV TUBE.

Machine Age: In July, in Detroit, Mich., the air-conditioning got Mayor Albert Cobo's office so cool that a thermostat turned on the radiators. The office got up to 90 degrees before they could get the heat off.

Circumstance: Also July, in Los Angeles, a policeman waved a red-light violator to the curb. "I'm Sergeant Friday," the cop said. "And I'm Davy Crockett," said the driver. Then Sgt. Lester Friday got the facts. David W. Crockett, 20, got a ticket.

COMMERCE: In August, in the Panama Canal, traffic jammed. Cause: A cow swimming in Gatun Lock chamber. Officials towed it ashore and advised that bathing in that area was restricted.

Hope: In September, in Charlotte, N.C., Judge J. E. D. J. N. S. W. E. D. Henderson turned 76, stuck with his initials, and told a sad story: His mother had named him after all his uncles, hopefully. But Uncles Jackson, Ezekiel, David, James, Nathaniel, Sylvester, Willis, Edward and Demosthenes had all passed on without leaving him a dime.

Frailty: In November, in Beverly Hills, Calif., actress Gloria Rhodes told police 18 pairs of panties stolen from her clothesline were worth $150. Why? "Because they're embroidered with a fig leaf and have rhinestones on them."

Purposeful action: In December, in New York, a New Jersey man wrote to the editor of the Daily News: "I'm sick of this Taft-Hartley bill. I say we should pay it and get it over with."

Ripley's Believe It or Not

Solving A Difficult Problem

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M. D.

THE cause of nausea is not always evident. Often this common symptom becomes a difficult problem for us doctors to solve.

For example, consider the patient that I saw with a colleague last week. She is a youthful looking woman of 65. Unfortunately she has more spirit than she has physical drive. Very active in business and community affairs until one year ago, she was a bundle of vitality until she suffered an attack of coronary thrombosis. (I think it might be well to remind you, that although this disease has a predeliction for men, the female of the species is no stranger to coronary disease.)

She was incapacitated for about three months, then returned to manage a large business downtown. Unfortunately she became too active and overstrained an already weak heart. Her legs became edematous (water-logged) and the doctors prescribed digitalis and mercurials. Her legs thinned down to normal and her breathing improved.

ABOUT A MONTH AGO a new symptom appeared: nausea. She developed a distaste for all food. The nausea was severe enough to disturb her sleep at night. Although her urine was negative for sugar, her doctor had wisely ordered a fasting blood sugar a few days ago. This showed up as 200 mgm. per 100 cc. (which all my readers with any knowledge of the condition will immediately recognize as diabetes).

Her pulse was weak, her skin was dry and she had the "sweet breath" of acidosis which is usual in unrecognized diabetes. I have given you the problem. I have taken you behind the scenes to show you how an ordinary symptom like nausea can make us doctors scratch our heads.

Here are two leads to the probable cause: 1. Too much digitalis. 2. Diabetic acidosis. Were these the only possibilities? How about nausea due to gastric ulcer, kidney disease or cancer? To a viral gastro-enteritis or a hepatitis? To a so-called nervous stomach? And how about dozens of other possible causes?

LET ME SAY that in diagnosis as in any other field of endeavor, a "bird in the hand is worth two in the bush." The most likely causes "in hand" were either too much digitalis or two much sugar. I don't suppose the discovery of the culprit is as exciting to you lay readers as it would be to doctors. Nevertheless, having come this far, it's only fair to tell you: It wasn't the digitalis, it was the diabetic acidosis that was the cause.

Her doctor allowed her to continue with the previous dose of digitalis. Simultaneously he prescribed insulin (in moderate doses because of her coronary condition). In a few days her blood sugar was normal; her acidosis disappeared—and with it, her nausea.

Her doctor tells me she is a happy spirited woman again. She told him this morning: "Doctor, you'll never know how that nausea was getting me down. I was about ready to give up. Here's one patient who is tickled to know she has diabetes. It's certainly better to know and be well, than to have no inkling that you have it—and be as sick as a dog." Amen.

THERE ARE TWO THOUGHTS I'd like you to take away with you from today's column. The first is this: common symptoms sometimes mask uncommon conditions. Diagnosis is not always cut and dried. It can be trying for the doctor—but more so for his patient, who is the one who really suffers.

The second thought: If you have a family history of diabetes and you have diabetic symptoms yourself (thirst, frequent urination, loss of weight in spite of voracious appetite); do not rely entirely upon the results of the urinary tests for sugar. As in the patient we have been discussing, remember it is possible at the same time to have a high blood sugar and a urine free of sugar.

Now, there's no need for everybody to become anxious and go stampeding to laboratories to have blood sugar tests made. Nevertheless, walk (do not run) to the nearest medical laboratory for a blood sugar test if your doctor is suspicious of diabetes.

Answer to Question 1.

NO, says "Changing Times." Women, they say, buy 80 per cent of all ties. So manufacturers make them to please women—not men. Women buy louder colors, fancier patterns, outdoor scenes, fried-egg patterns, polka dots, bull's eyes, splotched effects, paisleys, and ties that resemble draperies. Men like conservative stripes and simple patterns. To hold your man, find what he likes not what you like, says these psychologists.

Answer to Question 2.

True, as shown by entomologist, E. O. Essig. Insects have defeated all enemies for some 250,000,000 years and have incredible rates of reproduction. One housefly would produce—in our summer—191 billion, billion descendants, if all lived. Man has enormously increased the number of many species. For instance, by planting potatoes for the potato bug, corn for the corn borers, and houses for termites. Formerly their natural enemies confined them to small areas.

Answer to Question 3.

True, says high-school principal Vincent De Pasquale in "Better Homes and Gardens." In 23 schools he has instituted a nongraded system, divided into years not grades. No child fails, as there are no promotions or demotions. Each child goes at his own natural pace. He begins each year where he left off. The slow learners are given work they like and can make good at; fast learners, the same. Drop-outs have almost vanished, and frustration, maladjustment, and delinquency greatly decreased.

Fix It Yourself

Troubles With Doors.

WE spend a good deal of our time watching doors. Some people, who don't understand, call this loafing but we call it research. Here are some of the results of our more recent research into the field of doors.

You find many doors that stick either at the top or at the bottom. Sometime it's not so much a matter of sticking as of the edge of the door striking the top of the door casing or the threshold. Now when this occurs, many people take the door down and plane off enough wood from the edge to get the door working but a better method is just to reposition the door in the opening so that there is an equal clearance at the top and bottom.

All you have to do is remove the hinges from the door jamb and then enlarge the mortices on the jamb which the hinges fit into so that the door can be either pushed up a fraction of an inch or lowered depending on which edge is causing the trouble.

Another interesting thing that happens to some doors is that they shrink. Some of them shrink so much that the latch no longer engages in the strike plate and you also have a wide crack between the side of the door and the door jamb. The way to handle this one is to take the door down, remove the hinges from the side of the door and then fill in these hinge mortices with plastic wood filler.

Now you fasten a strip of wood to the hinge side of the door with screws and glue. The strip of wood should be about as thick as the crack was between the door and the jamb. The hinges are then reset in this strip of wood and the door rehung.

Dance-Length Dress

Secrets of Charm

Your Beauty Resolutions

WITH the beginning of the New Year, a great many of us become somewhat conscious of our daily habits and behavior, and in penance resolve to mend our ways — to improve ourselves. Once a year we can sort of "clean house," as it were. The resolves, projected by an inner spring which wells up, should make us realize that we aren't making the most of ourselves or living according to our capacities.

IT'S TIME TO CHECK UP ON YOUR CHARM.

Are you satisfied with yourself? Are you the woman you think you are . . . or, the woman others think you are? These are questions that a charmer should survey. For you may consider yourself a paragon of right doing, although your behavior may give an entirely false impression . . . and so lower your charm quotient in the eyes of others.

The graph below lists the golden keys to a beloved personality. Fill in the estimate of your own qualities . . . then mark yourself excellent, good, fair, or poor; and do it honestly. You can see where you are lacking . . . make up discrepancies and when you do say, "I resolve to do better" . . . then your beautiful and charming life really begins.

The New Films

By Myles Standish

Prophet of Air Power

"THE COURT-MARTIAL OF BILLY MITCHELL," which opens at the FOX tomorrow, is generally disappointing. The case is of the brigadier-general, head of the air division of the Army forces in France in World War I, whose fiery charges of Army-Navy lack of vision in preparing a defense of the country after the war, failure to develop a powerful air force, and general incompetence, delivered with open insubordination, rocked the country, and forced the Army to court-martial him and suspend him in 1925. It should have been a natural, both as a document and drama. But, ironically, it provides far less dramatic excitement and cohesive power than a recent British film, "Court-Martial," merely about the trial of an officer who took 200 pounds from the battery safe.

I lay this first, to a weak, diffuse and tedious screenplay by Milton Sperling and Emmet Lavery, and, second, to the incompetence of Gary Cooper as Gen. Mitchell. Gary plays the dynamic, aggressive Mitchell in a style that is even more bumbling and desultory than ever. Not until near the end, when Rod Steiger, as Maj. Allan Guillon, the Army prosecutor, conducts a sneering and vicious cross-examination of Mitchell, does the picture perk up. Then it goes into dramatic high, so forceful is Steiger's performance. (Actually, reading the newspaper accounts of the trial, I find no mention of Mitchell testifying or being cross-examined. He delivered a brief summation of his case.)

The film does have a valid theme for dramatic exploitation—naturally, the armed services would be chaos if every man defied discipline and did as he chose, but did a higher duty to the nation justify Mitchell in his deliberate defiance in which he courted the trial which he turned into a national sounding board for his views? This is never shaped into strong dramatic form, but finally eludes us in the mass of testimony.

As a document the film has some distortions. It gives us the impression Mitchell was demoted to Colonel as a punishment for sinking a captured German battleship in 1921 (also, a cruiser, although it isn't mentioned) with low level aerial attack in defiance of orders for a bombing test; actually, he wasn't demoted until 1925, after repeated public attacks on the defense setup and air efficiency.

Mitchell's methods sold the public, if not the Army or Congress, on the necessity for better contemporary air efficiency and the development of adequate future air power, and many of his prophecies on future air organization and strategy proved true.

But the film is completely one-sided. Mitchell, although his views and predictions were proved to be on the right track, sometimes was so sweeping and extreme in his predictions as to rashly overstate his case. In 1920 he said the first battle of the next war, to be fought in the air, "would be the last." Battleships and other surface vessels, he said, would be "completely driven off the water." Later, in 1934, much closer to World War II, he asserted 50 dirigibles could destroy Japan in two days.

The film encourages the idea of omniscience in this prophet rather inexcusably in one instance. It has him predict in testimony at his court-martial the exact manner in which the Japanese would attack Pearl Harbor—a quite uncanny prophecy. But I find nothing, pouring through the newspaper clippings, to indicate he said any such thing. In 1935, the year before his death, he did testify before a Congressional Military Affairs Committee that Japan would try to take Alaska and the Aleutians by air attack — "come swooping down out of the fog" — and use them as a base for bombing the United States.

Gruesome, Gory and Goo...

IF master s-s-shocker Henri-Georges Clouzot keeps up this pace much longer he'll have the whole town s-s-shaking. With his "Wages of Fear" still playing here, another of the famed French director-producer's spine tingling productions, "Diabolique," (this one has English sub-titles) will open tonight at the Shady Oak. And Clouzot's latest effort—a vast hit in his native land—will do nothing but enhance his enviable record of outstanding and nerve-wracking films.

As its setting, "Diabolique," one of the goriest murder tales to hit any-sized movie screen, utilizes—of all places—a boy's school in the outskirts of Paris. The all-around well-acted story evolves around a seamy little triangle: sadistic Paul Meurisse, who runs the school, Vera Clouzot, the headmaster's fragile wife who owns the institution of learning, and Simone Signoret, the good-looking mistress who—among other things—also teaches at the school.

Life is so rough for both women that they establish an unholy alliance of friendship, put their heads together and conclude that murdering their mutual tormentor is the only answer. After some soul-searching the wife agrees to join the plot, and the pair lures the victim to the south of France during a three-day mid-term vacation.

Methodically and almost professionally, the mistress, with some inept assistance from the spouse, goes about the unpleasant task of drowning the drugged headmaster in a bathtub. Even with this gruesome task going on right before the audience's eyes, Clouzot artfully injects a laugh-provoking episode of a married couple in the murder house fighting the noisy distraction of running water (needed for the crime) to listen to a radio giveaway show.

Hauled back to the school (in a wicker basket, of course), the victim is dumped by his murderers into the institution's scum-covered swimming pool. In due time when the body fails to rise to the surface, the enterprising females have the pool emptied. Still no body. Then the fun (?) starts.

Of course, the body shows up. How? Sorry, but the Shady Oak has adopted a closed-door policy during the run of this feature, seating no one once the main attraction begins. And, unfortunately, you began reading this review right in the middle of the show. EDWARD KOSMAL.

That's Record of Pianist Tony Han, Now Visiting Here — Will Make New York Debut in April

By Clarissa Start

FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD Tony Han is looking forward to the beginning of the baseball practice session in spring. He's hoping he can go out for it, as he's had pretty good luck in basektball and soccer at the junior high school he attends. He seems to have an aptitude for sports.

However, Tony may be too busy to spend a lot of time playing baseball as he has a few other plans for spring. A concert with the Indianapolis Symphony. A concert, with Sir Thomas Beecham conducting, at the University of Illinois. And on April 28, his debut as a concert pianist at Carnegie Hall.

"April will be very busy," says Tony, shaking his head solemnly.

Tony, whose more formal name is Tong Il Han, came to this country from his home in Korea, in June 1954, on a trip sponsored by men of the Fifth Air Force who were convinced that he was a piano prodigy. Thus far, all indications are that the men in the Fifth Air Force knew a good thing. Tony's progress at Juilliard School of Music in New York, where he's been studying under a scholarship, has been gratifying to his Air Force angels and especially to his discoverer, Lt. Gen. S. E. Anderson, former commander of the Fifth Air Force, and Lt. Thomas S. Cutshaw, Tony's interpreter, adviser, and friend.

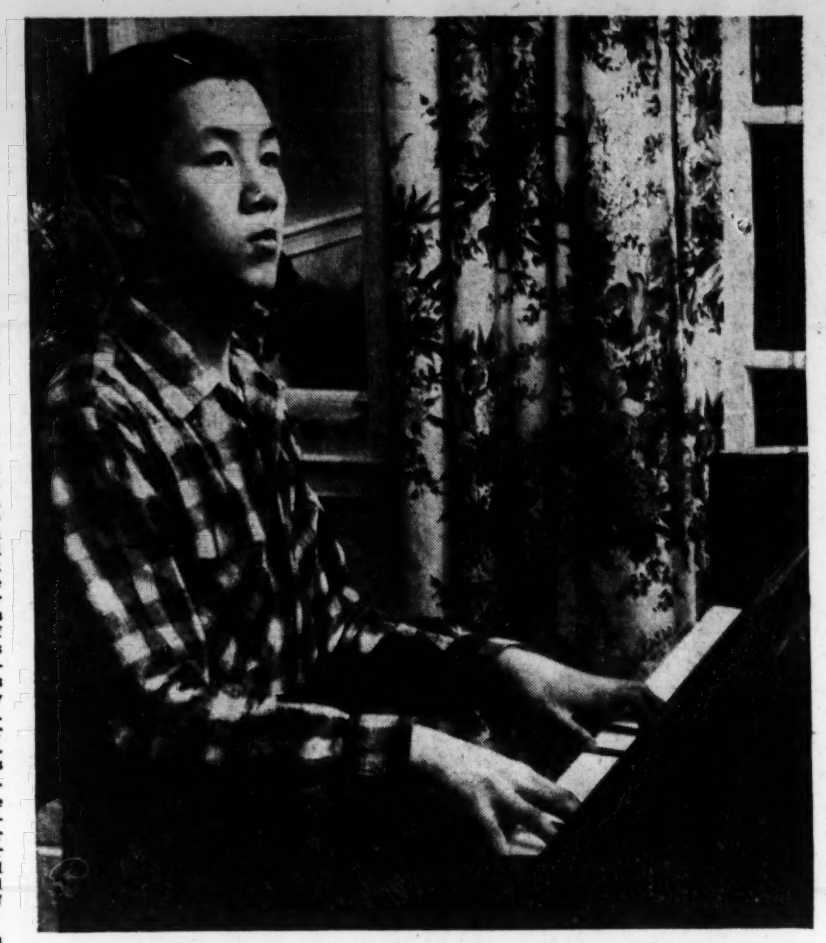

Tony has been spending the holidays in St. Louis with Cutshaw, his wife, the former Alicia May Tyson, and their two children, two-year-old Thomas Jr. and nine-month-old Julia, at the Tyson home, 7 Maryhill drive, in Ladue.

Christmas here hadn't been too different from Christmas in his home, he observed, since his family are Presbyterians and observe a traditional Christian holiday. In Korea, carolers go around at midnight on Christmas eve and on Christmas night there are church services, and the Sunday school gives prizes to outstanding students. Tony won the first prize one year.

This year one of the high spots of his visit was his gift from Lt. Cutshaw, a phonograph in a travel case. He was hoping that another highlight would be a long-distance phone call to his parents who are with his brother and three sisters in Seoul.

"Last year I called home and talked to my mother," Tony says, "but this year we haven't been able to get through. What did we talk about? Oh, nothing, just how are you? I wrote down everything I was going to say and then I got excited and was talking before I knew it."

Tony received his first musical training at home from his father, a timpani player with the Korean National Symphony Orchestra. His instruction might have started earlier, but the Hans were driven out of their original home in North Korea by the Communist invasion, and all their belongings, including their piano, were confiscated. The family moved to Pusan, later to Seoul, and when their life was more settled, Tony's musical education began.

IN October 1953, when he was 11 years old, Tony appeared on a program at the Fifth Air Force theater in Seoul. Gen. Anderson hear him and was so impressed that he sent him on a tour of Air Force installations.

Lt. Cutshaw, official interpreter for the Fifth Air Force, was sent along with him. The men in the Air Force took up a collection to send Tony to the United States, and finally amassed $4900, a fund which is now being disbursed by the Institute of International Education. Lt. Cutshaw, a pianist and graduate student in philosophy at Fordham University before he entered the Air Force, wrote to people he knew at Juilliard and told them of the boy's unusual ability. On the strength of his recommendation, they awarded Tony a scholarship without having heard him play.

LT. THOMAS S. CUTSHAW HE HELPED TONY ALONG THE MUSICAL ROAD TO AMERICA.

In New York he lives with a Korean family, the Sins, who were friends of his parents. He attends St. Hilda's junior high school but only as a special student as he cannot devote a full day to normal studies. His schedule is enough to make any dedicated adult artist blanch. He attends Juilliard from 9 to 1:30, where he studies with Mme. Rosina Llevinne, teacher of prodigies, then St. Hilda's from 1:30 to 3:30. He practices until dinner time, practices again after dinner, a total average of five hours sandwiched in somewhere or other. After his evening practice, he does homework and goes to bed. Occasionally he sees TV or a movie.

He also plays soccer and basketball, has been captain of the team, and assures you blandly that, "Nobody can play better than me." In his school work he is studying English, "the mathematic," science, geography, and history. He would like to study French and Latin but must perfect his English first. All in all, he has been "too busy to be homesick," he says.

Earlier this year he performed in concerts at Texas Christian University and Fort Worth Auditorium in Fort Worth, Tex., and wtih the Dallas Symphony. Walter Hendl, conductor, wanted Tony to accompany him on a tour of the Far East but he could not arrange to be away from school that long. He has appeared in Montreal where Wilfred Pelletier conducted.

On Jan. 27, he will play in the all-student concert at Juilliard, in itself an honor, inasmuch as all the best students are auditioned and one chosen from each category to perform. On Feb. 26 he will play Tschaikowsky's First Piano Concerto with the Indianapolis Symphony, and on April 24 will play in a concert at the University of Illinois, where Lt. Cutshaw is now assistant professor of air science. On April 27 Tony will make his Carnegie Hall debut, again with Pelletier conducting, and this time he will get his first large-scale judgment by critics. Thus far the critical reaction has been exceedingly flattering.

AMERICANIZED in his dress—plaid shirt, blue jeans, a Texas cowboy belt—Tony has acquired what is considered an American attribute, that of self-confidence. He is extremely ambitious and quite sure he will accomplish his goals.

"I had a long talk with Gen. Anderson a few months ago and he asked me what I wanted to do, to go back home or stay here," Tony says. "I told him I will not go back to Korea until I make a great pianist. After I am started on my career here I hope to go to other countries, maybe Germany, Italy, Paris, too. But that will be when I'm older, 20 or 21."

Lt. Cutshaw is equally enthusiastic and optimistic about Tony's prospects.

"I think this kind of thing, giving someone the opportunity to do what he wants to do, is what has made this country great," Lt. Cutshaw says. "With the help of Juilliard and the Air Force, he's having the chance of a lifetime. And he's measuring up."

Tony's immediate plans are to continue at Juilliard until he is ready to launch his career. After just a year and a half of training there, he is in the master class for advanced students. There is only one other child in the group, a 10-year-old boy.

"He plays good, too," says Tony. "He has hands just so big," he indicated a span stopping at his knuckles, "but he can do all octaves." He paused a moment. "But he can't catch a ball," he said.

Glistening Trend

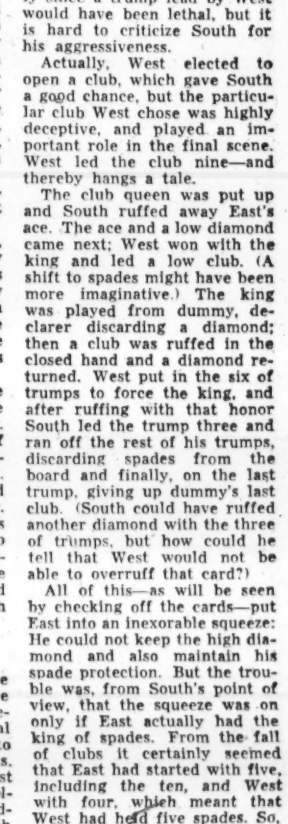

Pearly tints and pure white textures are illustrative of the glistening trend of holiday evening dresses. Sprays of crystal and rhinestones contribute to the starry, glittering effects. One white silk satin shirtwaist dress in the Harvey Berin collection has light-catching golddust in bands that run the length of the dress. Another is of lace layered on satin and then circled the full width of the skirt with lace flower wreaths sprinkled with miniature sparklers.

Contract Bridge

The following column is prepared by experts using the bridge system developed by the late Ely Culbertson.

WITH all the cards in sight it is easy to say that South should have made his slam contract in the deal below, but the fact was that he had quite a problem.

North	East	South	West
1♠	Pass	3♥	Pass
3♠	Pass	4♦	Pass
4♥	Pass	6♥	Pass
Pass	Pass

The final contract was not ideal, by any means, particularly since a trump lead by West would have been lethal, but it is hard to criticize South for his aggressiveness.

Actually, West elected to open a club, which gave South a good chance, but the particular club West chose was highly deceptive, and played an important role in the final scene. West led the club nine—and thereby hangs a tale.

The club queen was put up and South ruffed away East's ace. The ace and a low diamond came next; West won with the king and led a low club. (A shift to spades might have been more imaginative.) The king was played from dummy, declarer discarding a diamond; then a club was ruffed in the closed hand and a diamond returned. West put in the six of trumps to force the king, and after ruffing with that honor South led the trump three and ran off the rest of his trumps, discarding spades from the board and finally, on the last trump, giving up dummy's last club. (South could have ruffed another diamond with the three of trumps, but how could he tell that West would not be able to overruff that card?)

All of this—as will be seen by checking off the cards—put East into an inexorable squeeze: He could not keep the high diamond and also maintain his spade protection. But the trouble was, from South's point of view, that the squeeze was on only if East actually had the king of spades. From the fall of clubs it certainly seemed that East had started with five, including the ten, and West with four, which meant that West had held five spades. So, on percentage, South preferred to take the spade finesse—and went down two.

Pretty Fabrics

Silhouettes that range from the smooth and beltless to apron-skirted are interpreted in pretty fabrics for Southern wear. For day, linens are embroidered and woven-checked as well as plain. There are many cottons, too, including very sheer ones and tweed-patterned suitings. Silks vary from smooth silk broadcloth to textured striped and printed shantungs and linen-like silks. The featured fabrics for evening include silk chiffon, silk satin, and silk organza.

Words, Wit and Wisdom —By William Morris

What's in a Name? Plenty!

NAMES make news! Now that surely is a lesson that every cub reporter should learn long before he sees his first byline. Yet it's a fact that even those of us who have been writing for years can occasionally overlook. Just a few columns ago, for example, I wrote about some of the interesting stories behind common given names. Almost as an afterthought I suggested that anyone interested in the origin of his own name might drop me a line—and I'd do my best to trace it to its beginnings.

Came the deluge! I'm still trying to dig my way out of the stacks of letters. Just about everyone, it seems, is interested in learning what his or his wife's or girl friend's name originally meant. So today we'll run through a few of the names you asked about—taking up the rest from time to time in future columns.

FIRST A GROUP of girl's names for Miss Sheila Wotrang of Green Bay, Wis. Her own name, Sheila, is a variant of Cecilia which, in turn, came from the Latin word "caecus" meaning "blind." Not a very pleasant story behind that name, you might say—but you would be wrong.

The reason why this name has been so popular for so many centuries is that it was borne by one of the most admired of the early martyrs, St. Cecilia, who sang while she was being cruelly tortured for her faith—and thus became the patron saint of the music.

★ ★ ★

OTHER NAMES about which this reader inquires are Rae, Karla, Vicki and Lauri. Taking them up in order, Rae is a shortened form of Rachel, from the Hebrew word for "ewe." Thus it denotes gentleness and innocence. Karla is the feminine form of Charles or Karl—originally from the High German word for "full-grown man." Because so many kings from the time of Charlemagne on down were given the name of Charles, it came to mean "great man." So Karla would be "great lady."

Vicki, similarly, is the diminutive of Victoria, the feminine form of Victor. It comes directly from the Latin and means "victorious." Lauri or Laury are variant spelling of Laura from the Latin word for "laurel"—the symbol of victory. It would be interesting, should Vicki and Lauri set their caps (now there's an old-fashioned expression) for the same man, to see which one lives up to the promise of her name.

Etiquette Questions

By Amy Vanderbilt

QUESTIONS on wedding etiquette—many of which I have already answered—continue to pour in and so I would like to answer them as follows:

To begin with, I want to remind you that relatives do not properly give showers—they are given by friends or any of the wedding attendants who are not related to the bride. And those who are invited to a shower also receive an invitation to the wedding unless, of course, it's a wedding to be witnessed only by immediate relatives. If, however, it is to be followed by a reception of any size, those who attended the shower should be invited to the reception.

Women actually taking part in the wedding ceremony or appearing on the receiving line should not wear black—or red. Neutral and delicate colors are much more suitable. For the very conservative older women who feels she must adhere to dark colors for some reason, dark gray, amethyst or soft brown are all suitable.

Wedding guests wear what is appropriate to the time of day and the occasion. Many wear black, but usually relieve it with a festive color or at least with white.

And one more question I frequently get: Yes, the groom may wear a uniform when the ushers do not. In this case, the fathers of the bride and groom wear what the groom ordinarily would wear at that time of the day were in civilian clothes. The best man does likewise.

Miss Olin Makes Bow At Gay Viennese Ball

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

A NIGHT in Vienna, where light-hearted dancers waltz away their leisure hours, was re-created in the St. Louis Country Club last night as a setting for Miss Eunice Whitney Olin's debut ball. The guest of honor, whose coming-out party coincided with her birthday anniversary, is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Truman Olin of Fairmount, Alton. President of the sophomore class at Smith College, to which she will return in a few days, she was a special maid of honor in the Court of Love and Beauty at the Veiled Prophet's ball last October.

Decorations at the Country Club, housing its last holiday debutante ball, combined beauty and charm. Stars over the ancient Austrian city were suggested by hundreds of tiny globes which twinkled in midnight blue suede covering the wall opposite the front door. Before them rose a giant white fountain filled with white roses and snapdragon, and at either side stood shafts of greenery.

Lilting Viennese tunes were played by a dozen violinists who wandered through the middle lounge where Miss Olin, her parents and her college roommate, Miss Jennifer Rawson of Haiti, formerly of New Orleans, received their guests, and through the dining room where supper and breakfast were served. In the East room Russ David's orchestra, playing for dancing, featured waltzes immortalized by Johann Strauss.

A Viennese garden was suggested at the French doors where the receiving line stood. With a green hedge as a background, great clusters of deep red roses stood between tall white columns, the entablature above festooned with foliage and pale blossoms. White garden furniture stood at either side.

Gold satin-covered tables filled the dining room, in which a flower-hung pergola held by eight ceiling-high columns shaded a wire center area. The buffet table, stretching across the entire end of the room, was similarly covered in gold satin and, as a centerpiece, held a great cluster of matching roses in a gilded epergne.

For decoration on the smaller tables gold musical instruments — violins and tiny French horns — surrounded crystal hurricane lamps in which candles burned. Gilded musical notes were attached to the glass.

As strains of "The Blue Danube," "Tales of the Vienna Wood," "Wiener Blut," and "Wine, Women and Song" were wafted through the ballroom, a German band in Tyrolean costume played other old favorites in a beer garden established on the inclosed porch. Hot dogs and hamburgers were served from a long table and guests sat at smaller ones, all done in red and white checked cloths.

Shortly before midnight the dance orchestra struck up "Happy Birthday, Dear Judy," and a giant make-believe birthday cake was wheeled on a stand to the middle of the floor. Out of its pink and white top emerged seven-year-old Ellen Bell, in a pink ballet frock, who distributed sequined hats and colorful noisemakers.

Miss Olin, called Judy, rather than by her given name, wore the white gown in which she curtsied to the Veiled Prophet, and carried a large ostrich feather fan with a red, thousand-petal rose and tiny buds on the handle. The dress, of silk marquisette over layers of tulle, is embroidered at the throat with crystals and rhinestones. The skirt, slightly short in front, falls full from a low waistline where it is held by neopolitan red satin polonaise satin drapery. Miss Rawson was in white satin embroidered in pearls, the strapless bodice top defined at one side with red camellias and the skirt flaring full. Mrs. Olin's gown was white brocaded satin, with white satin folds around the bodice top finished with a side flange and a camellia corsage.

From out of town, for the party, came Mr. and Mrs. John C. Pritzlaff Jr., Miss Olin's brother-in-law and sister, Milwaukee; William Higgins, Worcester, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Preston Levis, their son, John P. Levis Jr., and Miss Mary Duncan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Duncan Jr., all of Toledo, O., formerly of Alton. Last night's debutante was graduated from Community School, attended John Burroughs and completed her preparatory studies at Miss Porter's School, Farmington, Conn.

Miss Belz Presented at Snowman Party.

MISS MARGARETHA HAGER BELZ made her second bow to society at a dinner party given last night at the University Club by her father, Henry Belz, Mrs. Belz and the debutante's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belz III. Miss Belz was introduced in October at a reception for family friends. At last night's party the debutantes and their beaux were entertained.

MISS BELZ . . . INTRODUCED AT CLUB PARTY.

As guests stepped from the elevator they were welcomed by a six-foot mechanical snowman. They were greeted in the lounge where a background of white Christmas trees was added to the club's seasonal decorations. Strolling minstrels provided music during the cocktail hour.

The debutante wore the gown in which she served last fall as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet Ball. Designed of gold Italian silk and antique gold tulle, the gown is designed with a strapless, fitted bodice, marked at the top with a flat self-bow, and a full skirt. She carried a muff of the material adorned with yellow nasturtiums. Mrs. Belz was in a strapless emerald green satin gown, the pleated bodice gathered at back into a wide skirt. Her flowers were green and white lady slippers. Mrs. Belz III chose a cocoa brown lace dress trimmed with sequins; the skirt flared full over net. Her corsage was composed of brown orchids.

Tables in the dining room were decorated alternately with tiny snowmen and white candle centerpieces with snowballs at the bases. The buffet table was centered by a large snowman, carved from ice. During dinner the orchestra played, featuring "Dance, Mr. Snowman," as the theme song. A floorshow was provided by "The Encores," recording artists who flew here from Chicago for the party.

The debutante attends Washington University School of Fine Arts where she is a dress design major. She is pledged to Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belz III and their three young daughters, Alice, Eleanor and Patricia, recently returned from a Christmas visit with Mrs. Belz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Percy of Katonah, N.Y.

Miss Deborah Anne Love Is Married To William T. Deacon Jr. in Florida

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NAPLES, Fla., Dec. 30.

MISS DEBORAH ANNE LOVE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Allan Love, and William T. Deacon Jr. were married Wednesday morning at the Little Episcopal Church, Trinity-by-the-Cove, near the Loves' winter home on Jamaica Channel.

Both principals are St. Louisans, as are their families. The Loves, who divide their time between Naples and St. Louis during the winter, live for the greater part of the year at 100 North Bemiston avenue, Clayton, Mo. The bridegroom, who has a ranch, called the Bar C, near Buffalo, Wyo., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Deacon of Old Warson Country Club Grounds, Ladue, Mo.

It was a family wedding, with two of the bride's sisters, Mrs. Frederick W. Lehmann III and Miss Nathalie Love, as her attendants, and her brother, John Allan Love Jr., as best man. Mr. Love substituted for Nathaniel Ewing, a former St. Louisan living on a Wyoming ranch, who was unable to reach Naples in time for the ceremony. The younger Mr. Love and his family are occupying their house here for the winter.

The bride wore a short off-white silk dress, with a jacket, and a small pink hat and carried pink camellias. Mrs. Lehmann and Miss Love were also in silk jacket dresses, one blue, the other green, and broad-brimmed crownless pink malines hats. Their flowers were gardenias.

The ceremony was performed by Father Kee Harrison in a setting of evergreen boughs. The bride and bridegroom departed immediately afterward by motor for the east coast of Florida. They will live in New York at 354 East Fifty-first street.

The bride, a member of old St. Louis families, has made her home in New York for the past year. She attended John Burroughs and Brownmoor Schools, the latter then at Santa Fe, N.M., and was graduated from the University of Colorado. She made her debut in St. Louis several seasons ago. For two years she lived in Paris, where she studied at the Sorbonne and later was associated with the Ford Foundation.

Mr. Deacon is a graduate of St. Louis Country Day School and attended Yale University until he entered the service as a naval air cadet.

Luncheon Today For Miss Pranger

MRS. GREGORY J. NOONEY and her daughter, Miss Ann Nooney, were hostesses today at a luncheon at their home, 406 Hawthorne avenue, Webster Groves, in honor of Miss Joan Pranger, debutante daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Pranger, 6363 Wydown boulevard.

The luncheon table was decorated with glistening white angels and red poinsettia blossoms. Each place was marked by a jeweled perfume flask attached to a key ring.

Seated with Miss Nooney and the guest of honor were: Miss Ann Mueller, Miss Lucy Ann Reuter, Miss Julia Ann Von Brecht, Miss Mary Wynne Mullen, Miss Joan Asche, Miss Barbara Von Hoffman, Miss Carol Wieck, Miss Elizabeth Marsh, Miss Harriet Switzer, Miss Mary Elizabeth Moloney, Miss Margaret Lamy Averill, Miss Susanne Woods, Miss Joan Brauer, Miss Terry McIlvaney, Miss Marjorie George and Miss George's guest, Miss Rosalie McGrony of Washington.

Mrs. Nooney also entertained Mrs. Pranger and Mrs. Harry Harrington.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Ahlborg of Denver, who have been visiting in New York and Washington, have arrived to be the guests of her mother, Mrs. G. W. Lamke, 1327 McCutcheon road, Richmond Heights. Dr. and Mrs. Romie H. Miller Jr., 7734 Maryland avenue, Clayton, will give a party New Year's eve in honor of the visitors.

Wedding in East For Miss Moran, Richard K. Danis

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Dec. 30.

THE Church of St. Thomas More here was the scene of the wedding yesterday noon of Miss Margot Elizabeth Moran, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmond Joseph Moran of Darien, Conn., and Richard Kramer Danis, son of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Godfrey Danis, 7017 Kingsbury boulevard, University City.

The Rev. J. A. Lennon, S.J., officiated at the service which was followed by a small reception at the River Club.

The bride wore a gown of white silk peau de soie, embroidered in seed pearls and sequins. Her headpiece of pearls and sequins was fastened to a fingertip veil of illusion. She carried white Calenthia orchids and ivy.

Miss Nancy Moran, the bride's sister, served as maid of honor in a red velvet ballerina gown. A white mink headpiece and bouquet of holly and white camellias completed her costume. The three bridesmaids, all from Darien, included another sister, Miss Sheila Moran, Miss Mary Gay Huffard and Miss Bettyann Henry. They, too, were dressed in red, with matching leaves for bandeaux, and carried holly sprays.

Thomas E. Moran of Rye, N.Y., the bride's brother, served as best man while Fred Kramer, the bridegroom's cousin, and John Lang, both of St. Louis, George R. Vidmer of Darien and the bride's brother, Kevin P. Moran, ushered.

The bride attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Greenwich, and was graduated last June from Marymount College, Tarrytown, N.Y.

Mr. Danis, whose parents were here for the wedding, is attending St. Louis University Medical School. They will return to St. Louis after a short honeymoon.

Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

LAST September, a boy I like very much asked me to go steady. I told him I would but when my parents found out they said I had to give his ring back. We agreed not to go steady any more but to keep dating. Since then we have gone out at least once a week. My parents still think we go steady. How can I prove to them that we don't? Nobody else asks me to go out so why shouldn't I go with him? CHARLENE.

Readers are requested to keep their letters short when writing to Martha Carr. For a personal reply inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope with the letter you send to Martha Carr, in care of the Post-Dispatch. Letters of a medical or legal nature cannot be answered

If you have given his ring back to him and see him only once a week, I should think your parents would feel that you had obeyed their wishes even though you don't date anyone else. You might point out to them that you would be glad to go with other boys, as they have asked you to, but apparently others think you do go steady so haven't invited you. One way you can prove it is to ask them to let you invite another boy over occasionally, perhaps for dinner, or with a small group of young people.

Dear Martha:

EVERYONE SAYS shyness is an asset. Well, it isn't so in my school. Both boys and girls say I'm pretty and have a wonderful personality. I'm really getting disgusted because I see girls not as attractive as I or who are regular dead-pans go out on dates. I'm a junior and I've never had a date I could exclaim about. I go to a lot of parties and on a few show dates but never have been asked to a school prom. Boys pay attention to me and talk to me but when it comes to asking girls to proms, they never ask me. I'm not loud! I was also rushed for a sorority but didn't join. I wish now I had because it would have helped me get dates. There's going to be another rush later this year. Should I join? CONFUSED.

In many high schools, sororities are frowned upon by the authorities so even though it's fun to be a member of a small and exclusive group, I don't think you should go against school policy. Many popular girls both in high school and college have refused to align themselves with only one clique and consequently have been able to meet more boys and attract them because of their own good qualities, not because they're part of a certain gang. And don't make the mistake of thinking that boys only date girls who are loud and noisy. Certainly, they like their dates to be gay and happy and talkative (up to a point!) but they don't like to be made conspicuous by a girl who is so loud that everyone notices her.

Write today for Martha Carr's free leaflets compiled especially for teen-agers, "E for Etiquette," and "Popularity for Girls." Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

HOLLYWOOD.

GREAT excitement when Liberace (in white and pink polka-dot shirt, red suede shoes, red socks with tux) arrived at the "I'll Cry Tomorrow" premiere. He had a new girl on his arm whom he introduced as Diane Cole. Everyone jumped to the conclusion it was a new romance.

"But she's my niece," Lee whispered in my ear. "Daughter of my sister, Angie." . . . Lee's next picture, "Unfinished Symphony," is based on the life of Shubert — "And we've asked Marlene Dietrich to play a countess. There's also a wonderful part for Kathryn Grayson."

Before Rita Hayworth makes movies again, she'll have to diet; she always has a weight problem between productions. . . . Alan Ladd's "Hell on Frisco Bay" is a fast example of the true meaning of movies—this picture really moves. Alan is excellent. So is Edward G. Robinson. . . . Another picture I enjoyed over the holidays—"Wages of Fear." This French film has more excitement per foot than any dozen so-called action-packed thrillers.

★ ★ ★

WHILE WE'RE with good performances, Susan Hayward's in "I'll Cry Tomorrow" is the best of her career. She is sure of a nomination at Oscar time. . . . At the premiere, Miss Hayward's escort was good-looking millionaire and Beverly Hills builder Hal Hayes.

Lillian Roth was there, of course, with her husband, Bert McGuire. . . . so were the Ralph Edwards. It was Ralph who started Lillian back on her career by telling of her story on his "This Is Your Life" TV show. . . . Greg Bautzer, in love again, swept in with Dana Wynter, who told me they were off to Palm Springs for the holidays.

Bleacher fans squealed delightedly for Eddie and Debbie Fisher. . . . Newcomer Ray Danton, who plays Miss Roth's first love, asked me, "Have I got much left in the picture?" Quite a bit for a new boy. . . . Dana Andrews nearly broke a leg falling off the platform in front of the theater. . . . And ex-shimmy queen Gilda Gray was doing fine with four male escorts. Her autobiography, she told me, will be published in January.

SUSAN HAYWARD . . . HER PERFORMANCE IN "I'LL CRY TOMORROW" IS CALLED THE BEST IN HER CAREER.

RICARDO MONTALBAN is balancing an offer to play the Rudolph Valentino role in a remake of "The Sheik" in Spain. If he accepts he'll take the whole family—wife Georgiana and four children.

George Jessel describes his recent appearance at a royal command performance as the "most exciting in my 46 years in show business." Georgie is off to Africa, then London to produce pictures.

Greer Garson is all smiles because Buddy Fogelson can stay with her in Bel Air until after New Year's day. Greer is up to her neck in scripts. She'll probably make her Broadway debut in Aldous Huxley's "The Genius and the Goddess."

Rock Hudson's mother tossed a shower for her son and new daughter-in-law at Rock's new home. If this marriage ever hits the rocks (no pun intended), I'll give up.

Before she rushed to the hospital for an appendectomy, Arelene Dahl attended the Old Vic's showing of "Henry V," with Richard Burton, Katherine Hepburn and Robert Helpmann.

"The play was so good and Katy Hepburn so funny, that I forgot all about the pain in my side," she said.

Charlton Heston goes from Moses to playing jet pilot. He said both were practically the same because they keep him close to heaven. Charlton, starring in "Bail Out at 43,000 Feet" on TV, says it's one of the best scripts he ever read. Richard "The Medic" Boone co-stars, which gives him confidence in case the parachute fails to open.

Worry Is Enemy of Sane Living

By Josephine Lowman

WE would be very short-sighted if we neglected mental hygiene when thinking of the factors which influence health, happiness and prolonged youthfulness.

Today it requires mental discipline to survive in good condition for our current life is full of complexity, strains and conflicts of all sorts. We live in the shadow of war, and endure high costs of living, high taxes and complex social situations. Many nervous breakdowns are the direct result of prolonged worry and emotional strain.

★ ★ ★

I SUPPOSE, at times, all of us worry about things which are not too important, even though we know better. Even when we are faced with a real worry or heartache we too often substitute worry for action. If we can do anything about solving our worries we should do so. If we cannot do anything about them, then worry will not help the situation any—so, why worry?

Your nervous system can take a lot of abuse, but when it is subjected to constant strain for long enough it finally rebels, and when it does your entire body feels the impact.

THE EFFECTS which worry can have on personality, charm, and even reason, can be terribly damaging. Yet worry is an insidious habit and, as such, holds many people in its sway.

Look at yourself frankly to see if you unconsciously have adopted an apprehensive, fearful attitude toward daily life. If so, make a real effort to correct this for the sake of your health and happiness and sane living.

Appeal From Near East

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

I HAVE just received an appeal from the American University of Beirut, Lebanon. They tell me that the wife of the President of the Lebanese republic, Mrs. Camille Chamoun, has agreed to be a patron for the appeal being made for the school of nursing of the university.

The first school of nursing in the whole Middle East was founded 50 years ago at the American University of Beirut in 1905. During these 50 years the school has trained and graduated nearly 500 nurses.

On June 24, 1955, this school celebrated its fiftieth anniversary and its aim now is to endow a rest home for retired nurses. To establish this home will require $50,000 and, as yet, they have only collected $10,000. It is hoped that the remainder will be obtained before next June.

★ ★ ★

AN APPEAL, therefore, is going out to organizations and associations in other countries which would look sympathetically on their cause. I have acceded to their request in mentioning this in my column because one of the most important things to that area of the world is good medical care and good nursing care.

Five hundred and fifty nurses are not nearly enough to cover the whole of the Near East and to give the proper assistance to the medical profession and to such public health projects as may exist. Yet, these are probably the only nurses trained in a modern way anywhere in the Near East.

So, it seems to me important that we in the United States have a part, either as individuals or through our organizations, in helping to establish a rest home for trained nurses in that area of the world.

THE SNOW is all gone in the city and even in the country it is off the roads. My scotty, Mr. Duffy, always has the most wonderful time when we are in the country, but knows the minute it sees bags appear that we are about to depart and never goes far away from the house.

Even if it is indoors it is so afraid we will forget it that it follows me everywhere. And when I finally take its chain down and put it on, the dog trots out to the car with supreme satisfaction.

Though I know he would far rather stay in the country, the choice between going with his family and staying behind is no choice at all. I think that is what makes dogs so appealing. They never seem to care half as much about things, such as where they live, as they do about the people with whom they live.

I wish one could always feel that external surroundings influenced people as little as they do dogs!

Christmas Do-It-Yourself Test

By Clarissa Start

HISTORIANS of 2055 may be perplexed to note that the year just ending was a time of prosperous living and luxury spending, in which the most popular song of the day had to do with a coal miner getting "another day older and deeper in debt."

Clarissa Start.

They also may puzzle over the absorbing interest in high fidelity reproductions of delicate nuances in sound, the culmination of which was a recording of a group of slightly flat dogs yiping "Jingle Bells."

But most of all, they should shake their heads over the paradox of a country of mass production and technological supremity in which millions of people sat around on Christmas eve painstakingly assembling by hand everything from toy trains to television converters. Throughout the year the do-it-yourself fashion had prevailed, but at this season of the year, people were doing it (themselves) who had never done it (themselves) before. Some emerged flushed with victory, some depressed with defeat.

★ ★ ★

NOW, PERSONALLY, we have never felt we had to apologize for the handicraft talents of our household. I can cook, sew, knit, am a fair painter (better on picket fences than window frames), a willing, if clumsy, apprentice bricklayer. The man of the house is an excellent painter, plasterer, refinisher, able to do simple electrical and plumbing repairs.

But even we experienced hands found our latest test as parents and home-owners a grueling one.

Father came through with flying colors on express wagon assembling, though older, wiser men of the community had warned him that this was a perilous venture. The wagon met the supreme trial: not only did it not fall apart, the four-year-old could not take it apart.

I went down to complete defeat on the intricacies of plastic town assembling, but father with energy and epithet mastered it. To be true, on Christmas morning, there were cries of, "Daddy, everything keeps going to pieces," but they were up there once.

★ ★ ★

THE WORST was ahead of us. As I was bustling about the kitchen Christmas morning, there came the small voice again. "Look, mummy, I can take the handle off the oven." Sure enough. Investigation proved that the only way the handle could be put back on the oven was to dismantle the door. Further investigation disclosed that the amount of insulation used in an oven door is sufficient to pad the roof of the average house. Final conclusion: it can be done but we don't recommend it as an interesting occupation for Christmas morning.

As I tottered up the stairs, grandpa called out to me: "Your hands are small, see if you can slip this bolt on." He was assembling a crystal radio set; another interesting development of the era was the comeback of the earphone.

All of this may astound the historians of the future. Or then again, it may not. Perhaps by that time, our rocket ships will be delivered in an assemble-it-yourself packet, with a few vital parts missing, and we will be expected to put together our own mode of transportation for that trip to the moon.

One thing is certain. Ours will never make it.

The 'Returnees'

By Ruth Millett

Don't get huffy about that statement until you test it out a bit.

RUTH MILLETT

You've heard plenty of wives complain about the unimaginative or inappropriate gifts they get from their husbands, haven't you?

But husbands who each year are surfeited with shirts, socks, pajamas, neckties and the kind of gadgets that look clever but rarely work don't do any complaining.

They even manage to look surprised and pleased, though they couldn't possibly be surprised and likely are only pleased that the latest crop of Christmas ties is not quite so bad as last year's.

And who jams the department stores the day after Christmas returning gifts for credit or for something of their own choosing? In all the crowd of package-laden "returnees" you'll see only an occasional man.

Also, there are plenty of husbands who have learned from sad experience that they can't please the little woman with a gift they choose themselves and so have resorted to giving her money and telling her to buy what she wants. You don't know of any women who have been pushed into that kind of gift-giving, do you?

No, a woman has no fear of buying her husband something he won't want because he always is enough of a gentleman to act as though what she bought him is just what he wanted.

Maybe women are harder to please and more calculating about Christmas gifts because they never give up the childish habit of asking each other, "What did you get for Christmas?" and showing off their Christmas loot to each other. Whereas, men open their gifts, act surprised and pleased, and for them that ends the whole business.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

IF you are younger than 40 I want you to read this. Plan to work on yourself. If you are After Forty I want you to read it so that you can act at once. I want you to quiz yourself and I hope that you will not evade the questions or the answers. If you are over 40 you may have allowed yourself to slump. You can think about that for a minute. Now!!!

How long has it been since you thought about looking pretty? How long since you have taken the afternoon off from the house and just enjoyed yourself? How long has it been since you had a new dress, and do you ever take a few hours off for your own personal beauty problems? How long has it been since you really looked at yourself from head to toe, back and front?

WELL, HEADS FIRST. Perhaps you have a dry scalp and brittle hair. You need a good home shampoo. And if you are tired of the drabness of your hair get one of the new rinses and use it according to directions.

Lubricate that dry neglected skin with warm cosmetic oil. If your skin tissue is flabby and your contour prolapsed, "iron" the skin with an ice cube wrapped in cotton which is first saturated in good quality witch hazel. After this apply a few drops of cosmetic oil which you can use as a base for your face powder. You will need new shades of rouge and lipstick and a new face powder.

Remember, a New Year is on its way and it will be here in just a minute—and certainly you want to have, if not a new face, a renewed one!

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Seat Choosing

As a popular movie is about to go on the screen a crowd of patrons will be waiting for the rope to come down so that they may take the seats being vacated by those who have seen the previous show.

In view of the competition, vacant seats must be located and occupied immediately if they are not to be taken by somebody else.

Couples in search of movie seats may be divided into two classes. On the one hand there are those in which either the husband or the wife dominates. On the other are those who believe in equality of rights.

* * *

IN THE CASE of the dominating wife or husband two seats are selected by the dominating personality while the other follows meekly along.

Not so, however, in the case of a couple where equality of rights is recognized. Each will have selected the most suitable seats. But they will not be the same seats. Thus while one moves forward the other will hold back.

Since there is no agreement, it is evident that, in a spirit of equality and fairness, each should have an opportunity to present all the arguments in favor of sitting in the seats he or she has chosen.

* * *

THEN COMES the question of a decision. But how is either one to yield without turning the other into a dominating character, thereby destroying the principle of equality?

As a result the dominating type of couples will get all the best seats, while those who stand for equality are relegated to the poor ones or get none at all.

Equality of husband and wife is fine in theory. But, when going to a movie, those who hold to it should choose one that is not very good and the demand for seats not large.

CHRISTOPHER BILLOPP.

The top crust of a two-crust fruit pie should be folded over the lower one, then fluted. This will keep the juices in.

Mild Weather for New Year's Day

Relatively mild weather with no rain or snow was predicted for New Year's day by Assistant Weatherman Arthur A. Rausch early today. Warm air currents will move into the area tomorrow from the southwest to boost readings through the first of next week, Rausch forecast.

The cold spot in the nation this morning was West Yellowstone, Mont., where the mercury dipped to 26 degrees below zero. The highest minimum temperature was 68 in Brownsville, Tex. In Missouri the low range was from 6 at Kirksville to 29 at Malden.

State maximums yesterday varied from 55 at Joplin to 41 at Kirksville. Over the nation the range was from 81 at Laredo, Tex., to 2 below at International Falls, Minn.

This morning in the Yukon Territory, where temperature readings are normally lower than most in this country, the mercury settled somewhere in the upper 20s and middle 30s to put that area on an equal standing with central Arkansas and central Texas.

Hip-Length Jackets

Black-dyed Alaskan sealskin is flattering and practical for hip-length jackets to be worn with daytime or evening dresses. One jacket has a wide collar to be draped at the shoulders or to be wrapped close at the throat. Sleeves are cuffed, and the fronts are sloped upward in a slenderizing line.

Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, deeply religious, have this New Year's resolution: "We resolve to seek spiritual guidance daily through prayer and the reading of Scriptures, to do what we can to help children who are ill or handicapped, and to take heed of the joy that comes simply through ordinary every-day contacts with family and friends."

When Sylvester (Pat) Weaver was elevated from president of NBC to board chairman, according to Variety, his salary was raised from $165,000 a year to $200,000, with certain deferments so that "he can keep some of it." Robert W. Sarnoff, former executive vice president who became president, got a $25,000 increase to $100,000.

CHAPTER FIVE

BUSINESS continued brisk in the Garden Shop and Clessa was pleased that more big orders were coming in. She was working on her books in the office. It was nearly closing time and she called Jan off the floor.

"Sit down, dear, I want to talk to you," Clessa said.

Jan wondered what was coming. Clessa had seemed contrite over her flash of temper when she found the keys on the safe. She had been very kind to Jan since then.

"Business is keeping up like crazy," Clessa said. "I need more help and I'm going to take you off the floor entirely so you can catch up on service work.

"I'll bring two of the boys in from the nursery. They've had sales experience, and Mike, my foreman, can hire replacements at the nursery. I don't want you trying to sell, and then chasing out on your route. It isn't fair to you."

More than once she had been tempted to tell Clessa Lew had kissed her. She hated to keep anything from her boss, but didn't know how Clessa would take it. So she hadn't told her. As far as Jan knew, Clessa hadn't spoken to Lew about Jan putting the keys in the safe.

"Has Lew been in today?" Clessa asked.

"I haven't seen him."

"You know, he's a bum, but I love him. I wish he'd marry me. I think I could straighten him out. But he keeps stalling. I wonder why. I'm not such a pill, am I, Jan?"

It was out before she realized it.

"Maybe so," Clessa said quietly. "But he's my guy, and I'm stuck with him. No one else interests me. I've tried. Don't think I haven't. By the way, have you heard from Guy Marmo?"

JANET SMITH is a most unusual gardener — beautiful, young and blonde. CLESSA TURNER, owner of Clessa's Garden Shop is Janet's very kind and understanding employer. Together they visit the elaborate penthouse of GUY MARMO to offer decorating suggestions. MARMO is impressed with Janet but Janet is certain he is the son of the man who took advantage of her father by buying his invention for a small sum when he was down and out—and then making a fortune with it since. Jan plans to repay the son. Guy Marmo calls for a date—Jan accepts. Back at the shop, LEW REYNOLDS, Clessa's fiance, who has been drinking, grabs and kisses Jan. He apologizes, Jan threatens him if he ever frys it again. Guy takes Jan to the very best places on their date that night—but the evening is ruined when he offers her a complete wardrobe from an exclusive shop. Jan walks out on him. The next day, Clessa rebukes Jan for losing the master keys to the various apartments and homes they service. Jan declares she placed them in the safe when she was finished, and that Lew was in the office at the time.

"It's too bad. I was intrigued with your plan. Hoped you'd make a go of it," Clessa told her.

* * *

SARAH came into the office. "Someone asking for you Jan," she said.

Jan hurried to the salesroom. She hoped it might be Guy. It was Vic Herron.

"Oh, you again," she said. "What do you want this time?"

"That date. I'm going to keep coming until I get it," Vic said emphatically.

Jan shrugged her shoulders.

"Oh, all right," she said desperately. "I can't have you barging in here every day. What and when?"

"It's won't be fancy," he warned her. "I'm operating on a short budget. But I'll try to make up for that with my personality."

"That will be something. Lucky me!" Jan said sourly.

Vic laughed.

"See why I'm nuts about you?" he asked. "You're the unexpected type. Always pull a fasty. I like that."

"I'm the village joker all right," Jan said. "But you haven't said when."

"Tonight. I'll call for you at eight."

"Then you'll stay away from here, and not get me fired for having goofy characters hanging around?"

"You sure like me," Vic said laughing. "See you tonight."

Jan watched him go. She wondered why she had been so short with him. After all, he was asking for a date. That's more than Guy Marmo would ever do now.

"Who was that?" Clessa asked when she returned to the office.

"I'm sorry to say, one of your customers. At least the nephew of one of them. But I'm not encouraging him to hang around. It's not my fault."

Clessa smiled.

"That's quite all right," she said. "I'm not worried about you romancing my customers. Let's lock up and blow."

Jan walked home. It was a warm spring evening, and children were playing hopscotch and other games on the sidewalks.

Jan wondered what she would say to Guy if he did call. Would she apologize for walking out on him at the Copa? It was a humiliating thing to do to an escort. But it had been humiliating to her to have him offer her a wardrobe. Perhaps he hadn't realized that.

Anyway, she was sure he would never call her. Her plan to get even with the Marmos had been sidetracked.

* * *

JAN'S father met her at the door.

"Somebody called you," he said. "They'll call back. It was a man."

Perhaps Vic called to break his date, Jan thought. It wouldn't be Guy. No such luck.

"You never told me what happened when you went out with that fellow," her father said. He wouldn't speak Guy's name.

"Nothing much happened. We went to dinner at the Colony, then to the Copa. And I walked out on him and came home alone."

"What did he do?" he demanded. "Insult you?"

"He tried to give me a complete wardrobe at Valentina's."

"I thought Valentino was dead," her father said.

Jan smiled at her father. "We don't have to worry about him any more," she said. "Let's get to the business at hand—dinner. Let me change first."

She went into her room and slipped off her work dress, putting on a cool house dress. Jan was preparing their evening meal when the telephone rang.

The sound startled her, and she ran to answer. Guy Marmo was on the line.

"Now don't hang up on me until I speak my piece," he said. "I'm sorry about that Copa deal. Believe me, I really didn't mean it the way you thought. I wanted to do something nice for you. It was a a mistake and I apologize. Are you still listening?"

"May I apologize in person? Tonight?"

New Spring Suits

Spring suits have a very feminine emphasis. Bow trimming at the neckline illustrates this trend. Much button trimming also is used, and there are pleats and tucks to give a dressmaker emphasis to many of the jackets. The pleated skirt is another evidence that flattering, feminine themes predominate.

If you have a boiler in your home, open it manually every now and then just to make sure that it is working properly and not stuck from corrosion or dirt. Do this when the boiler is not in operation or the steam pressure is low.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

IN a standard book of quotations, the words of more than 2200 writers are quoted. On the average each writer has a bit less than half a page in the volume.

Seven pages of quotations are given from the works of Longfellow, and eight pages from Tennyson. Ralph Waldo Emerson has eight and a half pages, and Plutarch has 10.

Q. Is it true that Shakespeare helped to form our modern English?

A. Yes, it is true, indeed. Several authors of the Elizabethan period played parts in producing modern English, but Shakespeare stood foremost among them.

Q. Did Shakespeare give new phrases to the English language?

A. Yes, quite a number of them. He seems to have been first, for example, to speak and about "the king's English" and "catching a cold."

Q. Did Shakespeare "invent" any new words?

A. Yes, many present-day words appeared for the first time on record in books of his plays. Examples of these are: hurry, lonely, fretful, countless and gloomy.

Q. How many plays did Shakespeare write?

A. Most scholars consider that he was the author of 38 plays. In several cases he had the help of works which had been written before his time. The poet Fletcher is known to have helped him write at least one of his early plays.

Shakespeare's plays may be put in three main classes—comedies, tragedies and history, or chronicle, plays.

Examples of the comedies are "The Taming of the Shrew," "All's Well That Ends Well" and "As You Like It."
